CONTRACTS AWARDED WITHOUT ADVERTISING

The Mayor has approved the award of contracts, without advertising, based on the following communications:

BUILDING DEPARTMENT. DEMOLITION OF BUILDINGS

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The following houses have been condemned by me as being in an unsafe and dangerous condition. Notices have been sent to the owners, but they have taken no steps to abate the dangerous condition. These buildings are a menace to the neighborhood. The locations follow: 32 Mt. Pleasant avenue and rear, Ward 8.

Accordingly, in conformity with the provisions of chapter 479, Acts of 1938, as amended, particularly section 116d thereof, I have asked and have received your Honor's permission to enter these various premises and to raze the structures.

Bidders were requested to submit an aggregate bid for the entire lot of houses, but to break down their bids to show the charge against each separate address. This breakdown is necessary for later departmental use in billing demolition costs incurred against the individual property owner of each house.

We have solicited invitation bids, award to be made to the lowest qualified bidder, and have received the following:

Allstate.—32 Mt. Pleasant avenue, $1,680; 32 Mt. Pleasant avenue (rear), $680; total, $2,360.

Mystic.—32 Mt. Pleasant avenue, $2,260; 32 Mt. Pleasant avenue (rear), $1,490; total, $3,750.

Central.—32 Mt. Pleasant avenue, $1,995; 32 Mt. Pleasant avenue (rear), $1,295; total, $3,290.

Allstate Building Wrecking Company has submitted the lowest aggregate bid. This company is thoroughly familiar with this work, it carries all necessary insurance and it has done satisfactory work for this department in the past.

Bids for the demolition of individual houses were not requested because it would be a practical physical impossibility for several different wreckers to conduct efficient wrecking operations simultaneously in individual houses. Under such conditions, there would be much mutual interference, and each wrecker would be exposed to severe hazards not under his control, by the operations of adjacent wreckers.

I also believe that the aggregate cost of individual bids would be much higher than the cost of one bid for the lot, and that handling the houses as one unit results in lower administrative costs to the city than would result from handling the houses as separate bids and contracts. Unit handling results, however, in this case, in a contract price $2,000 or over the statutory limitation upon awards that can be made without advertising, unless your Honor approves the transaction.

Accordingly, the general public safety so requiring, I ask your Honor's approval for the awarding, without advertising, as required in the city charter, of a contract in the sum of $2,360 to the Allstate Building Wrecking Company.

ROBERT E. YORK,
Building Commissioner.

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The following houses have been condemned by me as being in an unsafe and dangerous condition. Notices have been sent to the owners, but they have taken no steps to abate the dangerous condition. These buildings are a menace to the neighborhood. The locations follow: 112 and 114 Cedar street, 14-16 Cedar park, Ward 11.

Accordingly, in conformity with the provisions of chapter 479, Acts of 1938, as amended, particularly section 116d thereof, I have asked and have received your Honor's permission to enter these various premises and to raze the structures.

Central.—112 Cedar street, $1,590; 114 Cedar street, $1,590; 14-16 Cedar park, $1,650; total, $4,830.

Central Building Wrecking Company has submitted the lowest aggregate bid. This company is thoroughly familiar with this work, it carries all necessary insurance and it has done satisfactory work for this department in the past.

LIBRARY DEPARTMENT. ENGINEERING SERVICES

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The Trustees of the Public Library of the City of Boston respectfully request the approval of your Honor for entering into a contract, without public advertising, with Gilbert Small & Co., Inc., 10 High street, Boston, for engineering services in connection with repairs to the roofs of the following:

Adams Street Branch Library, Charlestown Branch Library, East Boston Branch Library, Faneuil Branch Library, Mattapan Branch Library, Parker Hill Branch Library, West Roxbury Branch Library.

A preliminary estimate of the cost of the proposed work is in the amount of $25,000.

The engineers have indicated that their fee for services would be $4,055, based on their usual hourly time basis. In arriving at this figure the engineers estimated (1) the time required to draw plans of the various roofs for the roofing work and the details showing the work required to be done by other trades and (2) the time required for preparing and reproducing the general specifications and plans. In the matter of supervision they took into account the fact that the work at the seven branch libraries would not be carried out simultaneously, with the result that more time would have to be spent on added visits and travel to the sites.

The Trustees therefore have Voted, That there be entered into with Gilbert Small & Co., Inc., 10 High street, Boston, a contract for engineering services in connection with certain roofing work at seven branch library buildings, the total fee thus charged to be in the sum of four thousand fifty-five dollars ($4,055).

The permission of your Honor is hereby requested to award this contract to Gilbert Small & Co., Inc.

Respectfully,

MILTON E. LORD,
Director.

PARKS AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT. ALTERATIONS, FIELD HOUSE

DEAR SIR:

In order to continue the rehabilitation of the Christopher F. Lee Playground, South Boston, we believe, after many conferences with our staff and neighborhood representatives, that the existing field house would better serve the public if redesigned and altered to conform with present-day trends.

The field house was built some forty years ago and was designed mainly to provide toilet facilities for the general public, with the remaining area set aside for shower and locker room usage. Today the shower and locker rooms are regarded as more or less anachronistic, and the trend is to provide a building which contains activity, game and meeting rooms that may be used many hours of the day and in all seasons for all age groups.

To carry out this change, we have consulted an architect experienced in this type of work who informs us that the alterations necessary for the desired changes would cost approximately $25,000, which with the cost of the service of the architect and minimum contingency reserve, requires an appropriation of $30,000, which has been made available to us.

The architect's fee will be the standard rate of ten per cent (10%) of the amount of the construction contract price, or approximately $2,500. Because of the proposed nature of the services involved, I believe nothing would be gained by publicly advertising for bids, and the interest of the public would be best served by awarding the contract to an architect known to have had experience in this type of work.

In view of all this I respectfully request your permission to allow me to award a contract, without publicly advertising, for architectural service, for the preparation of plans and specifications for alterations to the field house at Christopher F. Lee Playground, M and First streets, South Boston, Mass., to A. J. Carpenter, architect and engineer, 236 Huntington avenue, Boston, Mass., at the rate of 10 per cent (10%) of the construction cost, or approximately $2,500, to be charged to Remodeling, Reconstruction or Making Extraordinary Repairs to Buildings (663-85-717).

Respectfully yours,

MARTIN F. WALSH,
Commissioner.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Almighty and eternal Father, whose ever-watchful providence rules all things, we pause at this moment to render our humble acts of adoration, grateful thanksgiving, and implore Thy forgiveness for our many transgressions.

The report was accepted, and the message was placed on file.

STATEMENT BY COUN. McDONOUGH.

Upon receiving unanimous consent to make a statement, Councillor McDonough stated in the resolution concerning the Government Center Project a majority of the councillors were in favor of the Government Center as the boundaries stood at the time of the Early Land Acquisition some two years ago but are now opposed to the inclusion of the State Street area known as Parcel 8.

He further stated that inasmuch as the Council cannot amend the plan by striking out Parcel 8 a majority of the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal is voting to reject the present plan but hopes it will be resubmitted without including Parcel 8.

STATEMENT BY COUN. FOLEY.

Upon receiving unanimous consent to make a statement Councillor Foley stated that this morning he found in a jacket pocket a letter dated August 13, 1959, which contained a communication from the General Counsel of the Boston Redevelopment Authority enclosing an amendment to the Whitney Street Plan which he drew up and which the Council inserted in the plan.

He further stated that in 1959 a plan could be amended, and now it is ruled by the counsel general to the Authority that a plan cannot be amended.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON URBAN REDEVELOPMENT, REHABILITATION AND RENEWAL.

Coun. McDONOUGH, for the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal, submitted the following:

1. Report on message of the Mayor and resolution (referred June 10) approving urban renewal plan and feasibility of relocation for Government Center Project Area—recommending that the resolution ought not to pass.

The report was accepted.

MINORITY REPORT OF COUN. PIEMONTE RE GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

The Boston "Globe" carried the following cartoon on its editorial page on Saturday. It showed a gravestone on which was inscribed "The New Boston—Beloved Dream of All Forward-Looking Citizens—Born 1960—Died—By Vote of the City Council." The caption for this rather crude attempt at political satire read "Has it come to this?"

Has it indeed come to this? Have we come to the time when it is no longer possible for honest men to raise honest questions for the honest majority? Have we come to the time when a public official may not disagree with the "Establishment" without running the risk of being smeared in the press through inference and innuendo? Have we come to the time when a man can no longer act on his beliefs without being accused of political self-seeking and petty politics?

Has it indeed come to this? Have the powerful interests decreed that the democratic process has gone out of fashion and is to be suspended? Are all public officials to knuckle under or run the risk of political destruction? Is our press to be subverted for propaganda purposes and coerced by the giants who dominate the city?

If these things are so, then we will bury Boston today, but it will be the final act in a process of decay that began when the first man winked his eyes at a half-truth and decided to go along.

I have reason to be proud of my service to the city. Through my efforts the tax abatement racket was exposed, competitive bidding for city contracts was instituted and many municipal services were streamlined. While doing this I received support and cooperation from the press in general and my honesty was never questioned. Now, however, we are in serious disagreement.

Judge Charles E. Wyzanski called upon the press over two years ago to be "the guardians of liberty, the sentinels who watch for the capricious and the corrupt, the arbitrary and the autocratic."

Has the Boston "Globe" fulfilled this injunction in the way in which it has presented to the public the issue of including parcel eight in the Government Center?

Has the "Globe" attempted to present both sides of the issue? As a result of the hearings the following points stood out:

1. The Council on January 20, 1962, initiated hearings to speed action on the center. At that time it was promised by Mr. Logue that the Authority would have a plan in 30 to 60 days, and that was on January 20, 1962. Eighteen months later the Council at long last received a final plan. Clearly, it is the BRA's responsibility for this delay and any subsequent delay. Who could give any other interpretation to it without twisting the truth?

2. Parcel 8 and the tower were not a part of the original center plan. The Council has given preliminary approval to the original plan and it is ready to do so again. The point in dispute is the suggested amendment to add Parcel 8, not the approval of the Center.

3. It appears that the urban renewal process was subverted for purposes that are still ambiguous and highly suspect. It is obvious that Cabot, Cabot and Forbes, the developer of record, the Merchants National Bank, which is to be the prime tenant, and the BRA have engaged in prolonged negotiation and planning. This will discourage for all practical purposes any other developer from submitting a competitive bid. Any other interpretation of this arrangement is pure and simple dissemblance.

4. What makes the justification for adding Parcel 8 difficult to understand are two other factors. In the first place, Mr. Logue has assured us that a newspaper account that reported an error in planning a street exit which required the taking of the State Street buildings was untrue. He testified that there were other alternatives for roads and exits. Thus is removed a legitimate reason for extending the boundaries of the site. Surely everyone who testified in this regard was being candid and I would certainly hope that the BRA is not causing this delay because of an unwillingness merely to acknowledge a mistake. In the second place it seems inappropriate and uneconomical to extend the boundaries of the Center when so much cleared land already exists within the site. Why hasn't the Council been presented with an alternative proposal which includes the tower within the original site. I cannot believe that Mr. Logue and the BRA officials have not considered this, since it is clearly the most attractive way to serve the public interest.

It should be clear by this time that I consider the construction of the tower outside the original boundaries and the taking of two additional buildings as objectionable on ethical and economic grounds. In addition, I am sure there are aesthetic alternatives that would provide harmony and a pleasing integration of buildings under the original plan. I have the utmost faith in the artistic imagination and ability of the architects engaged in this project to present a sound plan.

It should also be clear that I do not feel that the "Globe" has considered these questions more than superficially. Indeed they seem to have relied to an inappropriate degree upon the point of view presented by the administration and the BRA. On Saturday, July 20, the Boston "Globe" stated the following in an editorial: "It is unfortunate, too, that some real estate interests or rival commercial concerns, unwilling to take their stand publicly, have fought the Center behind the scenes. Some are even reported to have given campaign contributions in return for votes. If so, it is a blatant violation of the law and prosecution should follow."

This is a cowardly and treacherous use of an educational instrument. It is an example of an editorial whose purpose is to incite, rather than to inform, to frighten and coerce, rather than to enlighten.

What purpose does such an editorial serve other than to intimidate the councillors into voting for Parcel 8 rather than be regarded by the readers of that editorial as dishonest?

Members of the Council: There is an issue here in this process of urban renewal that must be faced sooner or later. It is simply this: Will this Body assume a meaningful role? Though all may say yes to this question in theory, there are many who will not grant the Council such a role in practice.

My view of the Council is one that would define it as the last court of appeal for the citizen on the municipal level. We are, for that reason, the final judges in the urban renewal process.

It becomes increasingly apparent that a plaintiff in an urban renewal case has little recourse left through the courts, and I am quoting now from the 1963 Report of the Bar Association. In the State of Washington, for example, the Supreme Court found that the City Council of Tacoma could validly make its determination of blighted, since it had before it a substantial amount of evidence. The court would not consider whether the apparently honestly-exercised judgment of the Council, as supported by substantial evidence, was accurate.

And in a case before the Court of Appeals for Cuyahoga County in Ohio, the court stated that it must accept the judgment of the City Council in a case of public purpose, so long as there is no finding of fraud, gross abuse of discretion by the Council or action in excess of the Council's powers.

The Council, therefore, has extraordinary powers in urban renewal cases. Far more power than has been previously recognized. It means that the members of this Body are the final determinants in the planning process.

The Federal Government carefully requires that a project initiated by the Mayor and/or the BRA must be approved by the Council. Once a project is approved by us, the Federal Government is virtually certain to give its approval. It is ready to do so because it is taken for granted that Council approval means that the interests of the majority have been served. This is not left up to the Mayor, the Federal Government, or the BRA to determine. It is left up to us. There are many who would circumvent this process.

For example, I have been told this past week end that I risk my political career on this vote. It has been suggested to me that I should vote for the amended plan; even though there are some grave misgivings concerning this tower and the way it was solicited, I have been counseled to let the case be carried to the courts. But as I have already pointed out, we are the final court. To do as suggested would be to deprive an aggrieved party of his day in court.

Unfortunately, they advise me to ignore the principles that have governed my life. I don't intend to turn away from the difficult decisions now. All the money in the world can't buy me a new conscience.

The Council appears to find itself maneuvered into the position of having to accept the whole plan or none at all. We are being told that we will be scuttling the entire project because we object to the proposed amendment. This is nonsense. Are elected government officials to be told that their duties and responsibilities are in name only and that the only function they have is a ceremonial one? Do we not have the responsibility and the right to direct employees of the government to alter a plan or a program to meet the public interest? If we do not exercise our constitutional responsibilities where will the wider interests of the people be served?

My recommendations are as follows:

1. The Council reaffirm its support of and commitment to the original Government Center proposal.

2. The Council direct the BRA to prepare with all possible speed a final plan which does not include Parcel 8.

3. The Council urge the board of the BRA to invite Cabot, Cabot and Forbes to bid for land upon which to build their proposed tower within the Center area.

4. The Council employ an urban renewal specialist to serve as counsel to the Urban Renewal Committee. His function would be to maintain a liaison with the BRA, keep the members informed of BRA actions and procedures and participate in advising members during urban renewal hearings.

5. The Council sponsor a public forum in Faneuil Hall on the duties, responsibilities, and rights of elected officials in the City of Boston. It should also recommend to the planners of the B. C. seminar that they devote a session to the role of Public Authorities in a democratic society.

MINORITY REPORT OF COUN. FOLEY RE GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

I

If words in the English language even remotely mean what they purport to say, the antisecrecy amendment has been clearly violated here. I have in mind a reading of the act running as follows: "No understanding . . . between a developer and a local public agency concerning an urban renewal project area shall be made unless (certain facts) are made known in the form prescribed by the administrator." There was surely an understanding and there is no thought that the required facts were made known "in the form prescribed by the administrator."

It seems to me that surely the owners of 10 State street, represented as they are, by most competent and able counsel, would be likely to seek relief in the courts. The result, of course, would be to delay this long-delayed project even more. This should, of course, be avoided.

But, I do not want to appear to say that we should vote a certain way to avoid a court fight. I believe the antisevere amendment is a good law. It ends the dispute which arose in the fifties, principally in New York, between those who would give the administrator of an urban renewal program almost unlimited authority and those who feel that there are some things that government, and therefore a government official, simply cannot be permitted to do.

As Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., said in the wire-tap case, "It is better that some criminals should escape than that government should appear to do a shabby thing." Government is power and it is the essence of our system that restraint be shown in the use of powers conferred by government officials.

II

The New England Merchants National Bank has here behaved in the ancient tradition of the mailed fist in the velvet glove. But, at least the bank will have to pay a stiff rent.

However, the degree of favoritism shown here to Cabot, Cabot & Forbes is almost unbelievable. At a time when Cabot, Cabot & Forbes was not only not interested in developing and operating real estate in the City of Boston, but was actively engaged in soliciting organizations away from Boston, the development administrator, passing by those many people in the real estate industry in this city who held out through three decades of depression, war, shortages, and tax troubles, offered Cabot, Cabot & Forbes the following deal:

1. A site on the Government Center, State street and Washington street, with a subway station either underneath or immediately adjacent to the building and with a prime tenant who, with another, would occupy half the space in the building and with well over a year's head start to further tenant the building, with a demolition schedule suited to the maximum convenience of the New England Merchants National Bank.

III

Let me address myself to those who do not blanch, quake, and shiver when the words "nationalized" and "socialized" are used in the economic sense. There surely must be some who feel that when an apartment building is built (practically speaking) with 100 per cent federally guaranteed mortgage so that if the building loses, the government loses, and if the building wins, the developer wins, that we are somewhat closer to a nationalized real estate industry than we think. I would say to such people that if we are to ignore the statute and permit the development administrator to freely wheel and deal in secret like some municipal Howard Hughes, we will be reducing the number of active persons developing commercial space in Boston to one, namely Edward Logue. Surely no private operator would be foolish enough to compete for development of new office space with an operation such as has been revealed here. Why should a man spend money and several years' time promoting a new building when he must compete with another man, namely, and to wit, the development administrator, with all the financial resources of a federally subsidized renewal program and the power of the City of Boston itself behind him.

But, if others lose heart, may we still not rely upon Logue to do it all? No, there are not enough hours in the day, days in the week, or months in the year for Logue to do this and everything else he insists upon controlling as well. I perceive and suggest this to be the real issue here. The procedures followed by the development administrator here are incompatible with the operation of the real estate industry in this city if it is to continue to be operated under the form of private enterprise.

MINORITY REPORT OF COUN. HINES RE GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

I will vote for the Government Center Plan with the greatest reluctance.

1. The situation with relation to the owners of the State Street properties raises the danger of extensive litigation to decide whether or not a bank—having failed in its attempts to acquire a valuable property by negotiations on the open market—may acquire that property through the urban renewal taking and leasing scheme proposed.

2. This situation could have been completely avoided—and a superior re-use developed—by the acquisition of the Houghton and Dutton Building. Despite recent auction, this site is still available to the Boston Redevelopment Authority. If the taking of Parcel 8 is set aside by judicial decision, this would seem to be the best site for a high-rise office building. But from the beginning, it was apparent that this structure would be vacated and ought to have been included in the Government Center.

3. No provision is made for the Old City Hall—a serious omission.

4. A substantial parcel is planned for motel use at a time when some large Boston hotels are experiencing strenuous tax and mortgage difficulties. For this reason—and the availability of large parking facilities in the nighttime—would it not be far better to devote this parcel to something of a cultural-entertainment purpose?

Nonetheless, legal opinion has been rendered to the effect that the City Council may not amend the plan—it must be accepted or totally rejected.

So much time, work, and effort has gone into this endeavor that I find it impossible to vote in the negative. There is simply too much at stake even though a better plan was and is possible and there is a grave question as to the legality of the treatment received by the State Street owners.

VETO OF ORDER ACCEPTING CHAPTER 478 OF THE ACTS OF 1963 INCREASING AMOUNTS OF PENSIONS AND RETIREMENT ALLOWANCES PAYABLE TO CERTAIN FORMER PUBLIC EMPLOYEES.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, July 22, 1963.
To the City Council.
Gentlemen:

I return herewith, disapproved, the order passed by your Honorable Body on July 8, 1963, purporting to accept chapter 478 of the Acts of 1963 entitled "An Act Increasing the Amounts of Pensions and Retirement Allowances Payable to Certain Former Public Employees."

Before your Honorable Body passed this order, a study of chapter 478 had already convinced me that Boston should accept that act. That act, however, affects pensions, retirement allowances and annuities payable by the Commonwealth as well as by accepting cities and towns and so is subject to a referendum petition under Article XLVIII of the Amendments to the Constitution of Massachusetts (see Murray v. Secretary of the Commonwealth, Mass. Adv. Sh. (1962) 1299, also Art LXVIII, the Referendum, III, s. 2), and accordingly, does not take effect until September 9, 1963, and cannot be accepted before that date, the proviso in G.L., c. 4, s. 1, respecting the early acceptance of local statutes which may not be made the subject of a referendum being inapplicable. My objection to the order returned herewith is, therefore, that it was prematurely adopted.

As indicated above, it is my intention to submit to you in due time an order for the acceptance of chapter 478, which upon adoption by you not earlier than September 16 nor later than September 30 I would approve October 1, for to expedite the work entailed in revising pension rolls in accord with chapter 478, the increases thereby provided for should take effect on the first of a month.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

On motion of Councillor Piemonte, the message and order were referred to the Executive Committee.

URBAN RENEWAL PLAN FOR GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, July 25, 1963.
To the Honorable City Council.
Gentlemen:

The July 22 five to four vote rejecting the proposed Government Center Urban Renewal Plan requires a recommendation on my part as to how we can best get this project moving again.

The plan presented to you was carefully prepared by highly qualified planners and architects. It has satisfied the requirements of eight different public agencies whose needs had to be accommodated within the project area. It provides a sound and workable traffic and circulation plan and proposed private building sites which will permit the project to increase substantially the city's tax base. This has been a very difficult accomplishment in view of the fact that some 85 per cent of the project land is to be used for public building sites, public open spaces and public rights of way.

The plan has met every important test of feasibility, has received widespread community endorsement and the approval of the federal Urban Renewal Administration. It achieves exceptionally high standards of civic design and assures our city of a new civic center which will be beautiful as well as functional.

It is a plan not to be easily cast aside. Not only would we suffer extended delays, but any substitute plan would, in my opinion, be substantially inferior to the one approved unanimously by the Redevelopment Authority after most careful consideration.

After analysis of the comments made by the Council it seems clear to me that at least a majority of the Council are prepared to support the plan as presented.

The objection which apparently prevented the plan from receiving a majority on July 22 was the expressed view that a "deal" had been made for the disposition of the tower site.

I regret that a majority of the Council did not accept the assurances of Monsignor Lally and Administrator Logue that no such "deal" had been made.

It seems to me of utmost importance to the future of our city that a disagreement on this issue not be permitted to block the magnificent plan which has been presented to you.

I believe that this matter can be resolved by a change in the process of selecting a developer to be followed by the Redevelopment Authority, which will provide unquestioned assurance that the selection of the developer for Parcel 8 will be done on a completely objective basis.

The change I propose is that the Authority require that all development proposals for Parcel 8 be submitted to an impartial blue-ribbon panel of seven distinguished citizens for study, evaluation, and recommendation. The panel would be asked to make a public and specific recommendation to the Authority and the Development Administrator on the developer to be selected for Parcel 8. Three of the panel would be architects selected by the Boston Society of Architects, four would be outstanding citizens selected by the Mayor.

In order to remove the selection process from the current political campaign, I further propose that the selection of the four outstanding citizens would be made by the mayor taking office in January of 1964.

The specific procedure would be as follows. The Authority would authorize public advertisement of the availability of the land at its August 8 meeting. Interested developers could obtain the necessary disposition materials from the Authority's office up until October 1, 1963. The cut-off date for the submission of sealed proposals would be 10 A.M., January 15, 1964. The proposals would be immediately turned over to the seven-man panel for evaluation and recommendation. The panel would be required to recommend its selection of a developer within thirty days.

It seems to me that the use of a blue-ribbon panel can remove the selection of a developer from the realm of controversy and eliminate the last obstacle to at least a majority Council vote for the Government Center plan.

I have discussed the blue-ribbon panel proposal with the members of the Redevelopment Authority and with the Development Administrator, and they have assured me of their willingness to follow this procedure if the Council approves the plan submitted to it.

In view of all I have stated above, it is my considered judgement that the public interest of the City of Boston is best served by the approval of the Government Center plan as originally submitted to you. I therefore re-submit it to you with a request that you now give it your approval.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

RESOLUTION OF BOSTON CITY COUNCIL APPROVING URBAN RENEWAL PLAN AND FEASIBILITY OF RELOCATION FOR PROJECT NO. MASS. R-35.

Whereas, Under the provisions of Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, the Housing and Home Finance Administrator is authorized to provide financial assistance to local public agencies for undertaking and carrying out urban renewal projects; and

Whereas, It is provided in such act that contracts for financial aid thereunder shall require that the Urban Renewal Plan for the respective project area be approved by the Governing Body of the locality in which the project is situated and that such approval includes findings by the Governing Body that: (1) the financial aid to be provided in the contract is necessary to enable the project to be undertaken in accordance with the Urban Renewal Plan; (2) the Urban Renewal Plan will afford maximum opportunity, consistent with the sound needs of the locality as a whole, for the rehabilitation or redevelopment of the urban renewal area by private enterprise; (3) the Urban Renewal Plan conforms to a general plan for the development of the locality as a whole; and (4) the Urban Renewal Plan gives due consideration to the provision of adequate park and recreational areas and facilities, as may be desirable for neighborhood improvement, with special consideration for the health, safety, and welfare of children residing in the general vicinity of the site covered by the plan; and

Whereas, The Boston Redevelopment Authority (hereinafter called the "Authority") has entered into a planning contract and a temporary loan contract for financial assistance under such act with the United States of America, acting by and through the Housing and Home Finance Administrator, pursuant to which federal funds were provided for the urban renewal project (herein called the "Project") identified as "Government Center Project" and encompassing the area described in the attached Exhibit "A"; and

Whereas, The Authority has applied for additional financial assistance under such act and proposes to enter into an additional contract or contracts with the Housing and Home

Finance Agency for the undertaking of, and for making available additional financial assistance for, the project; and

Whereas, The Authority on September 15, 1961, entered into a temporary loan contract with the United States of America for the purpose of financing early land acquisition and related activities in the Government Center Urban Renewal Area pursuant to Section 26P of Chapter 121 of the Massachusetts General Laws; and

Whereas, the City of Boston acting by and through its Mayor with the approval of the City Council thereafter executed a covenant with the Authority whereby the City of Boston in accordance with the applicable law shall bear any and all loss that may arise as a result of such early land acquisition and related activities in the event that the land so acquired is not used for urban renewal purposes, because the Urban Renewal Plan for the Government Center Urban Renewal Area is not approved or is amended to omit such land or is abandoned for any reason; and

Whereas, The Authority with the consent of the City of Boston acting by and through the Mayor with the approval of the City Council has assigned any and all of its rights under said covenant to the United States of America; and

Whereas, The Authority has made detailed studies of the location, physical condition of structures, land use, environmental influences and social, cultural, and economic conditions of the project area and has determined that the area is a decadent area and that it is detrimental and a menace to the safety, health, and welfare of the inhabitants and users thereof and of the locality at large, because of the existence of obsolete buildings which are ill-adapted to contemporary use; conversions from residential to nonresidential uses; a high percentage of structures 100 or more years old; over 90 per cent of the buildings in the area determined substandard on the basis of federal criteria; fire hazards caused by accumulation of combustible debris, unenclosed stairway and lack of fireproof construction as well as high building coverage, narrow streets and lack of off-street loading facilities which hamper effective fire fighting and make most of the area a congested value district as designated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters; vermin infestation in almost half of the structures in the area; exposed electrical wiring in about 62 per cent of the structures; obsolete plumbing in at least 68 per cent of the structures; improper toilet ventilation; and narrow and inadequate streets; and because buildings have been torn down and not replaced and which under existing conditions it is improbable it will be replaced by the ordinary operations of private enterprise; and because there have been substantial adverse changes in recent years in business and economic conditions in the area; and the members of this Governing Body have been fully apprised by the Authority and are aware of these facts and conditions; and

Whereas, There has been prepared and referred to the Boston City Council for review and approval an Urban Renewal Plan for the project area, dated April 3, 1963 (as revised May 29, 1963), and consisting of a title page, a table of contents, 56 pages of text numbered 1 to 56, and 3 maps, adopted by the Authority on June 5, 1963, and submitted to the City Council by his Honor the Mayor; and

Whereas, The Mayor submitted to the City Council with the aforesaid Urban Renewal Plan but not as a part thereof the following supporting documentation: (1) Application for Loan and Grant; (2) appropriate resolutions of the Authority; (3) finding of decadence by the Authority, including statistical data used for the determination of same; (4) relocation status reports; (5) proposed co-operation agreement authorized for execution by the Authority; and (6) transient housing study; and

Whereas, A general plan has been prepared and is recognized and used as a guide for the general development of the locality as a whole; and

Whereas, The Authority which is the duly designated and official planning body for the locality, has found that said Urban Renewal Plan conforms to the said general plan for the locality as a whole, and the City Council has duly considered said finding; and

Whereas, Said Urban Renewal Plan for the project area prescribes certain land uses for the project area and will require, among other things, changes in zoning, the vacating and removal of streets, alleys, and other public ways, the establishment of new street patterns, the location and relocation of sewer and water mains and other public facilities, and other public action; and

Whereas, The Authority has caused to be made a competent independent analysis of the local supply of hotel and other transient housing; and

Whereas, The Authority has prepared and submitted a program for the relocation of families displaced as a result of carrying out the project in accordance with said Urban Renewal Plan; and

Whereas, There have also been presented to the Governing Body information and data respecting the relocation program which have been prepared by the Authority as a result of studies, surveys, and inspections in the project area and the assembling and analysis of the data and information obtained from such studies, surveys, and inspections; and

Whereas, A public hearing on said Urban Renewal Plan and Project was, after due notice thereof held on..... and all persons desiring to be heard on said plan and project were so heard; and

Whereas, The members of the City Council have carefully considered and reviewed the aforesaid Urban Renewal Plan and the aforesaid relocation program in the light of (1) the supporting documentation submitted therewith as aforesaid; (2) the proceedings at the aforesaid public hearing; and (3) the general knowledge of the city councillors with respect to conditions prevailing in the project area and in the City of Boston as a whole; and

Whereas, the members of the City Council are cognizant of the conditions that are imposed in the undertaking and carrying out of urban renewal projects with federal financial assistance under Title I, including those prohibiting discrimination because of race, color, creed, or national origin; now therefore it is hereby ordered

1. That it is hereby found and determined that the project area is a decadent area and qualifies as an eligible project area under Chapter 121 of the General Laws.

2. That said Urban Renewal Plan for the project aforementioned, having been duly reviewed and considered, is hereby approved and the Clerk is hereby directed to file said copy of said Urban Renewal Plan with the minutes of this meeting.

3. That it is hereby found and determined that said Urban Renewal Plan for the project area conforms to said general plan of the locality

4. That it is hereby found and determined that the financial aid provided and to be provided pursuant to said contracts for federal financial assistance pertaining to the project is necessary to enable the project to be undertaken in accordance with the Urban Renewal Plan for the project area.

5. That it is hereby found and determined that the above-mentioned Urban Renewal Plan for the Urban Renewal Area will afford maximum opportunity, consistent with the sound needs of the locality as a whole, for the urban renewal of such areas by private enterprise.

6. That it is hereby found and determined that the Urban Renewal Plan for the Urban Renewal Area gives due consideration to the provision of adequate park and recreational areas and facilities, as may be desirable for neighborhood improvement, with special consideration for the health, safety, and welfare of children residing in the general vicinity of the site covered by the plan.

7. That it is hereby found and determined, as a result of a competent independent analysis of the local supply of transient housing, that there exists in the area a need for additional units of such housing.

8. That it is hereby found and determined that the program for the proper relocation of the families displaced in carrying out the project in decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings in conformity with acceptable standards is feasible and is being reasonably and timely effected to permit the proper prosecution and completion of the project; and that such dwellings or dwelling units available or to be made available to such displaced families are at least equal in number to the number of displaced families, are not generally less desirable in regard to public utilities and public and commercial facilities than the dwellings of the displaced families in the project area, are available at rents or prices within the financial means of the displaced families, and are reasonably accessible to their places of employment.

9. That in order to implement and facilitate the effectuation of the Urban Renewal Plan hereby approved it is found and determined that certain official action must be taken by this Body with reference, among other things, to changes in zoning, the vacating and removal of streets, alleys, and other public ways, the establishment of new street patterns, the location and relocation of sewer and water mains and other public facilities, and other public action, and accordingly, this Body hereby: (a) pledges its cooperation in helping to carry out such Urban Renewal Plan; (b) requests the various officials, departments, boards, and agencies of the locality having administrative responsibilities in the premises likewise to cooperate to such end and to exercise their respective functions and powers in a manner consistent with said Urban Renewal Plan; (c) stands ready to consider and take appropriate action upon proposals and measures designed to effectuate said Urban Renewal Plan; and (d) authorizes the Mayor of the City of Boston to execute and deliver in the name and behalf of the city the cooperation agreement as approved by the Authority and presented to this meeting.

10. That additional financial assistance under the provisions of Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, is necessary to enable the land in the project area to be renewed in accordance with the Urban Renewal Plan for the project area and, accordingly, the filing by the Authority of an application or applications for such financial assistance under said Title I is hereby approved.

City Tackles Tough Derelict Automobile Problem

(The following study by the Boston Municipal Research Bureau is of interest to every Bostonian concerned with the welfare of the city and its progress. It is the result of a survey of a problem which Boston shares with American cities everywhere—the abandonment of automobiles which can no longer serve the purpose for which they were built.)

The pronounced increase of derelict autos in Boston within recent months is considered a threat to public health, safety, and welfare. Ironically, necessary action to abate another hazard—air pollution—is a primary cause of the new problem.

For the past two years the regulations of the Metropolitan Air Pollution Control District have prohibited open burning except by permit in Boston and other member communities. However, the district has not relaxed the ban and allowed cars to be openly burned, once a common procedure in auto salvaging. Permission probably never will be granted.

Over a Thousand Estimated

An automobile body, stripped of tires and spare parts, contains a fair amount of high-grade scrap metal that can be profitably sold if reclaimed at little cost. But the considerable amounts of paint, paper, plastics, upholstery, etc., must be removed prior to baling. Hand stripping is simply uneconomical. The practice, therefore, was to spray junked cars with fuel oil and ignite them. This technique removed the materials unacceptable to the steel mills, but it also produced offensive odors and clouds of black smoke, and has been prohibited.

Junk dealers were faced with the dilemma of either constructing acceptable incinerators or curtailing auto scrapping. Generally, with the demand for scrap metal low, the latter course has been followed. As a result, hundreds of derelict autos have appeared in Boston. Early in the year the Police Department counted 757. Observers believe about a dozen are abandoned each week. This accounts for the current estimate of well over a thousand.

Increase Expected

The expectation that weekly additions will rise noticeably in October and later during the cold of winter gives concern. The Registry of Motor Vehicles has announced that the upcoming auto inspection will be more stringent than heretofore. By October 15 many owners will thus be forced to make repairs or give up their cars. Some may think of abandonment. Similar alternatives will be weighed by still others when current registrations expire.

Abandoned autos, as they are popularly called, are not, however, a problem only in this area. During the first half of 1963 the City of Chicago, for example, towed 12,459 vehicles ultimately disposed of as abandoned. And in Virginia the Advisory Legislative Council not long ago recommended tightened laws to control a comparable problem, observing: "It is essential that Virginia remain as an outstanding historic and scenic show place."

Means of Disposal

Yet Boston has been unusually hampered by a lack of disposal facilities. The Governor recently high lighted the local shortcoming in a special message calling for a $100,000 study to find a solution to the growing problem of solid waste disposal confronting metropolitan Boston. Similarly faced with an open fires ban, Chicago sells derelict autos to wreckers with sanctioned incinerators. Many cities do likewise.

Primarily because they lacked proper incinerators, Boston area junk dealers until several weeks ago would not accept abandoned cars unless the city paid them as much as $12 per unit! A Lynn concern finally agreed to take a half dozen a day without charge. Over a hundred have already been eliminated in this manner. And just a few days ago a Chelsea dealer began to take about ten cars a day free. Meanwhile, a Somerville wrecker agreed to take a small number if reimbursed $3 per car.

Safe Driving Reduces Automobile Costs

Strong safety measures—which will lower the toll of accidents and injuries on our highways—can reduce the cost of operating a motor vehicle in Massachusetts, according to Registrar of Motor Vehicles James R. Lawton.

“High insurance costs can only be brought down if the number of claims decreases. Seat belts and a new motor vehicle inspection system can reduce injuries and therefore the number of claims,” he said.

B & M Holds Riders Despite Vacations

The Boston & Maine commuting service experiment—feared in for a sharp dip with the coming vacation period—rose nicely through the month of July according to the State Mass Transportation Commission. The road carried about 116,000 more passengers during the month than during July, 1962, an increase of 28.1 per cent. That's the highest monthly percentage jump since the experiment got under way in January.

Now observers await the verdict of August. On the first of the month fares were hiked for the heavy-travel hours, remained greatly reduced for the off-peak hours.

1500 Playground Children Participate In Big Fitness Show on Common

Mayor Collins' “physical fitness” program was climaxed on Boston Common, August 21, when 1500 children from Boston playgrounds participated in a great demonstration on the site of the former Buddies Club on the Common.

These children represented thousands who have been participating on the playgrounds and schoolyards throughout the city in the physical-fitness classes which formed a part of the Mayor's summer playground program.

The youngsters included five boys and five girls from each playground. All who participated in the program—irrespective of whether they were top performers or not—have been awarded a Mayor John F. Collins achievement certificate.

The Mayor will present a certificate to one boy and to one girl representing all the youngsters in the City of Boston who have been participating in the program.

Boston was one of the first cities to cooperate and set up a physical-fitness program, in accordance with the request of President John F. Kennedy.

SOMETHING NEW TO BE ADDED—Scale model location of two new 26-story apartment buildings to be constructed at the Prudential Center in Boston's Back Bay. Model also shows location of 52-story Prudential Tower, adjacent commercial buildings and 29-story Hotel America, now under construction. Boston extension of Massachusetts Toll road will pass beneath the multimillion-dollar project.

Derelict Autos . . .

When it appeared that even the limited means above would not develop, other alternatives were investigated. Dumping at sea is an interesting technique used elsewhere. Mobile, Alabama, Santa Barbara, California, and Victoria, British Columbia, are among the cities which have successfully employed this method. Jacksonville, Florida, used old auto bodies to repair a battered sea wall.

The only drawback to the sea disposal method is its relatively high cost. A knowledgeable source has estimated that it would cost the city about $17.50 for each car dropped at the approved site 18 nautical miles east of Boston. Nevertheless, sea disposal has merit in that it could rapidly eliminate the huge backlog of derelicts now in the city.

Many derelicts in the backlog are on BRA-acquired properties in Roxbury and South End. Thus, the cost of their removal to the city should be only one sixth the cost of removing derelicts on non-BRA properties. The city's direct efforts and expense as a result can be concentrated on eliminating the backlog elsewhere.

Law Should Help

At the present disposal rate it will take up to a half year to move the accumulation of the past two years. Thereafter, the city, now more adequately prepared, should be able to control the problem. A recent law provides a stiff penalty for abandoning motor vehicles and will act as a deterrent.

Describing the increased number of discarded autos as a "serious public nuisance which should be abated forthwith," the Governor last month declared the legislation an emergency act causing it to take effect immediately rather than after the normal 90-day wait. Boston police formerly enforced an ordinance that called for a maximum fine of $20. Under the new state law violators are now subject to a fine of between $100 and $500 as well as license revocation.

Leaves Ordered for Delegates to AFL-CIO

The following letter has been sent to all department heads by Mayor Collins:

GENTLEMEN:

You are hereby authorized to grant leave of absence, without loss of pay, to employees of your department who are duly accredited delegates of the Massachusetts State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, of Massachusetts, so that they may attend their annual convention to be held in Worcester, Massachusetts, September 13, 14, and 15, 1963, provided that such leave of absence will not impair departmental operation to such an extent that it will be necessary to incur overtime expense or the employment of temporary personnel to perform the duties of said delegate(s) during the permitted absence.

If overtime expense or employment of substitute personnel will be required due to such absence, then said delegate(s) may be granted leave of absence only with loss of pay. Travel time allowed.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

The new REJECTION sticker for the coming September 1-October 15 motor vehicle inspection period is seen above along with the official fall, 1963, inspection sticker.

The REJECTION sticker will be a circle, 3 inches in diameter, with the word "REJECTED" in capital letters printed across the center strip. The center strip will be red. The background for the remainder of the sticker will be white with black printing.

U. S. To Help Boston With TB Victims

Mayor Collins announced that Boston has been made recipient of a special $102,260 grant for a tuberculosis project by the U. S. Public Health Service. The money will be used for out-patient medical treatment and nursing service to follow up ambulatory patients who have been discharged from hospitals and sanatoria. Presently about 1,000 patients are receiving chemotherapy at the Boston Health Department TB Clinics, according to Dr. John T. Foley of the department.

Five Veteran Officers End Police Careers

Five veteran Boston police officers, known to law enforcement officers throughout the metropolitan area and beyond, have retired. Each has a record of 43 years of service in the department.

The officers are:

Capt. Leo E. Hoban, 66, of 37A Codman Hill avenue, Dorchester, commanding officer of Mattapan's Division 19. A member of the "Flying Squad" in 1963, Hoban was appointed captain in 1949.

Sergt.-Detective Marcus E. Madden, 66, of 84 Fairbanks street, Brighton, an investigator at Division 11 in Fields Corner. Sergeant Madden was a member of the Rackets Squad from 1945 to 1950 and has received 10 departmental commendations.

Sergt. Michael P. Carr, 66, of 8 Countryside Drive, Dorchester, who is the department's senior sergeant in time of service. He is retiring from Charlestown's Division 15.

Sergt. Francis E. Lanagan, 65, for 53 Wren street, West Roxbury etires from Division 18 in Hyde, Park after serving there for 18 years.

Patrolman John J. McDonald, 66, of 27 St. Rose street, Jamaica Plain, who has been assigned to Division 15 in Charlestown since 1941.

Federal Action Wins C. of C. Approval

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce praised the Federal Urban Renewal Administration for granting "conditional approval" for construction of the new Boston City Hall in the Government Center.

Earl P. Stevenson, chairman of the board of the Chamber, said, "We are pleased with the decision even though it was on condition that the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the Boston City Council must yet approve the sale of the land to the Government Center Commission which will build the new City Hall.

"Mayor Collins and Boston Redevelopment Authority Administrator Edward J. Logue are to be congratulated for their perseverance and promptness in pursuing a path of progress for the Center. We earnestly urge the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the City Council to give their earliest approval on this vital plan so that construction can take place immediately."

Ann E. Curran

Mrs. Ann E. (Zollo) Curran, widow of Dr. Louis F. Curran, long a member of the nursing staff at Boston City Hospital and of the Hospital's Nursing School faculty, died August 16.

She was a member of the Guild of St. Radegonde, the Boston Archdiocese Council of Catholic Nurses, and the Boston City Hospital School of Nursing Alumnae Association. She made her home at Hotel Hemenway, Back Bay.

She leaves two sons, Robert G., assistant director of the Montclair Community Hospital, Montclair, New Jersey, and James C. Curran, a member of the United States diplomatic service, now stationed in Johannesburg, South Africa.

A large delegation of former associates at City Hospital attended funeral services August 19 at Immaculate Conception Church, South End, when the Very Rev. Francis J. Gilday, S.J., officiated at a Solemn Requiem Mass.

Officers Who Faced Death Face Citations

Patrolmen Dennis F. Casey and John L. Ridlon, members of the Police Headquarters Vice Squad, who faced death as they disarmed and placed under arrest an ex-convict in a Washington Street lounge, were named in citations by the Record American-Sunday Advertiser.

As Patrolmen-of-the-Month of July they were presented with $50 checks along with specially engraved citations signed by Police Commissioner Edmund L. McNamara and Publisher Harold G. Kern.

Informed that the ex-convict had made threats on the lives of three Charlestown boys, the officers confronted him in the lounge and made ready to search him. He is alleged to have knocked Casey's badge to the floor and jammed an automatic pistol against the officer's stomach. He was held in $50,000 bail pending trial of an indictment charging assault with intent to murder.

Irene M. Tighe

Miss Irene M. Tighe, head nurse at the Boston City Hospital obstetrical ward for more than a decade, died in New Bedford recently. Born in West Boylston she lived in New Bedford for 20 years before entering Boston City Hospital School of Nursing.

She was a member of the Boston City Hospital Army Nurse Corps unit in England during World War II. She held membership in the Guild of St. Radegonde, the Boston Archdiocese Council of Catholic Nurses, the Boston City Hospital Alumni Association, and the All Nurses Post, American Legion.

Funeral services were held August 17 at St. James Church, New Bedford.

STILL MORE SKYLINE—Here is the artist's sketch of two 26-story apartment buildings planned for construction in the east sector of Prudential Center in Boston's Back Bay. The new buildings will house 271 units each, serviced by underground parking accommodating 700 cars. The apartments are being built as a part of Prudential Center, a multimillion-dollar integrated civic-business complex, with 52-story office building, several commercial buildings, a 29-story hotel, and a $12 million Civic Auditorium, now under construction.

Logan Launches Huge Expansion Program

Bids and contracts for millions of dollars worth of expansion work at the Boston Airport will be announced soon, according to the Massachusetts Port Authority.

Last week the contract for a $50,000 launching ramp and boat-house for an emergency, jet-powered boat was awarded. The facility will be situated on the shoreline next run to Runway 25, opposite Winthrop. It is due for completion in the spring.

Subbids were also opened for the $6 million North Terminal and de luxe restaurant. General bids will be opened September 5.

Bids on another $1.5 million in improvements were opened. Included are new service roads and sewers, security and blast fencing, taxiway extension, and demolition of an engine test stand.

Later this month general bids will be opened for renovation of passenger facilities for Eastern, American and United Airlines.

Piles are now being driven, the Authority announced in a progress report, for an emergency building to house personnel and equipment of emergency and state police forces. It will go up next to the fire-crash building and will include bays for six fire and rescue trucks.

Meanwhile the new Weather Bureau wing at the site of the old administration building is near-progressing on schedule at the International Terminal, which is being expanded from 21,920 to 97,430 square feet.

Also planned are refurbishing of the control tower lobby and installation of two elevators.

Abandoned Automobiles

A common urban problem—abandoned autos—increased alarmingly in the city during recent months.

The ban on open burning, coupled with a decline in the demand for scrap metal, stimulated the rise.

Over a thousand derelict cars can be found in Boston.

A jump in the weekly accumulation—one dozen—is foreseen.

The Governor has proposed a solid waste disposal survey which would include the abandoned auto problem.

Area junk dealers have been either reluctant or unequipped to handle abandoned cars.

The city has of late located limited disposal facilities.

Some of the removal costs can apparently be met with urban renewal funds.

The seriousness of the situation is suggested by a new law aimed at those who abandon autos.

William F. Keenan

Patrolman William F. Keenan of the Boston Police Department died August 17 at City Hospital, victim of injuries suffered July 5 when he was struck by an automobile at Upham's Corner. He was attached to the Fields Corner Division and made his home at 80 Gardena street, Brighton.

He had been a member of the department since 1929.

Funeral services were held August 21 at St. Columbkille's Church, Brighton.

Survivors include a son, William F., Jr., of Virginia; five daughters, Mrs. Gladys D. Callahan of Brighton, Mrs. Shirley A. Carr of Winthrop, Mrs. June M. Kelly and Janet L. Keenan, both of Framingham, and Elaine D. Keenan, Brighton; a brother, and two sisters.

Ground Broken for Logan Crash Station

Ground was broken recently at Logan International Airport for a $567,000 fire and crash station to house 31 crewmen and 26 State troopers with six fire fighting and rescue trucks.

The facility will be so equipped that garage doors will be operated electrically from a central alarm room and fire-fighting foam will be pumped directly into tank trucks from a storage system.

CONTRACTS AWARDED WITHOUT ADVERTISING

The Mayor has approved the award of contracts, without advertising, based on the following communications:

BUILDING DEPARTMENT.

DEMOLITION OF BUILDINGS

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

The following houses have been condemned by me as being in an unsafe and dangerous condition. Notices have been sent to the owners, but they have taken no steps to abate the dangerous condition. These buildings are a menace to the neighborhood. The locations follow: 58 Harvard street, Ward 2; 60-62 Harvard street, Ward 2.

Accordingly, in conformity with the provisions of chapter 479, Acts of 1938, as amended, particularly section 116d thereof, I have asked and have received your Honor's permission to enter these various premises and to raze the structures.

Bidders were requested to submit an aggregate bid for the entire lot of houses, but to break down their bids to show the charge against each separate address. This breakdown is necessary for later departmental use in billing demolition costs incurred against the individual property owner of each house.

We have solicited invitation bids, award to be made to the lowest qualified bidder, and have received the following:

Central.—58 Harvard street, $1,190; 60-62 Harvard street, $1,190; total, $2,380.

Berardi.—58 Harvard street, $1,440; 60-62 Harvard street, $1,440; total, $2,880.

Mystic.—58 Harvard street, $1,750; 60-62 Harvard street, $2,475; total, $4,225.

Allstate.—58 Harvard street, $1,345; 60-62 Harvard street, $1,345; total, $2,690.

Polcari.—58 Harvard street, $1,660; 60-62 Harvard street, $1,315; total, $2,975.

Central Building Wrecking Company has submitted the lowest aggregate bid. This company is thoroughly familiar with this work, it carries all necessary insurance and it has done satisfactory work for this department in the past.

Bids for the demolition of individual houses were not requested because it would be a practical physical impossibility for several different wreckers to conduct efficient wrecking operations simultaneously in individual houses. Under such conditions, there would be much mutual interference, and each wrecker would be exposed to severe hazards not under his control, by the operations of adjacent wreckers. I also believe that the aggregate cost of individual bids would be much higher than the cost of one bid for the lot, and that handling the houses as one unit results in lower administrative costs to the city than would result from handling the houses as separate bids and contracts. Unit handling results, however, in this case, in a contract price $2,000 or over the statutory limitation upon awards that can be made without advertising, unless your Honor approves the transaction.

Accordingly, the general public safety so requiring, I ask your Honor's approval for the awarding, without advertising, as required in the city charter, of a contract in the sum of $2,380 to the Central Building Wrecking Company.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT E. YORK,
Building Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

MISCELLANEOUS FURNITURE

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

On May 25, 1963, this department publicly invited bids by invitation published in the City Record for furnishing, delivering and setting in place miscellaneous furniture for several schools. The bids were received and publicly opened and read on June 6, 1963.

Thereafter, with the approval of your Honor, contracts were awarded to five different contractors for various items of furniture as were included in the proposal. One of the awardees of such contracts was the Jarmak Company who on July 24, 1963, entered into a contract with the City of Boston for furnishing furniture and more particularly desks and chairs as covered by Item 23.

The aforementioned Item 23 was for the furnishing of 721 desks and 1,322 chairs, for which the Jarmak Company had submitted the lowest price.

This department now finds it has need for an additional 105 desks and 105 chairs of the same kind as are being furnished to the city under the Jarmak Company contract. The Jarmak Company is willing to furnish and deliver to the city an additional 105 desks and 105 chairs and will charge therefore at the same rate per unit as is being paid under the current contract for which items as stated above this contractor was the lowest bidder.

Therefore, in view of the fact that the time to procure these materials prior to the opening of school is very short, I respectfully request the written permission of your Honor to dispense with advertising anew and to amend the present contract with the Jarmak Company in the sum not to exceed two thousand one hundred and eighty-three dollars and 40 cents ($2,183.40) to provide for the furnishing and delivering to the city of an additional 105 desks and 105 chairs under Item 23 of the contract.

Respectfully yours,
W. A. MCPHERSON,
Superintendent of Construction.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of City Council.

Monday, August 5, 1963.

Regular meeting of the City Council held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, at 2 P.M., President HINES in the chair. Absent, Councilor Sullivan.

The Right Reverend Christopher P. Griffin, chaplain of the City Council, was escorted to the rostrum.

INVOCATION BY THE RIGHT REVEREND CHRISTOPHER P. GRIFFIN.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

God of our fathers, in Thy spirit was this nation born and by Thy spirit has it survived. We ask Thy blessing upon the President and members of this Council. Endow each councilor with wisdom and with zeal, the prudence, the honor, the courage, to clearly understand, bravely accept, and nobly carry out their duties in the high vocation of public service. Political office is truly a sublime vocation. May all who are called by Thee to lead and legislate, to grant rewards and punishments to govern and to judge—may each be prompted by the obedience like Abraham's, the wisdom and prudence of Solomon, the justice of Joseph, the zeal of the baptist, and the infinite charity of the Christ.

This venerable city is steeped in sorrow for a public servant. A police officer, who served the people with highest devotion and dedication, and served unto death. Patrolman James B. O'Leary represents all that is highest, best, noblest, in public service. He has answered his last roll call, walked his last beat, and to his heartbroken bereaved family said his last "goodbye." Suddenly, bravely, he died in service to others. Through the intercession of St. Michael, protector and patron of police, may Christ be the pledge and the promise and the assurance that Patrolman O'Leary will rise and live again. No longer in danger, nor pain, nor darkness. He will rise with the grace, the majesty, the beauty, the unmarred excellence, and the crowning loveliness that was the image of God, in paradise. Your city prays that the peace, joy, and perpetual light be yours, Officer O'Leary, forever. Amen.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

The meeting was opened with the salute to the Flag.

I have discussed this matter with Mr. Frederick W. Gow, Chief Engineer of the Metropolitan District Commission on July 25, 1963, who has informed me that there has been no significant changes made in the boundary lines to date in the flood control work being done on the Neponset River at this point.

However, Mr. Gow further advised that there may well be some very definite changes to come, and when the project is completed, correct markers will be established on the new Boston-Milton boundary lines.

Respectfully,

JAMES W. HALEY, Commissioner.

MINORITY REPORT OF COUNCILLOR
PIEMONTE, MEMBER OF COMMITTEE ON URBAN REDEVELOPMENT, RE-HABILITATION AND RENEWAL, RE
GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

Subject: Urban Renewal—Government Center.

Urban renewal, a program subsidized by the federal government with the local government paying one-third of the cost came into being because of people. It was intended as a means of removing slums and providing decent housing. The program was broadened to take in commercial properties if they constituted a blighted or decadent area.

Government Center (Background):

April 25, 1960, Council receives "Surveys and Plans" for approval; May 9, 1960, Council approves "Surveys and Plans."

May 5, 1961, Council receives resolve for early acquisition; June 5, 1961, Council approves resolve for early acquisition.

December 17, 1962, Council receives early disposition of site for new federal office building; December 27, 1962, Council approves early disposition (this building is now under construction).

June 10, 1963, Council receives for its approval final plan submitted; July 22, 1963, Council rejects plan submitted.*

*Plan as submitted on June 10, 1963 is enlarged by Parcel 8 which consists of the taking of two buildings on State street: No. 10 State street, an office building assessed for $400,000; No. 28 State street, Merchants National Bank, assessed for $1,960,000.

Proposed for Parcel 8:

The erection of a tower building, the Merchants National Bank to be the prime tenant.

How Carried Out:

BRA would take these two buildings by eminent domain, demolish them, clear the land, and then sell it to the developer at a fraction of the cost with a net loss to the taxpayer of 2½ to 3 million dollars.

Query?

Since these are two of the finest buildings on State street can they qualify for urban renewal subsidy under the test of blight or decadent? Obviously not.

The only other avenue is whether the doctrine of "governmental purposes in the public interest" would be applicable.

At the hearing the BRA alleged that the addition of Parcel 8 was necessary for an adequate traffic pattern. But the traffic experts themselves state it should not be added if this were the only reason.

The BRA alleged that the Government Center can absorb the additional office space that the surplus floors of the proposed Merchants Bank tower building would provide.

How about the recent completion of the Travelers Building, its proposed addition, the White Fund Building, the One Center Plaza Office Building, the British Building, and vacancies that will be created when city, state, and federal agencies now renting move into the new Federal Office Building, the State Office Building, and the new City Hall. A tabulation shows the space thus available far surpasses the projected needs.

Solution:

Proceed with the construction of the new City Hall and the One Center Office Building under early acquisition as was done with the Federal Office Building last December.

Interest the Merchants National Bank in a new building on the vacant land already available within the Government Center.

Fill the post of land disposition officer in the BRA so that the city may avail itself of professional service in interesting prospective parties in developing the land which has already been cleared. (This position and the salary for it has been included in the budget for the past 2 years.)

Proposed Developer's Interest?

The interest of the proposed developer is understandable. He would acquire the choice site on State street and at a mere fraction of its cost have the Merchants National Bank as its prime tenant, and an arrangement whereby he would pay an annual tax of $500 thousand per year on a 20 million dollar building, instead of 2 million dollars per annum as would be the case if the building were assessed for the full value.

And All for What?

Boston gets no new business. The Merchants National Bank, now located on this site is going to be the prime tenant of this new building. And because of the favorable acquisition through city and federal subsidy and because of the tax agreement, the bank building will be in a position to lure tenants to their surplus floors from the neighboring properties.

Comments:

The hearings have also produced evidence which on technical grounds could be sufficient to exclude the proposed development of Parcel 8.

The federal law provides that "no understanding with respect to, or contract for the disposition of land shall be entered into prior to" the fulfilling of certain procedural requirements. Whether or not there has been an understanding without or before meeting the specific required procedure is a matter of fact to be decided.

I have the privilege of serving as a member of the committee on Housing and Urban Renewal of the American Bar Association, the only Massachusetts member thus serving. Because of various public statements being made, I contacted William Slayton, Commissioner of Urban Renewal, by telephone this afternoon at 3:05 P.M.

Commissioner Slayton stated that the Government Center is not in jeopardy because of the recent Council action; that other cities have rejected original plans and later approved modified plans; that any plan in order to qualify for federal funds must meet the approval of the Mayor and City Council as well as the BRA; that he had questioned his New England Field Director W. Gerald Lyons on the statement attributed to him and that Mr. Lyons had not made the statement.

At Monday's meeting of the Council I introduced resolves requesting the Mayor to direct the BRA to forward to the Council for the Council's acceptance and approval early disposition resolves for the site of the New City Hall and One Center Plaza Office Building as was done with the Federal Office Building now under construction. The rules were suspended and the resolves adopted.

I shall continue to press for the early disposition of these sites and any other site of land for which we may have a developer.

I have been and am now ready to vote for the Government Center Plan without the addition of Parcel 8.

NEW BOSTON NEEDS MARCH SONG BUT B.C.'s "FOR BOSTON" MAKES PERFECT FILLER-IN

By Ed Drohan

When the crack Boston Fire Department Band swung down Tremont street approaching Mayor John F. Collins' reviewing stand on the Common, it broke into the stirring strains of For Boston.

Crowds on both sides of the street came up with an electrifying, spontaneous roar. Precision lightning sped the feet of marchers. Chins on the reviewing stand were lifted high. Girls in windows overhead flung confetti to the skies instead of down on the paraders.

For Boston does that to you.

The occasion happened to be the recent big parade of the Elks. It could have been any parade which has moved over Boston streets for these many decades.

No band anywhere can render the stirring Boston College march better than the city firemen's band unless it's B.C.'s own band or possibly the perennially great Harvard bands which really bang it out.

For Boston made its bow more than 40 years ago. That would be 'way back around 1919 when the immortal Frank Cavanaugh introduced his version of the philosophy—"There is no glory in defeat." He demonstrated his thesis on the floor of Yale Bowl with 11 guys who could play football and four or five stand-ins also dressed in gridiron working clothes.

The Iron Major beat a potentially great 40-man squad of very talented Elks that Saturday afternoon. He returned the following year to do it in more convincing fashion. After that B.C. never got an invitation to match football talents in the New Haven bowl of concrete.

On each of those fall Saturday nights in 1919 and 1920 they kept playing a new march about Boston in the Hotel Taft ballroom. Only once or twice were the bandsmen asked to fish out Boola Boola from the stack of music on their fragile stands.

Born in New Haven?

Maybe For Boston was really born in New Haven, Connecticut, on those two Saturday afternoons. At least, it was in New Haven it suffered its first saturation point of exposure.

Unless it has the imprimatur of someone like John Philip Sousa, overexposure and time can kill any march ever written. When B.C. hit its own bowl era back in the 40s, the days of Frank Leahy and the late Denny Meyers, For Boston was as fresh and stimulating as it was on the dire nights when they first tried it out in the basement of the Gasson Building out at the Heights.

The other day a very fine Broadway-oriented group from a musical about to open in Boston landed on School street. It serenaded Mayor Collins with an original number called Boston Is Where It All Began. Sounded intriguing, too. All about our beginnings and Revolutionary Days. Patriotic and all that.

The Mayor liked it. But he was noncommittal. For Boston was still ringing in his ears.

Maybe an editorial writer of the Boston Globe put his finger on one need of the New Boston of the moment. He sort of questioned, in a mild sort of way, the city's moral right to keep borrowing Harvard's Our Director and For Boston as semiofficial musical seals for the city.

When a great musical organization from New York's Harlem came aswinging down Tremont street in the Elk's parade, it ripped the pigeons right off Boston Common and had flags standing starch-stiff with—The Sidewalks of New York.

"Southie's My Home Town" is excellent but its lyrics are somewhat controversial and after all only one man who ever lived can sing it the way it should be sung—Southie's own Benny Drohan.

The Eyes of Texas has a lot of punch and you can't downgrade California, Here I Come.

It would take a couple of fine-print pages to list all the contributions of Bostonians and Greater Bostonians to Broadway, Hollywood, and the world field of popular music. They are famed in their field.

Yet, the composer who comes up with a real Boston song is going to strike his pick deep into pay dirt—either gold or immortality.

While we are waiting for him (or her) we are content to let For Boston serve.

It's better than Dr. Scholl for the feet.

It's better than Dr. Paul Dudley White for the heart.

City Hospital Nursing School Graduates Class of 54 at Hancock Hall, September 13

Boston City Hospital School of Nursing Commencement Exercises will be held September 11, 12, and 13, with 54 young women receiving degrees. The school is the third oldest in the United States.

Speaker will be Dr. Sydney Farber, director of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation, which is housed in the nationally famed Jimmy Building of Children's Hospital. The foundation was founded in 1948 and Dr. Farber has been the moving spirit in the popular fund-raising campaigns which have made it an outstanding factor in the field of cancer research.

Diplomas will be presented to the graduates at John Hancock Hall on Friday, September 13, by President William H. Ellis, Jr., of the hospital board of trustees. Candidates will be presented by Miss Margaret B. Welch, R.N., director of hospital nursing services and head of the Nursing School.

Mary McCulloch to Retire After 17 Years

Mrs. Mary McCulloch, employed as a secretary in the Central Office of the Boston Housing Authority, retired after 17 years of service.

Prior to her transfer to the Central Office in 1953, Mrs. McCulloch worked in the management office of the Mission Hill development.

The widow of the late Albert McCulloch, she resides with her brother on Montvale street in Roslindale.

Doherty—Doherty

Miss Rosemary Doherty, secretary for the Citizens' Relations Department of the Mayor's office, will become the bride of John Doherty, September 7, at St. Margaret's Church, Dorchester.

Both bride and bridegroom are residents of Dorchester.

The bride, who merely annexes a Mrs. to her own family name was tendered an informal prewedding reception as she took leave of her duties at City Hall.

Hub Commuters Can Relax 'til January

Greater Boston's commuters and the community itself drew a collective sigh of relief last week.

The more than 20,000 suburbanites who commute to the city by train daily can relax—at least for another few months.

There should be no further transportation problems facing them at least until next January when the Federally-aided Mass Transportation Commission's demonstration with the Boston & Maine Railroad comes to an end.

Local officials concerned over the strike threat were prepared for an all-night vigil, ready to issue temporary bus line permits and to call additional crews and vehicles in to meet the situation.

The public generally took it all in stride. It had seen the same threat averted on two previous occasions and to the end were optimistic that Congress would act to avert the walkout.

Indians Had Word for It—Try and Spell It Out

State Director Wilton Vaughn of the State Division of Motorboats, inspired by the recent outboard races on the Charles River which attracted thousands, recently asked that the National Water Ski Championships be brought to Massachusetts in '64.

Said Vaughn, "We have an ideal lake for the Championships which was named by the Indians, Lake Chargoggagoggmanchauggagoggchaubunagungamaugg, commonly called Webster Lake. It is considered by water ski experts a perfect facility."

It covers 1,188 acres and could accommodate 40,000 spectators. (One for each letter maybe.)

It would be great for the skiers but how about the head writers and the copy desk men when they started fooling around that Indian name?

Who said the American Indians were a taciturn people?

City's Law Officer; C. of C. Plead for Northeast Airlines Retention

Corporation Counsel Arthur G. Coffey, representing the city and Mayor Collins, and Vice-President Thomas G. Brown, Jr., of the State Street Trust Company, representing the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, pleaded for action in behalf of Northeast Airlines' Florida runs before the Senate Aviation Committee in Washington.

Coffey directed attention of the committee to the vast New Boston program and the sound expressions of confidence in the city's future represented by plans of private investors to invest millions in the city. He noted particularly the great Prudential Center and the British-financed downtown office building.

He branded the recent decision of the CAB in cutting Northeast's New York-to-Florida lines a "step backwards and contrary to past policies of that agency."

Coffey noted that in past decisions the CAB had found that multiple carrier service between points created "quantity and quality of service."

He pointed out that in the 1958 CAB decision, the agency ruled that in a market served by only two carriers "there is a strong tendency on the part of the remaining carriers to underschedule or to have load factors."

He explained that by load factors he meant that there were more passengers than there were seats available.

Mr. Brown told the committee:

"Boston is unique. It is small in area, yet it is the busy core of a vast metropolitan area which comprises 76 cities and towns. In these communities live more than 2,589,660 people, or better than 50 per cent of the entire population of Massachusetts. Boston ranks seventh in the number of airline departures; eighth in the number of passengers emplaned; eighth in tonnage of cargo emplaned, and seventh in the rate of growth for passengers emplaned for the period 1950-1961.

"Metropolitan Boston is a healthy and growing air market.

It is the key metropolitan area in the New England region. Most major airline markets in the United States have a minimum of three carriers. Boston being a major air market certainly qualifies for retention of a third carrier.

"The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce is desirous of keeping the air service now provided by Northeast Airlines—not for the sake of saving Northeast Airlines—but for the sake of providing not simply adequate service, but excellent service throughout the New England area.

"In corporate Boston alone a one billion-dollar urban renewal plan is well under way. Work has started on a new Government Center which will cost an ultimate $200 million; renewal of Boston's historic and scenic waterfront is well into final plans; the $100 million Prudential Center will be completed next year; plus many other areas throughout the city. But perhaps the most unique project anywhere in America is the construction of a 34-story office building backed by British investors. We have faith in Boston. It has a great present and a greater future."

J. A. McCarthy

Jeremiah A. McCarthy, veteran Boston fire fighter, died recently. He was 65 and made his home at 30 Playstead road, Dorchester. He had been assigned at Fire Headquarters. Previously he served for 25 years with Ladder 2 in East Boston.

A native of South Boston, he served in the Navy in World War I aboard a destroyer in the Atlantic and Mediterranean, and was a shoe worker before his appointment to the Fire Department.

He leaves his wife, the former Nora T. McCarthy of East Boston; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Burke and Mrs. Lillian Cadigan, both of North Quincy; a son, John J. McCarthy of Nashua; and 16 grandchildren. Burial will be in New Calvary Cemetery.

Francis J. Emery

Francis J. Emery, former director of industrial arts in the Boston schools, died Monday, September 2. He was 76 and made his home at 293 Stratford street, West Roxbury.

He was born in Boston and was a graduate of Mechanic Arts High School, Lowell Institute, and received a master of education degree from Boston University.

During World War I he was head of the naval aviation gunnery department at MIT and later was officer-in-charge of aviation armorers at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Mr. Emery taught at Mechanics High School prior to 1942, when he was appointed assistant director of industrial arts. He became director in 1947 and held that position until he retired in 1957.

He leaves a wife, Doris (Fassnacht) Emery; three daughters, Mrs. Karl Koch of Concord, New Hampshire, Mrs. Robert Meanix of Haddonfield, New Jersey, and Mrs. James J. Curran of Cape Town, South Africa, and two brothers, George of Springfield and John of Cohasset.

Youth Educational Assistance Seeks Funds to Carry on Excellent Work

The Third Annual Appeal of Youth Educational Assistance, Inc., which began September 3 and to continue through to October 3, 1963, has been announced:

YEA is a nonprofit organization established by Mayor John F. Collins and several community-minded citizens who were interested in providing financial assistance for the training and, in some cases, retraining of school drop-outs and poorly trained high school graduates.

Director James A. Travers of the Boston Youth Activities Bureau, serves as secretary-treasurer of YEA and administers the program.

Referrals are accepted from teachers, social workers, clergy and other responsible citizens as well as from the youths themselves.

Professional counseling and testing are provided and where possible, the youngsters may select the school of their choice, provided they have at least a fifty-fifty chance of successfully completing the course.

Over 125 youths have been assisted in one manner or other. Forty were given assistance in obtaining further education and training. The remainder were assisted in returning to regular public school programs, placed in either apprenticeship or trainee positions and many were aided in obtaining employment since they were not able to accept additional training, or the courses desired were not offered outside regular high schools.

"While it is too early to prove scientifically the success of YEA, we have observed great improvement in the attitude, personal appearance and emotional stability of most of the youngsters assisted," says Director Travers. In the case of the few failures we have experienced, there was usually extenuating circumstances that contributed immeasurably to their quitting the program.

As of August 1, YEA has raised approximately $11,000—$3,000 of which came from Mayor John F. Collins' Field Day Fund. In addition to the cash raised, scholarships worth between $12,000—$15,000 were donated by various private schools. A balance of less than $1,000 remains.

Twenty-four boys and girls are qualified and waiting for assistance in the coming few weeks. Sixteen youths already helped will be completing their courses in the coming year.

Instruction ranging from cooks, baker training, hairdressers, electrical training, and refrigeration to professional secretarial courses has been underwritten by YEA.

YEA has made every dollar donated to it go a long way—but we still need much more to make a sizeable dent in this number one problem among our youth.

YEA has been endorsed editorially by all of Boston's daily newspapers and by such outstanding individuals as Richard Cardinal Cushing, Dr. Frederick J. Gillis, Arthur Goldberg, U. S. Supreme Court, and the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

All contributions are tax deductible and should be sent to YEA, Pinebank, Boston 30, Mass.

33 Elks Delegates Donate Blood at BCH—Annual Donor Day May Be Adopted

When the Grand Lodge and Grand Temple suite of officers of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks left Boston after their highly successful national convention, they took with them an idea that will help broaden the organization's great work in many diversified fields of action.

All because of the fact that on the day of the spectacular convention parade, three of the delegates were stricken ill—one of them seriously.

The convention drew well over 50,000 to Boston. It was one of the best organized, best behaved national conclaves ever held here. The work of the over-all convention committee over a period of months was clearly evident.

If you were one of the thousands who watched the parade you probably noticed that every marching unit was accompanied by a uniformed nurse carrying a small bag.

The bag contained emergency medical aids.

Their services were not required for the most part—only for a few blisters, slight ankle twists, and the like. But they were there if they were needed. So were many members of the medical staff headed by Dr. Wilbur Strickland of Philadelphia, grand medical director. On hand to make the visiting physicians at home was Dr. Robert O. Philipps of Boston, assistant grand medical director.

However, before the day was out, three of the delegates among the many thousands required medical attention. They were brought to Boston City Hospital. Two of the patients were acutely ill but not dangerously so. A third required surgical attention and blood transfusions were necessary.

Word was relayed to convention headquarters at the Statler-Hilton. The transfusion need was reported to Dr. Strickland and Dr. Philipps.

A call for volunteer donors was issued. Within minutes a group of 33 Elks, headed by Doctors Strickland and Philipps and Mrs. Elizabeth G. Goss, R.N., of Buffalo, were on their way to the hospital.

At the hospital they were received by Dr. James V. Sacchetti, assistant superintendent, who escorted them to the Blood Bank on the ninth floor of the hospital's Dowling Building.

As the donations were made Dr. Strickland, Dr. Philipps, and Dr. Sacchetti discussed the tremendous need for blood in today's major hospitals. The two Elks officials came up with an idea.

"This," pointed out Dr. Strickland, "is the anniversary year of the Emancipation. I will urge that it mark the opening of an annual event. I'm sure our Order will agree with me, when I propose that it hold a Blood Donation Day once every year."

Air Rights for Fire House Gets House O.K.

The House, on voice vote and without debate, approved a bill permitting the City of Boston to use the top of the Central Artery tunnel at Congress street and Atlantic avenue for the site of a fire station.

The Bill had already cleared the Senate.

Harry Truman served with artillery units of the A. E. F. in World War I and saw action in the Vosges, Meuse-Argonne, and St. Mihiel fronts.

WELFARE COSTS FOR JULY

Following is a summary of the Welfare Department for July:

During the month, $3,756,312 was allocated for the support and medical care of 28,532 public assistance cases. Caseload activity involved 1,690 requests for aid with 1,325, or 78.4 per cent, being approved and 365 rejected; in addition 1,003 cases were closed. The $131.54 average case cost was disbursed at a ratio of two thirds of direct payments to clients and one third to vendors primarily for medical care.

Old Age Assistance: For the first time during 1963, the downward trend in this category has been reversed. Although 134 cases were closed, 167 applications were approved due mainly to depletion of resources. The current caseload of 11,591 required an expenditure of $1,014,914 for an average payment of $87.38, an amount below the June figure because of a decrease in the number of clients requiring medical services.

Medical Assistance for Aged: Even though 6,262 clients were eligible for medical assistance during the month, only 4,542, or just over 70 per cent, required the services available under this program. Monthly payments totaled $843,272, an average of $185.50 per person. This comparatively high average cost is explained by the proportion of these recipients requiring hospital or nursing home care. Of the 415 requests proposed, 280 were approved while 135 were rejected or withdrawn. There were 172 cases closed with death being the primary cause.

Aid to Dependent Children: Although unemployment of the wage earner was an important factor, circumstances resulting from marital estrangement was the predominate reason for 355 families qualifying for this category during the month. With 275 closings, the net increase of 80 cases raises the caseload to 7,115 families. Grants average $177.53 for a total of $1,279,667.

Disability Assistance: Expenditures for this program were $448,746 with approximately half being earmarked for medical expenses. Divided among 3,172 recipients, the average cost per client was $141.41. Approval was given to 121 applications while 83, or almost 40 per cent, were rejected by the State Medical Review Team.

General Relief: July found 346 out of 402 applicants, nearly nine out of ten, being aided under this category because of unemployment. Since the unemployed applicants lacked residence requirements or because there were no children involved, they were ineligible for aid under the Aid to Dependent Children unemployment program. The active caseload of 2,019 accounted for an expenditure of $169,713, an outlay of $84 per case.

APPROVAL OF EARLY DISPOSITION OF CITY HALL SITE, GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, August 8, 1963.
To the Honorable City Council.
Gentlemen:

So that construction on the new City Hall within the Government Center Project may proceed, the Redevelopment Authority has approved the disposition of the City Hall site (Parcel 6) under the procedure followed in the case of the Federal Office Building earlier this year.

Bids have been advertised on the City Hall construction and will be opened on August 20. Title to the site must be conveyed before an award can be made.

The following documents, in connection with this proposal, are submitted for your consideration:

1. Proposed resolution, meeting the requirements of the federal government, for consideration and adoption by the City Council.
2. Consent by the city, to be executed by the Mayor after authorization and approval by the City Council.
3. Vote of the Boston Redevelopment Authority requesting the authorization of the Mayor and City Council.
4. Map of the area showing the City Hall parcel.

Attached to the proposed resolution for consideration and adoption by the City Council are the building controls and restrictions for the City Hall site. These controls and restrictions are extracted from the Government Center Urban Renewal Plan which has been considered by you at some length and which were the subject of extended public hearings.

Under Chapter 121 of the General Laws, and under the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, use of the procedure proposed requires appropriate consents by the Mayor and City Council, as well as the State Housing Board, Division of Urban and Industrial Renewal, and the Housing and Home Finance Agency of the federal government.

Upon the consent of these various bodies, construction of the new City Hall can begin; the public interest would be served by beginning this construction as soon as possible. A considerable number of consents by public bodies must be sought under the law. The proposals for these sites have already been closely examined by your Honorable Body. Consequently, I respectfully request that this resolution be adopted so that the other approvals can be sought immediately.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

RESOLUTION OF BOSTON CITY COUNCIL.

Whereas, The Boston Redevelopment Authority (hereinafter called the Authority) has taken and acquired certain areas in the City of Boston in connection with a proposed Government Center Project; and

Whereas, The Authority desires to dispose of a certain portion of the areas acquired (shown as Parcel 6 in the map attached hereto as Exhibit A) to be redeveloped and used in accordance with the Land Use Provisions and Building and Other Requirements set forth in Exhibit B attached hereto, which provisions and requirements will be included in the Urban Renewal Plan for the entire Project Area upon its approval and adoption; and

Whereas, The City Council of the City of Boston reaffirms the City of Boston's obligation with respect to the early land acquisition loan and the covenant executed between the City of Boston and the Boston Redevelopment Authority which has been assigned to the United States Government; now, therefore be it

Resolved, By the City Council of the City of Boston, as follows:

1. That the City Council approves the Government Center project in principle and goes on record as intending to approve an urban renewal plan which will be consistent with the disposition of the City Hall site (Parcel 6).

2. That the Land Use Provisions and Building and Other Requirements set forth in Exhibit B attached hereto, which provisions and requirements will be included in the Urban Renewal Plan for the entire Project Area upon its approval and adoption, conform to the general and comprehensive plan for the locality as a whole and are hereby approved.

3. That the proposed disposition of Parcel 6 is hereby consented to.

4. That the redevelopment of Parcel 6 in accordance with the aforesaid provisions and requirements and in advance of the approval of the Urban Renewal Plan as a whole will promote the public welfare and is necessary and desirable for, and will promote, proper development of the community.

5. That the Mayor of the City of Boston be, and he hereby is, authorized and empowered to approve the Land Use Provisions and Building and Other Requirements set forth in Exhibit B attached hereto, and in the name and behalf of the City of Boston to consent to the proposed disposition of Parcel 6.

In City Council, 1963. Adopted.

Approved by the Mayor, 1963.

Attest:

(Seal)

City Clerk.

GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT CONSENT OF CITY OF BOSTON.

I, John F. Collins, Mayor, acting for and on behalf of the City of Boston, do hereby consent to the disposition by the Boston Redevelopment Authority of Parcel 6 of the Government Center Project Area (as shown in map attached hereto as Exhibit A) in accordance with the Land Use Provisions and Building and Other Requirements set forth in Exhibit B attached hereto, which provisions and requirements will be included in the Urban Renewal Plan for the total Project Area upon its approval and adoption.

Dated this day of , 1963.

JOHN F. COLLINS,
Mayor of the City of Boston.

EXHIBIT B.

LAND USE PROVISIONS, PLANNING OBJECTIVES, AND BUILDING REQUIREMENTS.

I. PLANNING AND DESIGN OBJECTIVES

A. Introduction

The general planning and design objectives of the Government Center Project are:

1. Revitalization of a key portion of downtown Boston through clearance, redevelopment and rehabilitation, thereby eliminating a decadent and substandard area.
2. Functional integration of new governmental facilities, supported by new private office facilities and ancillary consumer and business service facilities.
3. Introduction of new economic strength in the Government Center Project Area, thereby creating an effective center of activity functionally linked to the Retail Core, the Financial District, the Waterfront, the North Station, the Beacon Hill Governmental District, and the nearby residential areas of Beacon Hill and the West and North Ends.
4. Provision of adequate vehicular access to Government Center in order to emphasize the importance of Government Center to the entire Boston Peninsula, while at the same time improving mass transit and pedestrian access into and movement within the Project Area.

5. Creation of design continuity between the public and private parcels in order to heighten an awareness of the essential interrelation of all the Government Center buildings, open spaces, and pedestrian and vehicular ways.
6. Creation of a symbol of democratic government and its related institutions in the physical context of the surrounding historical districts, thereby continuing and improving the important role this area has played in the political, social, and cultural history of Boston and America.

B. Implementation

These general planning and design objectives will be implemented by:

1. The planning and design of public facilities: circulation systems (pedestrian, vehicular, and mass transit); open spaces; public buildings and other public facilities; and
2. Use and design controls on the disposition parcels, the rehabilitation parcels, and the buildings in the Project Area which are not proposed to be acquired.

Moreover, these general planning and design objectives are supplemented by the specific planning and design objectives set forth below. The developer of each disposition parcel and the owner of each rehabilitation parcel will be required not only to adhere to the particular controls and restrictions imposed upon his parcel, but also to give adequate consideration to the spirit of these objectives and principles in respect to land use, design, and building controls.

C. Circulation System Objectives

1. Pedestrian Movement

- (a) Provide a system of pedestrian paths linking open spaces, private and public buildings, mass transit and other public facilities within Government Center.
- (b) Provide a system of pedestrian paths linking Government Center and the adjacent districts of North Station, Quincy Market and the Waterfront, the North End, Beacon Hill, and the State House, the Retail Core, and the new West End Redevelopment Area.
- (c) Provide a system of pedestrian paths which can be incorporated into an improved system for Boston's historic Freedom Trail.
- (d) Provide a system of pedestrian paths, the principal elements of which are:
 - (1) paralleling systems of building arcades, walkways and open spaces starting at Pemberton square, linking the intersections of Cambridge, Tremont and Court streets, the Scollay Square MTA Station, Government Center Plaza, the Sears Crescent, new City Hall, Dock square, and Faneuil Hall (this varied system of open and sheltered walks will eventually tie into the historic Market and Blackstone-Union Streets area and thence the Waterfront on the east, and the North End Freedom Trail elements on the north);
 - (2) mid-block open walkway at Washington and State streets linking new City Hall to the Retail Core and the Financial District via Washington street;
 - (3) systems of arcaded walkways within the building lines of parcels facing Government Center Plaza, east of New Congress and west of Cambridge-Tremont, thus creating protected pedestrian paths serving these parcels while protecting and defining pedestrian movement where adjacent

- to important streets, and maximum flexibility for pedestrian desires and to give adequate access to all parcels.
2. Vehicular Circulation
 - (a) Provide a rational vehicular circulation pattern which:
 - (1) Maximizes re-use of existing rights-of-way;
 - (2) Eliminates awkward and dangerous intersections;
 - (3) Separates different types of vehicular movement according to function, speed, and destination;
 - (4) Creates super-blocks free of vehicular traffic;
 - (5) Make disposition sites more practical in terms of construction, loading, off-street parking, and other street standards; and
 - (6) Creates open spaces free of private vehicular traffic.
 - (b) Simplify and increase the total carrying capacity of routes by creating a hierarchy of vehicular movement which:
 - (1) discourages through-traffic from using streets within Government Center designed for Government Center private vehicular movement alone, and
 - (2) encourages such movement on the Central Artery and other appropriate through-traffic arteries.
 - (c) Increase the efficiency of the vehicular connections serving Government Center so as to provide a greater access to the Project Area by:
 - (1) creating at grade level the one-way connector street-pair formed by New Sudbury and New Chardon streets, and
 - (2) improving the existing State and Court streets as secondary streets.
 - (d) Design street width, capacity, pavement and related street equipment, in order to:
 - (1) enhance access to disposition parcels, and
 - (2) relate such designs to the height, massing, facade, treatment and use of disposition parcels.
 - (e) Minimize disposition parcel access from Cambridge-Tremont, New Congress-Merrimac, New Sudbury, New Chardon, State, and Court streets. Further improvement of private vehicular access and service systems within the purview of these controls will be accomplished by consultations between the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the disposition parcel developers.
 3. Mass Transit

Increase the capacity of the Scollay Square Station to meet the increased numbers of employees in, and visitors to, Government Center by the construction of a loop designed to allow more cars to enter and leave Government Center within any period of time, and design surface entrances to meet the following three criteria:

 - (a) that their design harmonize with the design of the immediate area in which they are located.
 - (b) that they be so located as to maximize access to the station they serve, and
 - (c) that their design reflect the capacity of the station they serve.
- D. Objectives for Public Improvements, Open Spaces and Easements for Public Use
 1. Provide high standards for the pedestrian's safety, comfort, and access to service elements contained in public spaces and rights-of-way, giving consideration to:
 - (a) plant materials, paving and curb treatments, lighting, signs, and other street and open space equipment and furnishings;
 - (b) safety at pedestrian crossings and within open spaces;
 - (c) street and open space sanitation; and
 - (d) climatic comfort in all seasons to the degree feasible.
 2. Provide a functional and attractive system of well-defined open spaces knitted into an integrated whole by equally well-organized streets, walkways, and open spaces, giving consideration to:
 - (a) the circulation and/or non-circulation function for which they were designed, and
 - (b) the unification and functional articulation of the space sequences of the circulation system.
 3. Encourage developers of disposition parcels to give consideration to:
 - (a) avoidance of setbacks or breaks in building lines which detract from the definition of enclosure or public open space and street space.
 - (b) exploitation of building mass, screen walls, overhangs, or landscaping as elements contributing to the definition of public open space and street space.
 - (c) enhancement of climatic shelter objectives as they relate to public open space and street space.
 - (d) provision of safe pedestrian and auto visibility minimizing curb cuts in public open space and street space areas.
 - (e) maximum display of lighted or active portions of buildings toward public open space and street space areas in order to improve nighttime safety.
 - (f) placement of primary building entrances and approaches and arrangement of internal functions generating public activity in such a way as to generate and augment the purposes of public open space and street space, whether intended for active or passive uses, and
 - (g) use of architectural materials and scalar treatment of facade and roof lines in modes contributing to unity across and around all sides of the public open space and street space areas.
 - E. Land Use and Building Controls Objectives
 1. Provide a high standard of convenience and mutual interdependence between local, state, and federal government facilities and services, on the one hand, and private offices and business services on the other hand, maximizing convenient pedestrian access between all parcels, and emphasizing private office space that meets the needs of enterprises requiring Government Center proximity;
 2. Provide a high degree of convenience, and self-sufficiency, in Government Center in respect to local retail, personal service, and visitor accommodation facilities, maximizing the vertical and horizontal accessibility of such services from the principal public pedestrian walks and open spaces;
 3. Control vehicular traffic generation at a level reasonably related to the presence of mass transportation alternatives, the intense degree of pedestrian movement required in this area, and the limited availability of private vehicular movement channels in the area;
 4. Provide an adequate standard of light, air, and open space and create a total pattern of buildings which is both expressive of contemporary real estate development and harmonious part of historic Boston. (Land use and building controls and restrictions emphasize the potential for buildings of moderate height and great horizontal continuity, both to ensure accessibility to light and air and to affirm the continuity of enclosure of streets and open spaces by long buildings which is characteristic of this part of Boston. The rationale directing the location of tall buildings is based upon an over-all area effect rather than upon similarities or dissimilarities of locational conditions between adjacent parcels. In the over-all plan as it relates to tall buildings, principal considerations will be minimizing shadowing of lower buildings, major open spaces and transit interchanges, and utilization of the building as an attractive distant landmark for the location and internal structure of Government Center.)

F. Buildings Objectives

1. Realization of these design objectives depends upon the highest possible level of contemporary architectural design. The individual developer's proposal will be reviewed in terms of its contribution to a suitable present-day city environment, its care for the assets and community values of historical Boston, and the permanence of renewal objectives in terms of aesthetic expression, utilitarian arrangement, and structural soundness. This objective will require the developer to conform to the principles of the over-all Project Area design through careful attention to the potentials of the disposition parcel (see especially paragraphs I, D and I, E above), and to the following standards:
 - (a) The best modern architectural standards for natural and artificial lighting, acoustics, and mechanical plant should be utilized, as well as sensitive external expression of these factors in order to avoid premature obsolescence.
 - (b) Experimentation in the arrangement of uses in a single architectural complex should be undertaken in order to improve on current architectural solutions in respect to mixed land-use sites and in respect to preserving the spatial integrity of the street and defined public open spaces, at least for lower floors facing the space.
 - (c) New and rehabilitated buildings, as well as buildings proposed to be retained, should harmonize, not only with others sharing the same streets or open spaces, but with surrounding older parts of downtown Boston. Particular note should be taken of the use of curtain walling materials and architectural rhythm and detail of wall openings, relating to dominant local architectural traditions of masonry materials and complex and careful scales of wall openings and details.
 - (d) All parapets and roof-top structures should be well organized so as to present an attractive appearance from all points of view, including view from higher buildings.
 - (e) New and rehabilitated buildings as well as buildings proposed to be retained should be treated with architectural values on all facades, leaving no facades of inferior material.
2. Two special and fundamental principles with respect to individual architectural considerations are as follows:
 - (a) Maintenance around Government Center Plaza of a dignified building enclosure of simple roofline, similar or harmonious materials, and similar scale of facade treatment, providing an unobtrusive common setting over which the new City Hall will be visually dominant and artistically unique; and
 - (b) Maintenance and strengthening of a clear visual channel and sequence of related architectural appearances extending from Government Center Plaza to the Waterfront (the latter outside the Project Area) expressing the functional ties between these points of tourist interest and the intervening open spaces as well. It is to be noted that long, moderately-low existing buildings, making heavy use of concrete or granite materials, are frequently found along this line.

II. LAND USE PROVISIONS AND BUILDING REQUIREMENTS

A. General Requirements

1. Applicability: The provisions of this section shall apply to all property to be made available for redevelopment within the Project Area, and shall be implemented by appropriate covenants in disposition or other documents.

No sign shall project beyond the face of the building more than 24 inches. The size, design, location and number of signs shall be approved by the Authority. No signs or advertising shall be placed on the exterior facade on or above the floor level of the third floor of any structure. Any

REDEVELOPER'S OBLIGATIONS

A. Design Controls

Redevelopment and rehabilitation of land in the Project Area shall be made subject to the regulations and controls specified herein. The purpose of such regulations and controls is to assure that the renewal of the area will conform to the planning and design objectives set forth above. It is therefore the obligation of all redevelopers not only to comply with these controls but also to familiarize themselves with the planning and design objectives and to prepare development or rehabilitation proposals which are in harmony therewith. All such proposals will be subject to design review, comment and approval by the Boston Redevelopment Authority prior to land disposition and prior to commencement of construction.

In addition to assuring compliance with specific controls set forth above, the Authority will evaluate the quality and appropriateness of proposed development with reference to the general design considerations set forth above.

B. Obligation to Build

The redeveloper will be obliged, under the terms of the disposition instrument, to carry out certain specified improvements, within a reasonable period of time as set forth in the instrument.

C. Disposition of Property by Redeveloper

The redeveloper will not be permitted to dispose of property until the improvements are completed without the prior written consent of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, which consent will not be granted except under conditions that will prevent speculation and protect the interests of the City of Boston and the Boston Redevelopment Authority.

RESOLUTION OF BOSTON REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY APPROVING REQUEST FOR CONSENTS TO EARLY LAND DISPOSITION.

Whereas, Under date of September 15, 1961, a Temporary Loan Contract (Early Land Acquisition) for the Government Center Project Area, pursuant to Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 as amended, was entered into by and between the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the United States of America; and

Whereas, The said contract provides that without the consent of the HHFA the Authority may not dispose of any land in the said area prior to approval of the Urban Renewal Plan for said area; and

Whereas, An Urban Renewal Plan has been prepared and was approved by the Authority on June 5, 1963; and

Whereas, Said Plan has not yet received the required local approvals thereof; and

Whereas, It is desirable and in the public interest that the Authority be able to proceed with land disposition activities, prior to the required local approvals of said Plan, in those portions of the Project Area which are cleared and would otherwise lie idle; and

Whereas, Parcel 6 in the Project Area is cleared and ready for disposition and construction thereon; and

Whereas, The commencement of construction on said Parcel 6 will provide much-needed new employment and stimulate the economy and in general be beneficial to the financial and physical well-being of the community and its inhabitants; and

Whereas, The redevelopment and renewal to be accomplished by such construction will serve the purposes of Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 as amended and Chapter 121 of the General Laws; and

Whereas, Under said Title I and under said Chapter 121, land covered by a Temporary Loan Contract (Early Land Acquisition) may be disposed of provided certain consents are first obtained, and it is the intention of the Authority to obtain such consents prior to disposition; now therefore be it resolved, by the Boston Redevelopment Authority:

1. That the filing of a request on behalf of the Authority for a waiver to said contract in order to permit the disposition of Parcel 6 in the Government Center Project Area is hereby approved, and the Development Administrator is hereby authorized to file such a request with the Housing and Home Finance Agency of the United States of America, and to furnish such additional information as may be required by the HHFA.

2. That the Chairman is hereby authorized to request the consent of the Mayor and City Council, the State Housing Board, and the Division of Urban and Industrial Renewal to the proposed disposition of Parcel 6 in the Government Center Project Area.

The report was accepted. The ordinance was passed.

In connection with the foregoing, Councillor Foley offered the following resolution:

Be it Resolved, That his Honor the Mayor be respectfully requested to consider updating the remaining four parts of the Building Code by way of paid engineering consultants rather than the unpaid board method used until now.

The resolution was adopted under suspension of the rules.

INVESTIGATION OF PARCEL 8 GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA BY SENATE COMMITTEE.

Coun. McDONOUGH offered the following: Whereas, The Boston City Council has on two occasions been requested by the Mayor of the City of Boston to adopt a resolution approving a final plan for the so-called Government Center Urban Renewal project in the City of Boston, Massachusetts; and

Whereas, The said City Council held approximately forty hours of public hearings on the matter on five different days; and

Whereas, The council on both occasions rejected the plans because of the inclusion of controversial Parcel 8; and

Whereas, During the course of said hearings evidence was introduced, by the Ten State Street Corporation, owner of a standard unblighted building now standing on a portion of the Parcel 8 section of said final plan, to the effect that the New England Merchants National Bank, the owner of another standard unblighted building now standing on said Parcel 8 had since early in 1961 been negotiating with the Development Administrator of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, and also with Cabot, Cabot & Forbes, a development company for the construction of a thirty-five story office tower building on said Parcel 8, that these negotiations resulted in an understanding whereby the said tower was to be owned by C., C. & F. with the bank becoming a tenant in the first ten floors, and that these negotiations and the resulting understanding were unknown to the Boston Redevelopment Authority until April 7, 1963; and

Whereas, Under the final plan the present Ten State Street building would be razed to make room for the new tower, while the bank building would be left standing until the tower was ready for occupancy by the bank; and

Whereas, It was alleged at the public hearings by the owners of Ten State Street that the bank offered to purchase the Ten State Street building during the time the bank was negotiating with the Development Administrator and C., C. & F.; and

Whereas, It was further alleged by the owners of Ten State Street that the said Development Administrator suggested the possibility of using the Authority's eminent domain power to take another building owned by the Ten State Street Corporation if the said corporation did not agree to the taking of the building of said corporation in Parcel 8; and

Whereas, It was further alleged by the owners of 10 State Street that they were first told of the negotiations between the Development Administrator, the Bank, and C., C. & F., by the Development Administrator in May of 1963 and that during the same month the owners of 10 State Street offered to build a tower which could house the bank on the same site but were refused by an officer of the said bank; and

Whereas, The proposal to take Parcel 8 was not included in the project plans at the time the project plan was approved by the Boston City Council and the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency for the purpose of obtaining funds for plans and surveys or early land acquisition; and

Whereas, The proposal to include Parcel 8 was made by the I. M. Pei Company, a planning consulting firm, which was engaged by the Development Administrator in 1961 to replace the planning firm of Adams, Howard & Greeley which had originally planned the project; and

Whereas, The Government Center project involves the expenditure of approximately 200 million dollars of the people's money and is of vital importance to the people of this city; and

Whereas, The Federal Urban Redevelopment and Renewal program exists because of congressional action designed to help people who live in cities and involves the expenditure of hundreds of millions of the people's dollars appropriated by the Congress to help achieve this purpose; and

Whereas, The entire circumstances surrounding the inclusion of Parcel 8 in the Government Center project have given rise to a great deal of controversy concerning its propriety; and

Whereas, It is desirable that an immediate investigation, free of local influence, be held concerning this matter which is of such vital importance to both the federal and the local Urban Renewal program; be it therefore

Ordered, That the Boston City Council respectfully requests U. S. Senator John J. McClellan, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Investigations of the Senate Committee on Government Operations, to arrange for an immediate investigation of all of the circumstances surrounding the inclusion of Parcel 8 in the final plan of the Government Center Urban Renewal project; and be it further Ordered, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Senator McClellan and all the members of the Subcommittee on Investigations of the U. S. Senate Government Operations Committee.

Coun. McDONOUGH moved suspension of the rules and adoption of the resolution.

The rules were not suspended (6 votes being necessary for suspension of the rules), yeas 4, nays 5:

Yeas—Councillors Foley, Kerrigan, McDonough, Tierney—4

Nays—Councillors Coffey, Hines, Iannella, Piemonte, Sullivan—5

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal.

Whereas, There is pending before the State Senate a bill, H 93, filed by the Department of Public Works and authorizing them to spend $135 million of matching state and federal funds for construction of interstate highways in Boston and Greater Boston;

Whereas, The bill has been amended by the Massachusetts House of Representatives in an action that removed the exclusive veto power from Boston over the routes of interstate highways such as the Southwest Expressway, the Inner Belt, and Interstate 93 in Boston;

City Hospital Graduates 54 Nurses in Class of 1963

The Boston City Hospital School of Nursing graduated a class of 54 young nurses at colorful commencement exercises at John Hancock Hall, Friday night, September 13.

Every state in New England was represented among the graduates and two residents of Detroit were among the diploma winners. However, the majority of the graduates, as usual, were either residents of Boston or from nearby points in the metropolitan area.

The school is the third oldest in the nation. It was opened on May 1, 1878, under Linda Richards, the nation's first graduate nurse. Many of its graduates have attained high places in the field of nursing education.

Officers of the 1963 class are the Misses Ann Martin, 81 Florence street, Roslindale, president; Jean Richardson of 7 Peacevale road, Dorchester, vice-president; Anne Marie Chamberland, of Millis, secretary, and Shirley Ann Wilson of 117 Howard avenue, Dorchester, treasurer.

MORE THRILLING THAN A DACHÉ — Officers of the graduating class of the Boston City Hospital School of Nursing display the distinctive BCH nurses' caps, three years of intense training won for them. No Daché creation could have been more pleasing on their graduation night. Class of 1963 Graduates 54 Nurses in City Hospital

On Wednesday night baccalaureate services were held at Immaculate Conception Church, near the hospital on Harrison avenue. The Very Rev. Francis J. Gilday, S.J., delivered the sermon. Father Gilday is a former head of the staff of chaplains at City Hospital.

At the traditional Class Night observance the graduates were guests of their faculty at a buffet supper. They were served by underclass members and a combo headed by Pat Pergola supplied the musical program. It was one night the faculty sat by while the senior class enjoyed itself. The faculty chose the menu—which was voted perfect. The faculty selected and put up the decorations—which were voted “cool.”

Top event of the night, however, was an address by Dr. Signey Farber, director of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation (which he founded in 1948), and the man responsible for the famed Jimmy Building at Children's Hospital.

On Friday morning the graduates-to-be attended services at the hospital chapels.

President William H. Ellis, Jr., of the hospital board of trustees, presented the diplomas in the exercises at John Hancock Hall, attended by a big audience made up of relatives and friends of the graduates.

New Fire Laws for Hotel Safety Operation

Bills signed into law recently by Governor Peabody tighten the fire safety requirements of hotels in the state.

The bills followed recommendations made by a special commission that investigated the Sherry Biltmore fire last winter.

The new laws authorize the Board of Standards to set regulations regarding the use of combustible materials in hotels, require hotels to maintain alarm systems as well as watchmen on patrol, and instruct the heads of fire departments to inform the proper authorities when they find violations of safety regulations.

In addition, hotel personnel are now required to notify the fire department as soon as a fire is discovered.

Borings Taken in Fort Point Channel Work

State engineers have begun preliminary borings as the first step in the $5,000,000 project to fill and improve the South Bay and part of the Fort Point Channel.

First stage of the improvement program will be elimination of the offensive odor of the waterway, which has been unused for more than 30 years, and construction of a culvert to carry drainage waters of the South Bay and Dorchester Brook to sea.

The channel was once navigable as far as Massachusetts avenue, but for the past 30 years it has not been used beyond Dover street.

The Legislature last year authorized $5,000,000 for the fill from Massachusetts avenue to Dover street. When the fill-in is completed the land will be turned over to Boston.

$1.48 Million Foley Apartments for Elderly Dedicated in South Boston

Dedication ceremonies for the William J. Foley Apartments for the Elderly in South Boston will be held September 14, it was announced by Chairman Edward D. Hassan of the Boston Housing Authority.

Mayor John F. Collins will officiate at the ceremonies naming the development in memory of the late William J. Foley, Sr., a lifelong resident of South Boston and District Attorney of Suffolk County for many years.

The William J. Foley Apartments, a federally aided project, is the seventh housing development especially and exclusively designed for the elderly which the Boston Housing Authority has completed and opened for occupancy within the past fifteen months.

The first of these specialized housing developments for the elderly, Elm Hill in Roxbury, was opened for occupancy in May, 1962. Bickford street and Pond street in Jamaica Plain, Annapolis and Ashmont streets in Dorchester, all federally aided, and the state-aided Franklin Field in Dorchester opened for occupancy in the following months.

Bids for State Office Building Due Sept. 18

Sealed bids for the superstructure work on the $20 million 22-story State Office Building in the Government Center will be received September 18, Executive Secretary Thomas J. Doherty of the commission announced.

Each general bid proposal must be secured by an accompanying deposit of $50,000.

Construction is already under way on the foundation of the building and on steel pile driving incidental to the construction of the superstructure.

Advertising of a fourth contract for construction of a rear plaza of the building which is being constructed south of Cambridge street, between Somerset and Bowdoin streets, will be announced later.

Overlooks Bay

The William J. Foley Senior Apartments, a seven-story elevator building containing 96 apartments, is located in an area bounded by Columbia road, H, East Eighth, and Hamlin streets, overlooking the bay area.

It was designed by the architectural firm of M. A. Dyer Company and constructed by S. Volpe & Co. The estimated total development cost, including acquisition and improvement of land, architectural and engineering fees, and all construction costs is $1,484,640.

Each apartment, architecturally designed to afford a view of the bay, consists of foyer, living room, one bedroom, kitchen, and half-tiled bathroom, and has ample closet and storage space.

The kitchen is fully equipped with stove, porcelain enameled sink, refrigerator, and built-in wall and counter cabinets. Electric power is supplied for lighting, refrigeration, and cooking.

All apartments have special facilities such as recessed tubs and handgrips in the bathroom, and electric and master antenna outlets which are accessible without stooping or bending. Emergency signals in the bedroom and bathroom sound an alarm outside the apartment, unlock the front door automatically, and flash an over-door signal light in the hall indicating the apartment summoning help.

The street floor provides a community room for gatherings, a mail room, office room for management and maintenance crew, and a laundry with coin-operated facilities.

Added features are an outdoor terrace built adjacent to the community room and a roof sitting area which affords a view of Boston, the harbor, and the surrounding areas.

The requirements for tenancy in federally aided housing for the elderly are that the head of the household must be 65 or older, a citizen of the United States, a resident of the City of Boston for at least three years, of low income, and in need of decent housing.

There is no minimum income limit. Maximum income limits are set at $3,600 for a single individual or couple with a continued occupancy limit of $4,950.

Rental charges are related to the income of each tenant. Minimum rental charge is $45. Minimum rents are gross rental charges and include all utilities, cost of heat, continuous hot water, and electricity for lighting, cooking, and refrigeration.

NEWEST HOME FOR ELDERLY — The William J. Foley Apartments for the Elderly, newest of the BHA's housing developments, will be dedicated in memory of the late District Attorney, September 14.

Fake Auto Paper Law Has Very Sharp Teeth

Registrar James R. Lawton calls attention to the possible five-year imprisonment which could result for anyone found guilty of altering, forging, or counterfeiting a motor vehicle license or a motor vehicle certificate of registration, or for having such false license or registration in his possession.

His statement was prompted by the recent disclosure of license counterfeiting rings in the state.

Under section 24B of chapter 90, to which the Registrar was referring, anyone convicted of this offense, which is a felony, can be punished by imprisonment in State Prison for as much as five years or as much as two years in a jail or House of Correction.

Section 24B also applies if anyone forges or wrongfully uses the signature, or validating signature stamp, of the Registrar or Deputy Registrar upon any license or registration, whether genuine or falsely made. Section 24B was amended in 1962 to cover anyone who has in his possession any falsely made license or registration.

Playland to Become Giant Toyland For Hub's '63 Christmas Festival

It's a few football games to Columbus Day; it's a whole cider-making time to Thanksgiving. You'll have to figure out your own span of shopping days to Christmas.

Yet, Col. Paul Hines, still clad in a comfortable summer suit, was over on Boston Common the other day with a group of strangers. They were pointing here and there—with vigor. Between pointings they talked business.

What kind of business? Christmas business. Paul's director of Boston's annual Christmas Festival.

The group he was talking with were toy manufacturers, tent makers, and display experts. Under discussion were plans to make "Playland" on the Common a veritable "Toyland" when the next Christmas season rolls around.

Among the proposed features of the display will be electrical trains, animated dolls and figures, manikins and one of the top exhibits of king-size toys and gadgets ever shown outdoors. Santa's workshop and his eight white reindeer, together with numerous other animals, including Sicilian donkeys and sheep, will also be part of the "Playland" presentation. The cost of "Toyland" will be borne by private funds contributed annually in support of the festival by the banks, insurance companies, newspapers, radio-TV stations, public utilities, merchants and public spirited citizens.

In anticipation of organizing what he expects to be the best Christmas Festival yet, Colonel Hines has been actively engaged during the summer months supervising the repair and redecorating of the more than 250 religious and other figures annually used to emphasize the spiritual aspects of the festival. Miles and miles of electrical wires and sockets used in the illumination of the Common during the festival season must be inspected.

Roxbury, South End, Charlestown to Get "Opportunities" Education Program

The launching of a battery of experimental, educational programs was announced jointly September 11 by the Boston School Department and Action for Boston Community Development, Inc.

Superintendent of Schools Frederick J. Gillis, School Committee Chairman Louise Day Hicks, and ABCD President Charles I. Schottland joined in describing details of the program.

They said recruiting and reassignment of teacher personnel for the programs has begun, and the full demonstration should be under way within the next 90 days.

The $874,600 experiment will be financed jointly by the School Department and a special program fund set aside for ABCD by the Ford Foundation.

During the three-year life of the experiment the schools will contribute $374,600 and the Ford Foundation will provide $500,000 toward program expenses.

Ford Foundation Aid

During the first year Ford funds will constitute about four fifths of the total expenditures with the School Department providing the remaining one fifth. The second year contributions will be nearly equal; and in the third year the School Department will assume about two thirds of the total cost.

The programs will be in the areas of preschool preparation, reading development, guidance, and school adjustment counseling.

Schools in Roxbury, the South End, and Charlestown have been chosen as sites for the experiments which will be evaluated for effectiveness by the ABCD research staff.

The goal of the demonstration is to determine which programs can be employed usefully throughout the school system and, in particular, in low-income areas where students need extra assistance to make the most of their school years.

The area served by the Lewis Junior High School and the Henry L. Higginson and Julia Ward Howe elementary schools in Roxbury has been designated the experimental school district in which all of the programs will be employed. One or more programs will be instituted in the Rice-Franklin Elementary District in the South End, the Campbell Junior High School in Roxbury, and the Edwards Junior High School in Charlestown.

Four Approaches

Four distinct approaches are involved.

Prekindergarten classes will be established to help children from low-income, disadvantaged backgrounds acquire the skills necessary to keep pace in school.

School adjustment counselors will be assigned to some of the schools to help students with special learning problems.

An experimental guidance program will be established in one junior high school and one elementary school. Major emphasis will be on the use of guidance personnel to assist classroom teachers in developing curriculum and dealing with individual problems.

Specialized reading courses will be instituted in both elementary and junior high schools.

One of the unique features of the program is the way in which it will be continuously tested to determine its effectiveness.

Children will be followed as individuals in their progress through school to determine whether the new programs are effective. Their subsequent performances will be measured against one another and against the progress of students in schools without the programs.

The schools chosen for the experiments vary in terms of the income and ethnic backgrounds of their students as well as in other ways.

A coordinator, selected jointly by the School Department, ABCD, and the Ford Foundation, will be in general charge of uniting the efforts of the various personnel involved and will serve as chief executor of the programs.

The coordinator will remain with the school staff after the three-year demonstration program is completed and will be charged with originating other new programs to meet school needs.

Although financed in part by the Ford Foundation, the experiment is a significant part of the Boston Youth Opportunities Project which is being planned under a grant from the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime. Programs in education and employment were seen as the core of the Opportunities Project.

Planning for the school programs began in 1962 with the joint participation of the Advisory Committee of the Youth Opportunities Project, the ABCD staff, and public school administrative personnel.

School Department planning for the programs was headed by Deputy Superintendent William H. Ohrenberger and Assistant Superintendent Charles O. Ruddy. School personnel participating included Assistant Superintendent Marguerite G. Sullivan; Maurice J. Downey, director of vocational guidance; and Katherine H. McLeod, director of pupil adjustment counseling. Joseph V. Wilson, principal of the Dwight School District, was granted a one-year leave of absence in 1962 and assigned to work with ABCD on the project.

The Program Advisory Committee is headed by Co-chairman Campbell G. Murphy, Director, Special Programs Department, United Community Services; and James A. Travers, Director, Youth Activities Bureau. Other members of the committee are Albert B. Carter, Commissioner of Probation; Dr. John D. Coughlan, Massachusetts Youth Service Board; Arthur Davis, Associate, RIG Division, UCS; Lieut. Walter J. Hankard, Crime Prevention Bureau; Rt. Rev. Albert W. Low, Superintendent, Archdiocese of Boston Department of Education; J. Westbrook McPherson, Executive Director, Massachusetts Division of Employment Security; Robert M. Mulford, General Secretary, Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children; Supt. Ohrenberger and Assist. Supt. Ruddy.

ABCD staff employees who aided in designing the school program included: Executive Director Joseph S. Slavet; Robert Perlman, Director of Program Development; Daniel I. Cronin, Youth Opportunities Project Director; Harold Haizlip, Educational Specialist; Edward Stone, Program Specialist, and Research Director Clarence C. Sherwood.

Prekindergartners

Four prekindergarten classes of 20 children each will be conducted in community facilities in the South End and Roxbury. The children will range from about 3½ to 4½ years old. The classes will operate five days a week.

School adjustment counselors will be assigned to the Lewis Junior High School, Henry L. Higginson Elementary School, and the Rice-Franklin Elementary District. Guidance counselors will be assigned to the Lewis Junior High School and Howe Elementary School District.

The task of the school adjustment counselors will be to help those students who have problems which interfere with their learning. The counselors work with parents, outside agencies and teachers in providing concerted and systematic services for such youngsters from kindergarten to ninth grade.

The objectives of the guidance program include reducing the failure rate and the number of drop-outs, and increasing the proportion of students who complete high school and who enter college or achieve appropriate employment.

Three Approaches

The reading programs are based on findings that reading difficulties which begin in elementary school increase rather than decrease at the junior and senior high school levels with far-reaching effects on the student's ability to learn and his personality.

Three approaches are involved. Reading consultants at the elementary level will assist teachers to develop techniques and materials designed to improve reading skills. These new techniques and materials will be applied in teaching in subject areas such as science and history, so that an emphasis on reading extends throughout the curriculum. Students will be grouped in special classes for part of each day according to their reading achievement. Both remedial and enrichment programs will be provided. A similar developmental reading program which originated in the Robert Gould Shaw Junior High School in West Roxbury will be extended into three junior high schools in the experimental districts.

NE Wins Safety and On-Time Awards

Northeast Airlines was awarded the National Safety Council's aviation safety award for its outstanding flight safety record in 1962.

The honor was for flying more than 1.5 million passengers in perfect safety in 1962. In all, Northeast amassed more than 735 million passenger miles and its planes spent 74,600 hours in the air.

Presentation was made to President James W. Austin by Crocker Snow, director, Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission.

National recognition was also accorded Northeast by American Aviation Magazine for its outstanding on-time performance record. During April—most recent period when information is available—Northeast led the entire airline industry in its on-time operational performance.

According to the magazine, the airline completed 89.72 per cent of all its arrivals in the on-time category. Northeast also led competition in the Miami-New York market by completing a higher percentage of its scheduled operations than any other line, with a rating of 89.75 per cent.

President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime, and the Committee for the Permanent Charity Fund. Its Board of 36 members, including Mayor Collins, represents a cross-section of civic, governmental, industrial, labor, educational, social service, and neighborhood leadership. The Executive Director is Joseph S. Slavet.

Supt. Gillis Hails New Ford-Aided Program

Schools Superintendent Frederick J. Gillis made this observation of the new ABCD-Boston School educational program:

Many projects have been initiated in Boston in recent years to assist pupils of limited backgrounds to overcome their educational deficiencies and to provide enriched cultural opportunities. Other much needed and equally valuable programs have been planned but have had to be deferred because of lack of necessary operating funds.

The Ford Foundation grant, coupled with appropriations to be made available by the Boston School Committee, will enable the Boston Public Schools to establish prekindergarten classes, intensify adjustment counseling, introduce an experimental guidance program, and conduct a developmental reading program in selected elementary and junior high schools in Charlestown, Dorchester, Roxbury, and the South End.

Library Aid Takes Federal Advisory Job

Pauline Winnock, coordinator of young adult services at the Boston Public Library, has begun a year's leave of absence to assume a newly created position in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in Washington.

She will serve as the public library specialist for children and young adults and will assist and advise libraries, professional organizations, educators, and government officials on the development of effective library programs.

One-Track Mind. A young mother brought her infant to the market one day and asked the butcher if he'd mind weighing the baby, as her scales had broken down. "Why, sure," said the butcher, obligingly taking the little thing and placing it on the scales. "Exactly 14 pounds," he said as he handed the baby back, "with the bones."

A young fellow, tired of working for others, went into business for himself. Later a friend asked him how it was to be his own boss.

"I don't know," he replied. "The police won't let me park in front of my own business; tax collectors tell me how to keep books; my banker tells me how much balance I must maintain; freight agents tell me how my goods must be packed; customers tell me how my goods must be made; federal, state, county and local agencies tell me how to keep records in triplicate.

A copy of the advertisement for the proposal was published in Volume 55 of the "City Record" dated July 6, 1963, and copies of the advertisement were mailed to all bidders who have indicated an interest in bidding on this equipment.

In reply to paragraph 2, Proposal No. 186, for purchasing two-way radios for the Public Works Department was publicly opened on December 11, 1962. DeMambro Radio Supply, 1085 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

Allen B. Dumont Laboratories, 760 Bloomfield avenue, Clifton, New Jersey.

General Electric Company, 471 Washington street, Wellesley.

Respectfully yours,

MICHAEL A. DESIMONE,

City of Boston,

Police Department, July 15, 1963.

Hon. John F. Collins,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

Relative to a City Council order passed on July 1, 1963, requesting information concerning the proposal for purchase of the two-way radio or mobile communications for the Boston Police Department, the following is submitted:

In 1960, the Federal Communications Commission imposed new and more stringent technical performance standards upon all police radio operations. As a result, on May 3, 1960, the then Police Commissioner, Leo J. Sullivan, engaged the Hermes Electronics Company, 75 Cambridge Parkway, Cambridge, to conduct an engineering survey of the radio communications facilities of the Boston Police Department.

In their report dated June 27, 1960, they recommended the replacement of our mobile radio equipment with modern sets making extensive use of transistors. They indicated that fuel savings alone arising from the reduced power consumption would pay for the capital cost of such new equipment within five years. Specifications for the type of equipment needed were written by the Itek Laboratories, Lexington, Mass., who, in the interim period, had absorbed the Hermes Company.

On November 17, 1961, bids on new radio equipment were opened in the office of the then Police Commissioner, Leo J. Sullivan, and were subsequently evaluated by Itek Laboratories. In the Itek report, Motorola, Inc., was favored for its mobile transceivers and the General Electric Company for its base station transmitters and additional equipment.

When I, Edmund L. McNamara, the present Police Commissioner, assumed office on April 6, 1962, I inherited the problem of the replacement of our radio equipment. At that time a survey of the Boston Police Department by the Field Service Division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc., was under way which included a study of our radio facilities.

As a result of the International Association of Chiefs of Police report which recommended transistorized radio equipment and a change to a high-band frequency, new specifications were drawn. On March 9, 1963, by advertisement in the "City Record," proposals were solicited for the furnishing of new radio communications equipment. Advertisements were also inserted in the Boston "Globe" on March 9 and March 15, in the Boston "Traveler" on March 11 and March 19, and in the Boston "American" on March 14 and March 22, soliciting bids for furnishing new radio communications equipment for the Boston Police Department.

To further excite interest among prospective bidders, bid proposal forms, a copy of the "City Record" Advertisement of March 9 and a copy of the specifications were mailed to the following companies:

Radio Engineering Laboratories, Inc., 29-01 Borden avenue, Long Island City, New York.

Westinghouse Electric Corporation, 10 High street, Boston, Mass.

Technical Appliance Corporation, Sherburne, New York.

Raytheon Company, P. O. Box 520, Waltham, Mass.

General Precision Inc., 1451 California avenue, Palo Alto, California.

International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, 15191 Bledsoe street, San Fernando, California.

Andrew Corporation, P. O. Box 807, Chicago, Illinois.

Communication Product Company, Marlboro, New Jersey.

Radio Corporation of America, Meadow Lands, Pennsylvania.

Motorola Communications and Electronics, Inc., 4501 West Augusta Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois.

General Electric Company, 471 Washington street, Wellesley, Mass.

Bids were publicly opened on April 18, 1963, in the office of the Police Commissioner and were as follows:

Radio Corporation of America, Meadow Lands, Pennsylvania, $168,775.

Motorola Communications and Electronics, Inc., Chicago, Illinois, $178,500.

All other companies listed in the above submitted "No Bid" letters prior to April 18, 1963, with the exception of the General Electric Company—this Company did not submit a bid nor a letter of "no bid."

The two bids were evaluated by the Field Service Division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc., and the Department Radio Technician. They reported that in their opinions the difference in price, $9,725, did not represent a significant saving in a long-term capital outlay and that Motorola, Inc., offered the type of equipment which represented the best investment for the Police Department. Motorola, Inc., as the low bidder meeting the specifications, was awarded the contract on June 5, 1963.

On June 10, 1963, Mr. Thomas Murphy and Mr. Chandler Smith of the Boston Finance Commission at a meeting in the office of the Police Commissioner discussed the radio communication and equipment contract which had been awarded to Motorola, Inc. Present at this meeting were: Police Commissioner McNamara, Deputy Superintendent Robert E. Bradley, the Radio Technician, Leroy Hunter, and Patrolman Patrick Foley, Assistant to the Department Legal Aide. Mr. Smith and Mr. Murphy were furnished copies of the radio and communications bid proposal, specifications, letter of award and letter of evaluation from A. Everett Leonard, Director of the Field Service Division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc., relating to the radio and communications bid. On June 11, 1963, by means of a telephone call, Mr. Murphy of the Finance Commission informed Deputy Superintendent Robert E. Bradley of the Records and Communications Division, that the Finance Commission had no further interest in the radio communications and equipment bid.

Very truly yours,
EDMUND L. MCNAMARA,
Police Commissioner.

On motion of Councillor Sullivan, the message was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and Finance.

REASONS FOR DELAY IN WAGE INCREASES OF CITY EMPLOYEES.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, August 16, 1963.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen:
I transmit herewith communication from the Director of Administrative Services concerning your order of August 5, 1963, relative to questions with reference to the Jacobs Survey.

Respectfully,
JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Administrative Services Department,
August 15, 1963.

Hon. John F. Collins,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

In response to City Council order dated August 5, 1963:

"Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be, and is hereby, requested under the provisions of section 17F of chapter 271 of the Acts of 1961, and any amendments pursuant thereto, and under any other authority vested in the Boston City Council at the meeting of the Council next ensuing after one week from the receipt of this order, answer in writing to the questions set forth in the following:

"1. Whereas on April 22, 1963, the City Council approved increases in wages of city employees, as recommended by the Jacobs Survey, please explain the reason for the delay in granting these increases?

"2. Please state in detail the reasons, if any, why city employees could not get the approved increases commencing with the next pay check?"

Please be advised that to implement this survey many new personnel administration procedures had to be formulated, as well as a public hearing, as ordered by law, had to be held, in order that the city compensation and classification plan be prepared properly and legally.

It was necessary for the Personnel Division to consult with the State Civil Service Director and his staff, many individual employees and their representatives, the various department heads, as well as the City Law Department. It was necessary also to meet regularly with personnel responsible for payroll procedures in the various city departments.

I can truthfully state that the Personnel Division of this department has been working many hours of overtime and admirably performing the necessary preliminary work.

I am advised by the City Auditor that the mechanics necessary for the changes in payrolls are proceeding as rapidly as possible and his department also is putting in many hours of overtime.

As per your instructions, city employees will receive the adjusted pay increases as expeditiously as possible and all departments have been instructed to use all available means to accomplish this objective.

Yours very truly,

HENRY A. SCAGNOLI.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON URBAN REDEVELOPMENT, REHABILITATION AND RENEWAL.

Coun. McDONOUGH, for the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal, submitted the following:

1. Report on message of the Mayor and order (referred June 10, 1963) approving "Workable Program."

MINORITY REPORT OF COUNCILLOR PIEMONTE, MEMBER OF COMMITTEE ON URBAN REDEVELOPMENT, REHABILITATION AND RENEWAL.

Re Workable Program.

As the elected officials of all the people of Boston, the Boston City Council is required by the Federal Government to pass on the Workable Program. The Workable Program is the program submitted to the City Council by the Mayor. The committee held five days of hearings July 2, August 6, 7, 8, and 13. Transcripts of these hearings are available for public inspection at the City Clerk's office.

Why is it important to have an effective workable program?

By developing and carrying out an effective program, the city will be able to:

Halt the spread of slums and eradicate blight and its causes.

Provide better housing and a better living environment for all citizens, including low-income families, the young people and the elderly.

Avoid costly mistakes in future urban development.

Increase the effectiveness of its resources for improvement and renewal through coordination.

Protect and enhance its tax base.

Attract industrial and commercial development that can raise local living standards.

Stretch the local renewal dollar through public works planning.

Schedule activities causing family displacement with those designed to provide relocation housing.

Encourage private initiative in renewal.

Build community understanding of what can be achieved, gain citizen support and action.

Supplement local resources as necessary with Federal aids.

It becomes our duty therefore to pass on the Declaration of Policy, and to examine each of the minimum elements of an effective workable program for the following:

(a) Significant achievements during the past year.

(b) Changes or revisions in the community's over-all objectives.

(c) Major goals which are set for attainment during the coming year.

We have been told that our duty is clear in this matter, that we should approve the workable program as presented or be termed obstructionists or politically motivated. Yet the Federal Government requires that we pass on it. And as your elected officials we are charged with the responsibility of giving Boston an effective workable program. Why is an effective workable program necessary? You are paying the bill whether you live in a project area or not. The program came into being because of people and affects people. An effective workable program will produce the most benefits for each tax dollar spent; it will respect the dignity of people in its operations.

On all of the evidence both oral and by documents submitted at the five days of hearings I find that the Mayor has failed to set out significant achievements in the basic requirements of a workable program; that he has failed or neglected to offer changes or revisions in the community's over-all objectives with regards to these basic minimum requirements; that the Mayor has failed to set forth major goals for attainment in the basic minimum requirements that permit me to vote approval of the workable program as it is presently before us.

Yet, by amending the workable program by setting forth specific changes or revisions in the community's over-all objective and in the major goals set for achievement during the coming year the program could become compatible. One specific illustration is the statement of Declaration of Policy. As presented it consisted of the following statement:

"The policies guiding the City of Boston in its community program are those which were stated in the 1960 Development Program." (For reference see page 3 of the Workable Program Document).

The inadequacy of this as a statement of policy is obvious on its face. Yet it took Council insistence (see page 7 of transcript of July 2) to produce a 21-page mimeographed statement in lieu of this (see page 32 of transcript of August 6).

Following are set forth the seven minimum elements of an effective workable program, the objective of each, the test for each, specific references to evidence submitted at these hearings and my observations.

The Workable Program embraces seven minimum elements, based on tested and accepted principles of good municipal management. They are:

1. Codes and Ordinances.
2. Comprehensive Community Plan.
3. Neighborhood Analyses.
4. Administrative Organization.
5. Financing.
6. Housing for Displaced Families.
7. Citizen Participation.

These seven elements are interrelated—they should move forward together as the Program progresses.

1. Codes and Ordinances: (The objective is to assure adequate minimum standards of health, sanitation, and safety through a comprehensive system of codes and ordinances which state the minimum conditions under which dwellings may be lawfully occupied).

The specific requirements are:

—a codes review committee or similar group to review codes and code enforcement technically and objectively;

—the adoption of modern building, plumbing, electrical and housing codes during the first year after initial certification or, for programs presently in effect, before recertifications can be approved after October 1, 1962;

—effective enforcement of codes following adoption and a planned systematic housing code compliance program to be started within one year after the adoption of the housing code;

—accurate reporting on compliance activity and a showing that there is a reasonable use of appropriate local resources in terms of inspectors and funds needed to enforce compliance with the codes.

I find that: The city has a review committee to review codes which was organized under the prior administration and carried over under the present administration with some changes. Two sections of the codes have been presented to the Council and approved by the Council within the past two years. There are four or five other sections still to be reviewed.

There is no effective enforcement of codes nor a planned systematic compliance program. The city does not have a code review committee to review code enforcement.

The hearings disclose that, while enforcement is divided between Building, Health, Fire and Public Works Departments, and the Office of Neighborhood Improvement, there is no attempt to coordinate the work of these various departments nor is there any attempt to set up a central channel through which all complaints regarding code enforcement might be funneled.

There is not a reasonable use of appropriate local resources in terms of inspectors and funds needed to enforce compliance with the codes in the City of Boston. In addition to the testimony to be found in the transcript of the hearings are the findings of the Massachusetts General Court in House Document No. 3622 dated July 18, 1963. On pages 10, 12, 13, 14, and 15 they report as follows:

That there is a lack of proper administration in the functioning of the Boston Building Department insofar as it relates to the inspection of buildings and the granting of and follow-up of permits for the construction of buildings.

There is a lack of coordination and cooperation between the various state and local departments and agencies charged with the duty of enforcing existing laws pertaining to the health and safety of the people of this Commonwealth.

There is no program of building inspection now in existence which can do more than maintain minimum standards of safety for the people of the Commonwealth.

The Boston Building Department is undermanned and is unable to adequately enforce the provisions of the Boston Building Code.

The Building Department is undermanned and underpaid. This results in an appalling lack of inspectors, insufficient to perform even the minimal functions required. The poor pay means that the job must be carried out by a few dedicated public servants and mediocre employees.

As a result of its current investigation, this committee can unequivocally state that the conditions cited in 1957 and set forth herein above still exist in the Boston Building Department. While these conditions cannot be said to have substantially contributed to the disaster at the Sherry-Biltmore, Inc., had the fire occurred in other parts of the hotel, the City of Boston might once again have been forced to endure the ridicule and indignation of the people of this Commonwealth.

This committee urges the executive head of the City of Boston, in whom the responsibility is vested by statute, to initiate a thorough reorganization of the city's Building Department to avert the possibility of further and more serious disaster in the field of public safety.

As a partial remedy to some of the more obvious deficiencies presently existing in the Boston Building Department, the committee recommends:

1. The recruitment of qualified personnel, adequately compensated and properly trained.

2. The adoption of a system of checks and balances which will result in the fixing of responsibility within the Building Department and by which deficiencies or failures in performance of individuals within the department may be quickly detected.

3. That the inspections currently made by the various field divisions within the Building Department (i.e. electrical, gas, construction, etc.) should be better coordinated so as to eliminate a duplication of effort and to provide for an exchange of information between the said divisions.

4. That a program of field inspection be established and an audit bureau created to make certain that the field inspection program is effectively carried out. This necessarily required that control of the inspection program and the field inspection force be separated and that the audit bureau report directly to the Building Commissioner.

5. Recognizing the fact that in the area of public safety government has an obligation to render services to the people regardless of cost, this committee is of the opinion that persons who receive special services from the Building Department by way of examination of plans and inspection of property during the period of construction and alteration should be required to pay a fee commensurate with the services rendered. To this end it is recommended that a study be made of the fee schedule of the Boston Building Department to bring the cost of permits into a more realistic relationship with the cost of the services rendered. More specifically to eliminate maximum fees, to raise the individual fees and to explore the possibility of devising new sources of revenue to provide for the adequate staffing of the Building Department.

2. Comprehensive Community Plan: (The objective is the formulation and official recognition of a comprehensive general plan for the community as a whole).

The specific requirements are:

—preparation, as a guide for long-range development, of general physical plans with respect to the pattern and intensity of land use and the provision of public facilities, including transportation facilities, together with long-range fiscal plans for such development;

—programming of capital improvements based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for the improvements to be constructed in the earlier years of the program;

—coordination of all related plans of the departments or subdivisions of the government concerned;

—intergovernmental coordination of all related planned activities among the state and local governmental agencies concerned;

—preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Much talk was made of the plans for a comprehensive plan with respect to land use and also of intergovernmental coordination requirements. This was but a repetition of past statements made in the presentation of workable programs for prior years. The "City Record" of last year, page 203, minority report of Councillor William Foley best points out the administration's failure in this regard and the said minority report is incorporated in this report by reference.

The Administration shows an utter lack of concern over the many appeals from the present building requirement or zone restrictions that are being made regularly. After much study there is at present a plan for city-wide zoning which was passed by the Zoning Board over the veto of the Mayor and which becomes effective next April.

This has brought about a rush for appeals from the restrictions of the present and proposed zoning in order to beat the gun. You would think that in the interest of an over-all community plan the Redevelopment Authority would be concerned and would present their views at each of these hearings. The transcripts show an utter lack of interest or concern by the BRA in this regard.

3. Neighborhood Analyses: (The objective is the identification of the extent and intensity of blight and logical patterns of neighborhoods for purposes of developing a basis for planning of healthy neighborhoods of decent homes and suitable living environment).

The specific requirements are:

—housing conditions, including the location and extent of blight or potential blight; —characteristics of families affected by poor housing; —conditions in nonresidential areas, including location and extent of blight and potential blight;

—adequacy of community facilities and services, both public and private;

—causes of blight;

—steps needed to eliminate present blight and prevent future blight.

I find that the Administration has failed to provide a proper program for neighborhood analyses (see transcript dated August 8). It was stated by the Boston Redevelopment Authority representative (see page 209) that families in Boston were paying 12 to 18 per cent on rehabilitation loans. Up to the date of the hearing only 199 property owners of the over 1,700 properties involved had come into the office or had been visited by the staff. It took more than 4½ months to do this.

The hearings developed that only two of the properties in the entire Washington Park had been rehabilitated (see page 219), that there were only 13 applications being processed for FHA and some of these were going ahead independently; that certification of families displaced as a practical matter meant little; that in general people had to resort to conventional mortgages for the borrowing of money; that there is no organized program for neighborhood analyses for violations of minimum codes or to ascertain if substandard dwelling units were being offered for habitation; that at best only spot checks were made and then only in project areas. This despite the fact that in order to be effective there be at all times an effective code enforcement city-wide.

4. Administrative Organization: (The objective is a firmly established administrative responsibility and capacity for enforcement of codes and ordinances, and for carrying out renewal programs and projects).

The specific requirements are:

—placing of responsibility for coordination of workable program activities in a local official;

—a study group or committee for continuing review of codes and code compliance;

—an official local planning commission or agency in accord with state enabling legislation;

—placing of responsibility for neighborhood analyses in a given department or other official body;

—placing of responsibility for relocation planning and relocation assistance for displaced families in a given agency or officials;

—a citizens' advisory committee, community-wide representative in scope, and a subcommittee, or a special committee, on minority group housing.

There are many specific instances in the transcripts to demonstrate the failure or neglect to provide proper administrative organization such as the failure to fill such key positions as Land Disposition Officer even though both the position and budget for the same have been included in the budgets for the past two years. Our State Auditor, Thomas Buckley, has completed his audit of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, No. 63-H-79, and made it public over this past week end. It contains so many factual observations regarding the administrative organization that I am by incorporation including this report in lieu of the other statements I had prepared for this phase of the program.

5. Financing: (The objective is the development of means for meeting the financial obligation involved in carrying out urban renewal activities).

The specific requirements are:

—code compliance activities, including salaries of code enforcement officers and clerical personnel, and the cost of necessary office supplies, space and administrative overhead; —technical assistance (staff or consultant) for comprehensive community planning;

—zoning administration;

—subdivision control administration;

—technical assistance (staff or consultant) for neighborhood analyses (an extension of planning);

—capital improvements, all of which contribute to "community improvements" in the broad sense but some of which directly serve workable program objectives, such as, streets, lighting, parks, playgrounds, etc., in the neighborhoods to be upgraded.

Our State Auditor, Thomas Buckley, has completed his audit of the Boston Redevelopment Authority and made the same public over this past week end, No. 63-H-79. It contains so many factual and statistical data regarding financing that I am by incorporation including this report in lieu of the statements I had prepared for this phase of the program.

6. Housing for Displaced Families: (The objective is to facilitate the rehousing, in decent, safe, and sanitary accommodations, of families displaced by governmental action).

The specific requirements are:

—the Federal Government itself has prescribed the test as standard housing, housing which meets all of the minimum codes and ordinances and as close to transportation and place of employment within their means for all persons displaced by governmental action.

STATISTICS RE UNITS DEMOLISHED, FAMILIES DISPLACED, AVERAGE RENTS OF FAMILIES DISPLACED, AND RELOCATION OF FAMILIES DISPLACED

	Units Demolished	Families Displaced	Average Rents Per Month	New Units Constructed	New Rents
New York Streets.....	854	368	$41.00	-
West End.....	3,671	2,555	$43.00	460	$150 studio $210 1-bed room
Whitney Street.....	340	280	$47.47	95	$300 2-bedroom $140—studio
Government Center.....	584	440	$40.00
Washington Park*.....	573	698	$71.00
Castle Square.....	756	644	$31.00
	6,778			555

In addition to the above there will be approximately 2,252 more dwelling units demolished in the Dorchester Park area within the next three years, some takings to be made this September.

Also the Turnpike Authority has demolished, it has been estimated, a total of 1,050 dwelling units in 1962 and thus far in 1963. These are figures given by the BRA representative:

Year 1962, 750 dwelling units demolished.

Year 1963, 300 dwelling units demolished.

Boston's failure to date to comply with the minimum requirement of the relocation phase of the program is best evidenced by evaluating the statements made by Elizabeth Woods on July of last year with that made by Patrick Tompkins, Director of Family Relocation. In testifying before the Council, Miss Woods stated that there was sufficient housing available to relocate families that would be displaced by the Castle Square area and the Washington Park.

Both these projects were voted early acquisition areas last year. Yet as of August 2 of this year, according to testimony introduced at the hearings by Tompkins, there are 228 families still to be relocated in the Castle Square area and 210 in the Washington Park area (see transcripts of August 13).

The Administration's failure for proper concern for families displaced and the relocation of the same is also concluded that even as of to date they have not any specific data on the number of families displaced by the Turnpike Authority. This despite the fact that the City Council on at least four occasions on orders initiated by me and dating back to December of last year (page 355, 1962 "City Record", pages 45, 59, 149, 1963 "City Record"). After prolonged questioning and prodding at the hearings and after several telephone calls the BRA gave a figure of 1,050 as the number of dwelling units demolished by the Turnpike Authority for 1962 and 1963, but could give no specific data as to the size of families, rent paid, relocation, etc. In fact the BRA representative in answer to a question raised some doubt as to whether the program concerned itself with the families displaced by the Turnpike Authority.

Another representative stated that they would coordinate their efforts with that of any relocation committee set up by the Commonwealth.

The city has no organized procedure for caring for the needs of the families being displaced by the bulldozers and caterpillars for roads, and public works. It was reported that even in certain instances of families displaced by urban renewal their relocation units were substandard. This brings home forcefully the glaring weakness of the urban renewal in Boston; the failure and neglect of the administration to recognize and care for the needs of the people.

The Federal Government itself has prescribed the test as Standard Housing within their means and for all persons "Displaced by Governmental Action." The list under the heading of Persons Displaced by Government Action is all inclusive and includes even quasi public bodies.

7. Citizen Participation: (The objective is community-wide participation on the part of individuals and representative citizens' organizations which will help to provide, both in the community generally and in selected areas, the understanding and support which is necessary to insure success).

The specific requirements are:

(1) inform themselves of their community's activities—in progress and contemplated—and the needs for improvement with respect to planning, code adoption and enforcement, housing, public facilities, urban renewal and other workable program activities;

(2) assist in developing objectives and goals for improvement;

(3) inventory the community resources—public and private, present or needed—for accomplishing these objectives;

(4) learn and pursue the methods and means for achieving the determined goals for improvement; and

(5) serve as the medium for bringing private resources into the program.

I find that the Administration failed or neglected to apply themselves to this important phase of the program. Even the work among neighborhoods was hit and miss.

As of the date of the hearing of August 13, 1963, the Administration had failed or neglected to appoint a Citizen's Advisory Committee. After much prodding and the pointing out the reservoir of civic minded persons in the City of Boston available and the sensitiveness to the success of this program, the representative of the Boston Redevelopment Authority promised to name this committee prior to today's meeting, August 19, 1963.

August 19, 1963.

Hon. Peter F. Hines, President,
Boston City Council.

Dear President Hines:

Attached is a copy of the Mayor's statement concerning the Citizens Advisory Committee and the list of those people who have been asked by the Mayor to serve on the committee.

Nine copies were delivered to the City Council this morning, and the Chairman of the Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal Committee received a telephone call from me indicating that this list was being sent to the Council for its information.

Sincerely,

JOHN P. McMORROW,
Director, Administrative Management.

"CITIZENS ADVISORY COMMITTEE" NAMED BY MAYOR.

The formation of a "Citizens Advisory Committee" was announced today by Mayor John F. Collins.

Recently elected President of the American Municipal Association, one of Mayor Collins' first acts was to name this committee, whose membership will study, advise, and make recommendations on the "Boston Development Program."

"I am particularly gratified," said the Mayor, "at the overwhelming response to the invitation to serve on the committee. In view of this, I expect to issue additional invitations in the near future."

The full text of the Mayor's statement follows:

STATEMENT OF MAYOR JOHN F. COLLINS.

I am very pleased to announce the formation of a city-wide Citizens Advisory Committee for our Development Program.

Citizen participation and planning with people have been the hallmark of this program for a new and better Boston. To date this participation has been carried out through neighborhood associations and trade and business groups.

This teamwork has produced outstanding results, including Boston's designation as an All American City "in recognition of progress achieved through intelligent citizen action." The Citizens Advisory Committee will bring together the skills and energies of our civic leaders from all walks of life to provide advice, study, and recommendations on the over-all scope and pace of our program.

I am particularly gratified at the overwhelming response to the invitations to serve on this committee. In view of this, I expect to issue additional invitations in the near future.

The committee will be composed of nearly 300 citizens, including representatives from all the neighborhoods of Boston and from business, labor, and other groups as well. The CAC itself will plan to form subcommittees to give specialized study to various aspects of the Development Program, including the 1963-75 General Plan for Boston; the 1963-75 Capital Improvements Program, Code Enforcement, Education, and Relocation.

In addition, I am pleased to note that the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Minority Group Housing will also serve as a subcommittee of the CAC, as well as the Design Advisory Committee of the Boston Redevelopment Authority. Finally, the Board of Directors of Action for Boston Community Development will serve in a similar capacity with respect to programs of that organization.

The CAC will meet regularly in full assembly in addition to the meetings and work sessions of the subcommittees. I expect that the first meeting will be held in the very near future.

With this stepped-up and formal over-all city-wide Citizens Advisory Committee, I am confident that our progress in renewing Boston will be even greater. I am grateful to the members of the committee for their willingness to devote themselves to this important task.

CERTAIN INFORMATION RE CONTRACTS OF BOSTON REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY.

Coun. PIEMONTE offered the following:

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be, and is hereby, requested under the provisions of section 17F of chapter 271 of the Acts of 1951, and any amendments pursuant thereto, and under any other authority vested in the Boston City Council, at the meeting of the Council next ensuing after one week from the receipt of this order, answer in writing to the question set forth in the following:

(a) A schedule listing all contracts, consultants or otherwise awarded by the Boston Redevelopment Authority or their predecessor the Boston Housing Authority setting forth the date of the award of the contract or consultant's commission, the name of the person or consultant awarded the contract, the nature of the contract or commission, the amount to be paid under the contract or commission, the amount paid to date on each of the said contracts or commissions and to whom paid.

Passed under suspension of the rules.

RENEWAL PLANNING STUDY RE OLDER PROPERTIES.

Coun. FOLEY offered the following:

Whereas, It is harmful to an older commercial district to be under renewal planning study for a protracted period because older properties in the very nature of things need constant maintenance which is likely to be denied if the future of the specific parcel is in doubt;

Whereas, The Central Business District is an area in which there are many older properties which are likely to be retained according to testimony before the Urban Renewal Committee of the Boston City Council;

Whereas, The owners of such buildings should know as soon as possible that their buildings are to be retained, be it therefore;

Resolved, That the Boston City Council urges upon the Committee for the Central Business District, the Board of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, and his Honor the Mayor a policy of full and early disclosure of areas surely to be retained; areas and buildings likely to be retained, buildings likely to be cleared and developers and prospective tenants with whom there have been preliminary conversations of any nature by anyone associated in any way with either CCBD or the Boston Redevelopment Authority.

The resolution was adopted under suspension of the rules.

Faneuil Hall's Bells Ring Greeting as Ground's Broken for New City Hall

Somehow, the sun seemed to be in its gentlest mood as it bathed Faneuil Hall. Its rays sought out the best tones of the red brick and the most golden hues of the cupola. The grasshopper on the weathervane seemed to be taking the whole thing in contented pride. So did Sam Adams as he surveyed the scene.

You looked about you. None of the people, none of the dignitaries would be here a century hence. All would be gone to an eternity — an eternity that has neither years, nor centuries.

On some other September afternoon in 2063 someone else would be passing over the very spot on which you were standing. While the Firemen's Band played and the bells of Faneuil offered their muted tribute you thought of the past and tried to project yourself into the future.

A new City Hall!

You studied the model. You tried to visualize it expanded a hundred-fold over the spot where Mayor John F. Collins had just broken ground. You tried to place it in relation to Faneuil Hall. You tried to imagine the Plaza it would face and the rest of the Government Center.

Perhaps, many years ago, bewigged Bostonians with names like Adams, Faneuil, Revere, Hancock, and the rest felt as you did this fine September afternoon.

They, too, were starting a New Boston in their day.

They did a good job. The legacy they left was rich and its blessings many. Looking down from their Valhalla they must have been thrilled when they heard old Faneuil's bells, and saw the chrome-plated shovel in the hands of the Mayor take a symbolic bite out of the historic ground.

Then there was another historic afternoon. It was a little nearer to us on the calendar. Yet, it seems much longer than 100 years. That would be when a Mayor named Joseph M. Wrightman laid the cornerstone for another City Hall for Boston. That's the one which stands on School street today.

It must have been a beautiful, breath-taking structure a couple of years later when Mayor Frederic W. Lincoln dedicated the building on September 17, 1865. Now, it's old. Yet, it commands a degree of sentiment — even with its high ceilings, its steady refusal to give ground to the march of time. Today its once spacious offices are inadequate to meet the demands.

Today it's truly old and archaic by the standards of a new day and a New Boston.

Some day the new City Hall — close to Faneuil — will become old, too.

No one who shared with you the thrill of the September 18 ground breaking will be living when its useful days are deemed at an end.

And, again, there was no one present who wasn't earnestly hoping he'd share for a long time its years of youth and beauty — the early years when another New Boston would be standing tall and proud among her sister cities everywhere.

Freedom Bonds Offer Excellent Way to Save

Director Henry A. Scagnoli of the Administrative Services Department has sent out the following directive to all department heads and county officers:

This year, the Treasury Department is conducting a "Freedom Bond Drive."

The theme of the drive is "Keep Freedom in Your Future . . . with U. S. Savings Bonds."

His Honor, Mayor Collins, heartily endorses this drive and requests the following statement be issued:

"I ask that each of you in your own department give your personal support and interest to this drive. Payroll savings is a real service to our people in helping them to build toward personal goals as well as being a means by which each American can contribute to his country's might in these critical times."

Mr. Emmett J. Kelly, Assessing Department, has been selected to act as General Chairman of the drive to be held among City of Boston employees, starting on September 30 and continuing through October 11.

In accordance with our recent meeting with department heads, you are requested to appoint an employee of your department to act as department chairman.

It would be appreciated if you would forward to Mr. Kelly at once the name of the employee.

Please cooperate in every way to insure the success of the "Freedom Bond Drive."

Slight Drop Recorded In August Birth Rate

Boston's birth rate showed a slight decline in August, the city Registry Division reports.

Births numbered 2,024 as compared to 2,082 for the same month in 1962. This decrease, however, was not enough to offset the rise in births for the eight-month period in 1963 with 15,488. There were 15,133 babies born in Boston during the first eight months of 1962.

Marriage figures—August, 1963, 758; August, 1962, 748; eight months, 1963, 4,450; same period, 1962, 4,468.

McGrimley Sworn in for 2d Term on BRB

Attorney Thomas J. McGrimley of Roslindale, who was re-elected to a second term on the Boston Retirement Board, was sworn in on September 5 by City Clerk Joseph Dunlea.

The Board administers the retirement fund of all City of Boston and Suffolk County employees. It consists of three members: one of whom is appointed by the Mayor, the second is the City Auditor, and the third is elected for a term of three years by the more than nineteen thousand City of Boston and Suffolk County employees.

Attorney McGrimley is presently a member of the Board of Trustees of the Boston Public School Teachers' Retirement Fund and is a guidance counselor in the Boston Public School System. He is a member of the Executive Board of the Greater Boston Massachusetts Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO, and is a member of the Boston Teachers' Union.

He is a graduate of Boston University, holds a master's degree from Boston College, and obtained his law degree from Suffolk University. A practicing attorney, he is a member of the State, Federal, and Supreme Court bars, is married and the father of four children.

A veteran of World War II, he holds the rank of major in the Air Force Reserve.

Employees of the City of Boston and Suffolk County in the State-Boston Retirement System elected McGrimley to this office from a field of nine candidates.

SWORN—While Mayor Collins, right, looks on, Attorney Thomas J. McGrimley of Roslindale is sworn for his second term on the Boston Retirement Board by City Clerk Joseph Dunlea, left.

MTA Holds Domain Rights Over B. & M.

Attorney General Edward W. Brooke ruled that the MTA has eminent domain power over property of the Boston & Maine Railroad. The issue was raised by DPW Commissioner Jack P. Ricciardi, whose office said the DPW wanted the agency's rights clarified.

There are tidelands (property owned by the state but leased indefinitely to private parties) in contemplated route of the MTA extension towards Malden.

Private Enterprise in Action Says REB Head

"The 'Demolition Ceremony' heralding the construction of a modern apartment building at 151 Tremont street has unusual significance," commented Myron C. Roberts, President of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

"Tremont street should be comparable to the famous Fifth avenue of New York City but during the past decade it has not developed in keeping with its prestige.

"The building projected by the First Realty Company of Boston and York Realty Company should spark a revitalization of Tremont street symbolic of the 'New Boston', stated Roberts who added, "It is interesting to note that this important construction is an excellent example of private enterprise in action."

Demolition Started for New Boston's $100 Million Mile at 151 Tremont St.

Demolition for the city's first downtown apartment skyscraper, 151 Tremont on the Common, was begun September 12 on the site of the former Slattery and Coleman Department stores on Tremont street overlooking Boston Common.

The 25-story contemporary apartment development will contain a five-story garage for tenants' use and will have retail shops along Tremont street.

The $12 million complex will be built and managed by the First Realty Company of Boston and York Realty Company and is the first non-subsidized, private urban renewal in the city.

In outlining the scope of the development, President Max R. Kargman of the First Realty Company noted:

1. The original White Fund site, which was awarded to the First Realty Company of Boston following a development competition, has been expanded through the private purchase of additional land which has more than doubled the Tremont Street frontage.

2. The new building will contain more than 560,000 square feet of space, will be fully air conditioned and have approximately 380 living units.

3. In addition to a luxurious lobby entrance, Tremont on the Common will have specialty retail shops. The garage facility has been especially designed for 100 per cent tenant parking with additional space to service the stores and shops in the retail core area. The "carriage trade" will find parking facilities adjacent to the new shopping facilities.

4. It is expected that the building will become Boston's Number One address. Apartment occupants will be able to drive into the building, leave their cars and take an elevator directly to their apartments.

FACING HISTORIC COMMON—This stirring architect's concept of 151 Tremont street on the Common will become the pace-maker for a great general uplift of the entire core city. It is the city's first non-subsidized, privately financed urban renewal. It will be a dominating factor in New Boston's $100 million mile.

151 Tremont St. . . .

5. A health club, heated outdoor swimming pool, and restaurant facilities are designed for the fifth floor.

Vista Includes Charles

6. On the west, the apartments will overlook the Common and Public Garden, and have a sweeping view of the Charles River through Newton. On the east the building will have a magnificent view of the entire harbor facilities and islands.

7. Apartments will have spacious balconies with the most up-to-date kitchen and bathroom facilities. Five high speed, automatic elevators will serve the building.

8. Financing will be by 10 Massachusetts Savings Banks cooperating to make the largest single loan in savings bank history. The participating banks are: The Suffolk Franklin Savings Bank, the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, the Charlestown Savings Bank, the Dedham Institution for Savings, the East Boston Savings Bank, the Dorchester Savings Bank, the Provident Institution for Savings, the South Boston Savings Bank, the Union Savings Bank, and the Warren Institution for Savings.

9. S. J. Kessler & Sons of New York are architects and Riskin and Fried of Boston are associate architects. Mr. Kessler has had extensive experience in the high-rise apartment field and has designed many of New York City's most famous apartment structures, including the $60 million Lincoln Square Towers, the $37 million Washington Square development, the $32 million Kips Bay Redevelopment, and the Rockaway Seaside area's $65 million development.

10. Rents, depending upon the apartment location will run from $165 per month to $500 per month. Two penthouse apartments have been designed for the 25th floor and these units will have sweeping views of both the Common and the waterfront. These units will have five baths and will be the most luxurious penthouse facilities in New England.

$100 Million Mile

In introducing Mayor Collins who signaled the start of demolition, Mr. Kargman had high praise for his Honor's leadership, vision and administrative strength which made the development possible. He emphasized that the investment climate in Boston has changed during the last three years and that with the tax rate not only held but being reduced, risk capital, for the first time in many years, is returning to the city. As a result of this new climate for investment, Kargman predicted the biggest real estate boom during the next decade that Boston has ever seen.

He also praised the White Fund Trustees, Boston's City Council, and the Boston Redevelopment Authority for their help and cooperation during the difficult planning phase.

The well-known developer — who is one of the largest owners of office buildings in downtown Boston (owning 10, 18, 110, 120 Tremont street, 6 Beacon, and 31 State street) is now completing River-view-in-Cambridge, a multimillion-dollar apartment development for the Cambridge Redevelopment Authority on the Charles River. His firm is also constructing the first middle-income housing on the Notre Dame Academy site in Washington Park for the Boston Redevelopment Authority.

Walter K. Winchester, Vice-President in Charge of Development, First Realty Company of Boston, predicted that the area between Scollay square and Boylston street will become Boston's "One Hundred Million Dollar Mile." He emphasized that this development will provide the catalyst in the Tremont Street area and will help to expand the city's tax base by providing a badly needed lift for the general area. Mr. Winchester said it would also bring into the heart of the retail core, high income people with the purchasing power that downtown sorely needs.

Birmingham, Alabama, has $31 million earmarked in a 10-year development plan. Under way, too, is a $50 million urban highway program.

BCH Alumnae to Hold Homecoming, Sept. 21

The Boston City Hospital School of Nursing Alumnae Association will hold its annual Homecoming Day, Sept. 21, at the Dowling Amphitheater of the Dowling Building. This year's program is planned to be one of the most interesting ever presented and alumnae of classes recent and not-so-recent are urged to attend.

Moving Costs Okayed for State Seizures

Persons forced to relocate because of State Department of Public Works' right-of-way takings will receive payment for the cost of moving under legislation signed recently by Governor Endicott Peabody. The bill directs the Department of Public Works to pay "reasonable and necessary moving expenses."

The State Department of Public Works is authorized to assume costs of up to $200 for an individual or family and up to $3,000 for a business. The state will be reimbursed, in part, by the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

James J. Rourke

James J. Rourke, 58, of Hobson street, Brighton, court officer at Brighton District Court for 20 years, died recently at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

A lifelong resident of Brighton, Mr. Rourke was known as "Bud" by close acquaintances. He graduated from Brighton High School.

He was a veteran of World War II and a member of the American Legion Post 17, Brighton-Aliston, and the Suffolk Court Officers Association.

Surviving are his wife, Mary G., two sons, James, Jr., and John W.; a daughter, Ann F.; a sister, Virginia of Brighton, and a brother, Raymond A. of Newton.

Playland to Be Small Disneyland for Festival

Playland on the Common will become a miniature Disneyland during the Boston 1963-64 Christmas Festival, if present plans being worked out by Festival Director Paul Hines materialize and right now they're off to a running start.

Accent will be on toys — toys of every type and description. Toys planned and fabricated with the idea of giving every small child a thrill when the big holiday season rolls around.

The other day, Director Hines was in conference with Display Artist Walter V. Krysto and Lawrence S. Colwell, a toy authority, both outstanding in their lines.

One of the features they discussed was a great toy electric train system. Adjacent to it will be a space display that should carry the small fry, as well as the grownups, into a world of fantasy and joy.

In the accompanying picture Krysto is shown pointing to the roof of the permanent wooden tent in Playland to be utilized to house and shelter the electric train against rain, wind, and snow. It will be enlarged on both ends to cover an area of 40 by 20 feet, the space needed to accommodate the train's tracks, tunnels, bridges, switches, signals, and lights.

C. of C. Hails Start Tremont St. Building

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce applauded the First Realty Company of Boston and the York Realty Company in starting demolition and construction of their downtown development, it was announced by James G. Roberts, Chamber executive vice-president.

Roberts said, "The new construction along what was once the city's busiest and most beautiful streets will be another great asset to Boston. It will provide necessary downtown residential apartments, shops, and retail space."

Roberts added that the present site "contributes little to the city in tax revenue and the new building will provide substantial real estate taxes."

He emphasized new capital investment along this magnificent thoroughfare will be stimulated.

In keeping with Mayor Collins' request, the spiritual phase of the Christmas display will be enhanced this year and all of the religious figures will be rearranged to convert the heroic-sized crèche that annually dominates the Christmas display at the Common during the festival into a shrine of magnificent charm and beauty.

Holy Days Leave

Mayor Collins in Circular Letter No. 16 addressed the following order to all department heads:

"You are hereby directed to grant leave of absence, without loss of pay, to employees of the city who are of the Jewish faith, for the observance of the Jewish New Year beginning on September 18 at sundown and ending on September 20, 1963, at sundown, also on Yom Kippur beginning at sundown on September 27, and ending on September 28, 1963, at sundown."

Isadore Muchnick

Isadore H. Y. Muchnick, 55, former member of the Boston School Committee and the City Council, died September 15 at Baker Memorial Hospital. He made his home on Hackensack terrace, West Roxbury, and since 1932 had practiced law.

He served three terms as City Councillor, 1941-47, and was a member of the School Committee, 1948-1952. He was chairman of the school board in 1952. He was born in the West End but spent most of his youth in Dorchester.

He was a graduate of Boston Latin School, Harvard College, and Harvard Law School. He was active in many civic affairs and in the work of educational organizations. He leaves Mrs. Muchnick, the former Ann Zusman; a daughter, Mrs. Frances Goldstein, of Brighton; a son, David, of West Roxbury; two brothers, Louis Y., of Chestnut Hill, and Samuel Y., of Atlanta, Georgia, and a sister, Mrs. Eva Hecklen, of Rochester, New York.

Rina M. Greene

Miss Rina M. Greene, one-time teacher in the Boston public schools, died recently in Ashburnham, where she had made her home in recent years. She was 82. She was graduated from Smith College in 1903 and after a period as a teacher in Fitchburg schools joined the Boston system.

Four-Year Limit for Liquor Spot Transfers

Holders of liquor licenses displaced in urban renewal projects must find new quarters within four years or automatically lose the licenses according to a finding by State Attorney General Brooke's office.

The decision by Assistant Attorney General Samuel Adams to the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission pertaining to a Worcester case also will have state-wide implications.

Adams' ruling means no community undergoing renewal, Boston, Springfield, and various other cities can allow license holders to keep the permits after the statutory deadline.

The ruling caused the ABC to order revocation of the license granted by the Worcester Licensing Commission to the New City Hotel, Inc., a dissolved corporation which held a license since displaced by urban redevelopment in 1957.

151 Tremont to Set Pace for City's Core

Executive Director Brinley M. Hall of the Committee for the Central Business District issued the following statement as demolition work got under way for the construction of 151 Tremont street opposite the Common:

"The Committee for the Central Business District is encouraged to learn that demolition activities are about to commence along the Tremont Street frontage to permit the construction by First Realty Company and York Realty Company of their new intown apartment house in that location.

"The structures to be razed have long been empty and in recent months their condition has deteriorated badly. The 'image' of downtown Boston that they presented to visitors and Bostonians alike has been discouraging to say the least. Their demolition will eliminate a seriously blighted group of unused buildings, and furthermore will make it possible for new development to take place. We earnestly hope that construction of the new building will commence immediately upon completion of demolition activities.

"Not only should this new building ultimately add substantially to the city's tax base, but there is every reason to expect that it will serve as a catalyst for the upgrading of other properties in its vicinity, as well as for important new developments in the central business district generally.

"The prospect of the early reestablishment of residential facilities in this prime location on Tremont street overlooking the Boston Common, after an absence of several generations of Bostonians, is not only exciting in and of itself.

"Because this appears by common consent to be the highest and best use of the land in question, it could prove to be the forerunner of other residential structures to be built in similar locations in the years ahead. Boston will capitalize on the unique advantages to urban living afforded by such close proximity to the principal shopping, office, hotel, theater and restaurant areas of the city, to say nothing of the Public Garden and the Common."

Swift Action Against School Bus Passers

If you are looking for a quick way to lose your driver's license, just violate the "School Bus Law."

Registrar James R. Lawton is making it perfectly clear to everyone that he's calling for swift action against all violators.

"There will be an automatic license suspension for any motorist who violates the provisions of this law," he said.

"Too many complaints are being received here at the Registry of vehicles which are not stopping when approaching a school bus from either direction."

In 1962 school buses were involved in 87 motor vehicle accidents. "We have already had reports of 33 accidents involving school buses in 1963, and this can not continue," he said. Additionally, in 1962, 59 pedestrians—

14 years or under—were killed in Massachusetts, and 3,305 children under 14, who were pedestrians were injured.

Under the provisions of the School Bus Law, a motorist approaching a school bus from either direction must come to a full stop before proceeding. A motorist may proceed only when the school bus resumes motion, or when he is signaled by the bus driver to proceed, or when the blinker lights on the bus stop flashing. The only exception to this rule is when the motorist approaches the school bus from the opposite direction on a divided highway.

Any motor vehicle which displays a sign bearing the words "School Bus" on a yellowish-orange background and is equipped with front and rear blinker lights which are flashing, and which is stopped to allow passengers to alight or board, is deemed a "School Bus" for purposes of the Massachusetts statute.

"Noncompliance with this law, whether deliberate or otherwise, creates a dangerous situation to school children," Registrar Lawton said.

VIII. COMMENDATIONS.

At 6.36 A.M., Tuesday, August 27, 1963, Ladder Company 10 responded on a still alarm to the Lemuel Shattuck Hospital. Upon arrival at the foregoing location, a man was seen clinging to the metal rungs of the hospital smokestack about 75 feet above the ground. As the ladder truck pulled into the driveway of the hospital, the man climbed to the top of the chimney, about 210 feet above the ground.

Fire Fighter James F. Loftus of Ladder Company 10 volunteered to climb the stack and attempt to persuade the man to descend. Fire Fighter Loftus then climbed to the top of the stack and talked to the man. After a long period, he was successful in fastening a life belt about the man and locked it on to a rung. With the assistance of members of Ladder Company 10, a life line was pulled to the top of the stack so that Fire Fighter Loftus could attach it and the man could be lowered to the ground. The climber caused Fire Fighter Loftus considerable concern by trying to unfasten his life belt and releasing the hook. The victim, with Fire Fighter Loftus to guide him, was finally coaxed down from his lofty perch by a nurse, speaking through a megaphone, who had attended the man while he was a patient at Boston State Hospital.

Because of the fact that Fire Fighter Loftus performed this rescue work with considerable risk to his own person, the Fire Commissioner is pleased to commend him highly, and his case is referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

At 7.25 P.M., July 24, 1963, the department responded to an alarm from Box 1614 for a fire at 9 Hingham street, Boston. Upon arrival at the scene, District Fire Chief Michael L. Galvin was informed by a citizen that a woman occupant of the building was trapped on the top floor, the hallways and stairways being cut off by fire which prevented her escape.

Before ventilation had been accomplished and charged hose lines were placed in operation, Fire Fighters Joseph H. Hardiman and John M. Morrissey of Ladder Company 3 ascended a ladder to a fire escape on the building, proceeded to the third floor, entered a window and groped their way through heavy smoke, heat and flame until they found the trapped woman. They then carried her back to the fire escape and down to the street from whence she was taken to the City Hospital.

Fire Fighters Hardiman and Morrissey performed this rescue work without the protection of gas masks and both suffered burns to their hands from the heated metal of the fire escape. Fire Fighter Hardiman was treated at the scene and Fire Fighter Morrissey was removed to the City Hospital.

Because of the fact that this rescue was carried out under extremely hazardous conditions and without thought for their own safety, the Fire Commissioner is pleased to highly commend Fire Fighters Hardiman and Morrissey, and their cases are referred to the Board of Merit for further consideration.

IX. COMMENDATION.

Working Foreman Lineman and Cable Splicer Arthur W. Wagner is hereby commended for making emergency repairs to a fire alarm cable box near Weld and Maple streets, West Roxbury, on August 21, 1963, which had been knocked down. Working Foreman Wagner who was off duty went to the location, closed the opened circuits and made emergency repairs, thereby putting the fire alarm system for the circuits back in operation.

On report of the knockdown, the Fire Alarm emergency truck had been immediately dispatched to the location but was held up in traffic.

Personnel Order No. 218.

Patrolmen Charles E. Culbert, Jr., George H. Connell, and Robert P. Nicholson of the Tactical Patrol Force are hereby commended for meritorious police duty.

As a result of a series of robberies during the early morning hours on Boston Common these officers were selected to initiate what is known as "Operation Decoy." The officers were attired in clothing similar to that worn by people frequenting the area and as one officer acted as the decoy the others kept him under close surveillance.

At about 2.30 A.M., Monday, July 22, 1963, Patrolman Culbert was approached from the rear by two men, one of whom secured a choke hold on the officer and demanded his money.

Patrolman Culbert broke the choke hold, drew his service revolver and with the assistance of his fellow officers quickly subdued the robbers. Both defendants have been bound over for appearance before the grand jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the devotion to duty of these officers whose actions have resulted in the apprehension of two dangerous felons.

September 3.

Personnel Order No. 219.

Patrolmen Neil M. Powers, James R. Milroy, and Charles E. Culbert, Jr., of the Tactical Patrol Force are hereby commended for meritorious police duty.

At about 11.20 P.M., Friday, August 9, 1963, a vicious assault with intent to rape was committed upon a 59-year-old woman in her home in the Roxbury district. The perpetrator was seen leaving the scene and an immediate description broadcast.

The above-named officers assigned to Tactical Patrol Force Alert Car No. 6 were dispatched to the area and began a diligent search.

Searching building by building and alley by alley they finally observed their quarry in a construction area adjacent to the Marcella Street Playground. After a chase on foot through the district and a violent struggle the suspect was taken into custody. Further investigation revealed that he had broken into another apartment in the same district earlier that evening.

He has been bound over for the grand jury in $25,000 bail on these charges.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the alertness and devotion to duty displayed by these officers whose immediate action on this occasion resulted in the apprehension of this dangerous and vicious criminal.

September 9.

Personnel Order No. 229.

Patrolman Vincent B. Giannusa, Jr., of the Traffic Division is hereby commended for meritorious police duty and is awarded three days of additional vacation.

At about 1 p.m., Monday, August 26, 1963, while directing traffic at the intersection of Washington and Summer streets, Patrolman Giannusa was notified by the manager of the Beneficial Finance Company, 8 Winter street, that a man had just committed an armed robbery at that office and escaped with $120 in cash.

Patrolman Giannusa, being familiar with the pattern of recent holdups in the area, went immediately to the lower level of the MTA Winter Street Station. A man answering the meager description given was about to board a subway train. Patrolman Giannusa, with drawn revolver, approached the suspect, disarmed him of a .22 caliber revolver and placed him under arrest.

Investigation revealed that the arrested man was the much wanted "lunch hour bandit" who would leave his job as a factory worker during the noon lunch hour period to rob loan company offices. He has been identified as the perpetrator of nine recent armed robberies in Boston, Cambridge, and Quincy, and is now held in $35,000 bail for the grand jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the alertness and good judgment of Patrolman Giannusa whose prompt action on this occasion resulted in the apprehension of a dangerous and much wanted criminal.

What hostess isn't worried about seating arrangements for her guests? Fortunately, English hostesses can call for assistance in this etiquette-laden matter by writing to the "Heralds of the College of Arms" and hope for an answer as superb as the one received by the anxious hostess of the Aga Khan.

"The Aga Khan," wrote the experts, "is held by his followers to be the direct descendant of God. An English Duke takes precedence."

INVOCATION BY THE RIGHT REVEREND CHRISTOPHER P. GRIFFIN.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Father of infinite wisdom, power, and love, guard we beseech Thee our steps, and enable us to accept the disciplines of this day, the burdens of this session, and the responsibilities of this high office as councillor. Amid the intemperances of our times, the commotions, and hostilities teach us to discern always the sanctity of each individual citizen of the city—the dignity of each person, the hidden power of sympathy and brotherhood hidden in each human heart. The errand of this republic, the high mission of this noble form of self government will be fulfilled when the cruel barriers are lowered and we shall see all citizens of this venerable and beloved City of Boston living together without fear, without hate, without want. No rivalries can destroy, no controversies defeat our belief in the sublime dignity, the imperishable destiny, the priceless worth of each and every single human within our city's borders. May that day soon dawn when we can repeat the ancient words of the psalmist "Behold How Right and Fair It Is for Brothers to Dwell Together As One. Amen.

Hub Leads N. E. Area In Housing for Aged

Boston leads the New England region in the construction of housing especially designed for the elderly, it was announced by Chairman Edward D. Hassan of the Boston Housing Authority.

Statistics compiled by the Public Housing Administration indicate that Boston also ranks with the nation's leaders in the number of projects completed in this specialized field.

Six housing developments for the elderly have been completed and opened for occupancy by the Boston Housing Authority within the past 17 months. The federally aided William J. Foley Apartments for the Elderly, recently dedicated by Mayor John F. Collins, brought up the total to seven.

The state-aided Franklin Field, in Dorchester, the first to be completed, opened for occupancy in April, 1962. Other housing developments for the elderly which were opened and occupied before the end of 1962 were Elm Hill in Roxbury, Bickford and Pond streets in Jamaica Plain, and Annapolis and Ashmont streets in Dorchester, all federally aided.

Together with the William J. Foley Apartments for the Elderly, they provide a total of 480 living units for people over 65 living on limited incomes.

The program, designed to meet the growing need for safe and decent low-rent housing for elderly people, is continuing at a steady pace.

Another 80 units is being constructed in another state-aided development at Franklin Field, adjacent to the one already occupied.

Eight federally aided projects and one state-aided project are planned to provide another 680 apartments.

Although approximately 3,600 elderly people, individuals or couples, already live in regular public housing or in the newly constructed housing for the elderly, Chairman Hassan said, the supply of low-rent housing apartments now available to this group is not adequate.

Old West Church to Undergo Restoration

A drive for funds for the renovation and restoration of the historic Old West Church, which served as a BPL branch in recent years is under way. The original structure was raised in 1737 and in its early days it was closely linked with the nation's birth.

Christmas Festival To Be Held Nov. 22-Jan. 6

The 1963 Boston Christmas Festival will be opened Friday, November 22, through January 6, Mayor John F. Collins announced this week.

Choral groups and instrumentalists will present more than 100 concerts of Christmas music at the chapel on Boston Common.

A gigantic "Toyland" on Boston Common will include electric trains, animated dolls, figures, puppets, mannequins, and large toys. Santa's workshop will have eight reindeer, Sicilian donkeys, and sheep.

More than a million persons are expected to view the Boston Common display during the holiday season.

West End Developer Tells of '64 Plans

January will see the start of construction of the third commercial parcel in the West End Redevelopment according to Vice-President Theodore J. Shoolman of the Charles River Park, Inc.

Shoolman said construction of a third residential parcel, bringing to six the total number of apartment buildings in the project would begin a few months later.

He said the two new parcels, added to the one completed and occupied and a second now under construction, would bring to $45,-000,000 the investment in the project.

Shoolman said the proposed commercial center, with an entrance off Cambridge street, would rise around a landscaped plaza and parking area and include a 300-room motor hotel, a small office building, a motion picture house, and a supermarket.

In addition, he said, there would be 55,000 square feet of additional store space on an upper-level, glass-enclosed promenade.

Describing the promenade as the first of its kind in New England, Shoolman said it will be air conditioned and served by an escalator. He said the first such promenade was built in Minneapolis and has proved popular with shoppers there.

The surface parking area will have room for 170 cars, with 750 to be accommodated in an underground garage.

SHOVELING CAN BE A PLEASURE—While BRA Treasurer James G. Colbert, second right, looks on without a shovel, three smilingly enthusiastic workers turned the ground for the start of new City Hall. Three Firemen Win Citation for Heroism

Three Boston firefighters were commended September 11 for heroism by Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Griffin.

Cited by the Commissioner were Ladderman James Loftus, Truck Company 10; Laddermen Joseph Hardiman, president of Firefighters Local 718, and John Morrissey, both of Truck 3, South Boston. Loftus won the John F. Fitzgerald Medal in 1962 for rescuing a mental patient from a perch on a 226-foot chimney.

Loftus on August 27 repeated his 1962 feat at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital. On this occasion he talked to a patient atop a chimney at the hospital for a long period and finally managed to snare the would-be jumper and lower him to safety in a safety belt.

Hardiman and Morrissey, without masks or protective hose streams, climbed to the third floor of a South End building to rescue a trapped woman.

Commissioner Griffin and Acting Chief William Terrenzi ordered the cases of the three men sent to the Board of Merit for further consideration stating "they carried out the rescues under extremely hazardous conditions and without thought for their own safety."

W. J. Morrissey

William J. Morrissey, South Boston native, who served as a member of the Boston Police Department for 30 years before his retirement three years ago died September 22. Since his retirement he had been a guard at the New England Merchants National Bank.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Police Chiefs Association, the Boston Police Relief Association, the American Legion, and Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus. His home was at 56 Old Morton street, Dorchester.

He leaves his wife, Beatrice A. (Gould); a daughter, Miss Ellen B. Morrissey; a brother, the Rev. John W. Morrissey of St. Barbara's Church, Woburn; and two sisters, the Misses Idabelle and Esther A. Morrissey, both of South Boston.

Swiss Flower Clock Set Up in Copley Sq.

Copley square is assured of plenty of visitors in the weeks just ahead.

This week the Park Department just about completed preliminary work for the installation of the handsome flower clock—a gift of the watchmakers of Switzerland to the New Boston.

Decision to make the gift was reached after Mayor Collins had expressed admiration for the beauty of the clocks. It is the third to be set up in the United States. Other cities boasting of the floral chronometers in this country are San Francisco and Denver.

All are replicas of the grander one in Geneva, Switzerland, which annually attracts thousands of visitors.

Boston's clock has gold-colored, aluminum hour and minute hands of a total combined outstretched length of 17 feet, 6 inches. It also has a second sweep hand of the same color.

Beneath, the Boston Park Commission has laid out the floral design clock face which can be changed with the seasons for more colorful display.

It's possible to tell the time from any west-side direction of the park. But the best view is from the front steps of the Public Library as the mounded clock face is set at a 30-degree angle facing West.

The mechanism itself consists of a giant-size pocket watch without a face and encased in heavy metal capable of resisting shock and weather.

The sturdy hand post protrudes from the center through the clock's concrete cradlebunker, and the garden soil atop.

Dating Age. "How was it?" asked the mother of a boy who had just taken his first girl to his first dance.

"Oh, fine," he replied. "But every time we got going good on the dance floor, old Harris would cut in."

"Well, that's life when you take a pretty date to a party," said his mother. "I know, I know," the boy said mournfully. "But old Harris is a girl!"

Thomas Black Named Welfare Board Overseer

Mayor John F. Collins recently announced appointment of Thomas Black, prominent insurance and banking executive, to the Board of Overseers of the Boston Public Welfare Department.

The new overseer makes his home at 9 Hatherly road, Brighton. He is president of the Thomas Black Insurance Agency, vice-president and director of the Chestnut Hill Co-operative Bank and is affiliated with the directorships of many banking, insurance, commercial, and charitable organizations.

He began his career as a taxicab driver in Boston during the 20's and still holds his card as a charter member of the Independent Taxi Operators' Association which he helped found in 1924.

Four Retiring Civilian Police Workers Feted

More than 120 policemen and civilian employees of Boston Police Headquarters attended a farewell dinner, September 16, for four civilian attachés.

Honored at the Commonwealth Motor Hotel were Margaret O'Connor, assistant secretary to the commissioner; Rose McDermott, budget clerk; Alice Tagen, records clerk, and Mrs. Helen Middleton, statistics clerk. Each is retiring with nearly 40 years' service.

Commissioner Edmund L. McNamara was the main speaker, Deputy Superintendents John J. Danehy and William Taylor also spoke. Globe police reporter Edward A. Costello was toastmaster.

Entertainment was provided by Detective Thomas Adams of the commissioner's office and Al Kreponetski of the Hackney Division.

Double Topping for New B.U. Law School

Boston University's new 19-story law-education building received not one topping but two the other day when builders reached deeply into old traditions of their trade for gimmicks to mark the building's top height.

Workmen cheered as a huge crane lifted a tree 261 feet to the top of the $5.5 million classroom structure.

Then a 64-square foot likeness of a mortarboard, the academic headpiece with a gold tassel, topped out the building a second time.

Topping out is a centuries-old custom. The tree is to mark the erection of the building to its highest point and to bring good luck both to the workers and to future occupants.

Once when the famous Bishop Warren A. Candler was preaching to a large audience, he used as his text the story of Ananias and Sapphira, who told a lie to God and were struck dead. The old bishop roared, "God doesn't strike people dead for lying like He used to. If He did, where would I be?" When his audience snickered a bit, he roared back, "I tell you where I would be. I would be right here preaching to an empty house!"

WELFARE COSTS FOR AUGUST

Following is a summary of the Welfare Department for August:

During the month of August, to cover the cost of its various programs, a departmental outlay of $3,732,547 was required. This expenditure provided assistance to 28,613 persons and families for an over-all average payment of $130.28. There were 1,366 applications approved, 1,132 cases closed, and 353 requests rejected or withdrawn during the month.

Old Age Assistance: For the first time in the past six months, the cost of this program dipped below the $1 million mark. An average expenditure of $84.44 to service eligible clients totaled $985,759. Although 204 recipients were added to the rolls, 239 cases were closed, leaving the current caseload at 11,454. This is a decrease of 35 from last month.

Medical Assistance for Aged: August found 424 applications processed, with 296, nearly 70 per cent, approved and 128 rejected or withdrawn. The policy of transferring eligible clients from Old Age Assistance and Disability Assistance when health is the prime dependency factor contributes to the ever increasing caseload in this category. Just over two thirds of the 6,386 clients received assistance during the month at a cost of $846,157 averaging $191.69 per client.

Aid to Dependent Children: The caseload in this category continues to expand and its costs to increase. The disbursement of $1,311,077 provided care for 7,275 families embracing 7,200 parents and 20,924 children. Approval was given to 311 applications motivated chiefly by insufficient income as a result of desertion, legal separation, or divorce. Reemployment of 81 wage earners accounted for almost 40 per cent of the 210 cases closed during the month.

Disability Assistance: Caseload activity in this category showed that in addition to the 155 approvals and 122 closings, 85 applications were rejected. Of the latter, 52 or 60 per cent was for failure to meet medical requirements. Payments issued directly to 3,217 clients or to vendors in their behalf, required the allocation of $437,949 for an average expenditure of $135.95.

General Relief: The General Relief caseload rose slightly during the month. Unemployment due to illness or job layoff accounted for 350 of the 400 applications approved. Nearly paralleling this situation was the closing of 366 cases due to reemployment. The cost of the program for the month was $151,605 providing an average of $73.26 to 2,060 clients.

The Miami city commission decided a while ago it should have a municipal-beautification committee. Twenty-five members seemed like a good number. But word got around and it seemed that everyone wanted to belong. Request after request was granted until 131 citizens had been appointed. Then the committee had a meeting. Nineteen members showed up.

Most organizations are started so members can hear a few good speakers. But once the group gets going, the purpose quickly changes to trying to find a few good speakers to address the group. Once a speaker is obtained, however, the objective quickly changes again to trying to get enough members to attend the meeting so the speaker will have someone to speak to.

3,100 Pensioners to Receive Payment Hikes Under Order OK'd by Mayor

Increased pension payments to more than 3,100 retired Municipal and Suffolk County workers, ranging from $100 to $400 annually, were made effective October 1, under a measure approved by Mayor Collins.

Widows of some deceased employees will also benefit by the Mayor's action.

The increase was made possible by a permissive act of the present legislature, which allowed the hikes if the act's provisions were accepted by the various cities and towns of the commonwealth. The Mayor immediately submitted his order for approval to the City Council by filing it with the council the same day it reached his desk.

"It is an order I have been most happy to approve," said the Mayor, "I have long been keenly aware of the need for more liberal benefits to those former city workers who served the city faithfully during their working years."

Administration of the new order, it was estimated, will cost something in excess of $480,000.

The following communication in connection with the schedule has been sent to all department heads and payroll clerks by Budget Commissioner Henry T. Brennan:

His Honor, the Mayor, having approved Chapter 478 of the Acts of 1963, to be effective on October 1, 1963, certain pensions are to be increased subject to the following provisions and limitations:

1. No increase in any case to anyone retired after December 31, 1962.

2. No increase to anyone now receiving $2,800 per year or over.

3. Only the portion of the increase, if any, to those receiving under $2,800 per year if the full increase would bring the pension over $2,800 per year.

4. Those departments which have a pension roll for veterans who have been retired under Section 58 of Ch. 32 (these people had to have 30 years' service) shall increase such pension $200 per year.

(a) If the person so retired under Section 58 had 35 years of service at time of retirement and was 65 years of age at the time such pension shall be increased by $300.

(b) Those persons who were retired as veterans under Chapter 490 of the Acts of 1961 (25 years of service and age 65 being the requirement) shall be increased by $200 per year.

5. Those veterans who were retired under Section 56 or 57 of Chapter 32 (which is the Ordinary Disability Section for veterans) shall be increased by $100 per year regardless of age or service at time of retirement.

(a) further, those persons who were retired under Section 56 or 57 of Ch. 32 shall in addition to the increase under No. 5 shall be further increased if they meet the following requirements.

If age 60 at time of retirement with 15 years of service $100 per year.

If age 60 at time of retirement with 20 years of service $200 per year.

6. Those departments who have a non-contributory pension roll, such as Fire, Police, and School Departments, shall increase such pensions of those who meet the following requirements:

(a) if age 60 at time of retirement with 15 years' service $100 per year.

(b) if age 60 at time of retirement with 20 years' service $200 per year.

(c) if age 65 at time of retirement with 35 years of service $300 per year.

(d) with thirty years of service at time of retirement regardless of age at time of retirement $200 per year.

7. The Police and Fire Departments who have annuitants (widows only) on a pension roll under Section 89A of Ch. 32, shall increase such annuities by $100 provided the employee died before October 3, 1958, and that the employee had at least 10 years of service at the time of his death.

8. All departments who may have widows on a pension roll under Section 58B of Ch. 32 as widows of veterans, shall increase such annuities by $100 per year provided the employee had at least 10 years of service and the employee had died prior to October 3, 1958.

9. All increases are subject to notations numbered 1, 2, and 3 above. It is suggested that the payroll clerks contact Mr. Paul L. Carty of the Retirement Board on Ext. 284 or Mr. John J. Vaughan at the Retirement Board on Ext. 288 during the first week in October with any questions in order that the increases will be reflected on the October pension rolls. Personal calls are also invited if further explanation is necessary.

Ex-Police Officer Head of New Registry Unit

Robert J. Kelly, 69 Beryl street, Roslindale, former Boston police officer, has been appointed Supervisor of Special Investigations in the Registry of Motor Vehicles, Registrar James R. Lawton announced.

In his new position, Kelly, a practicing attorney, who has been a Motor Vehicles Inspector for 12 years, will head the 11-man criminal investigating task force within the Registry. Each man has full police powers, and works directly under the control of Registrar Lawton.

A major share of the Special Investigation Unit's work involves co-operation with other law enforcement agencies working on the falsification and forging of licenses and registrations.

Need of Fire Prevention Every Day Stressed by Commissioner Griffin

Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Griffin announced one of the most extensive Fire Prevention Week programs yet undertaken by the Boston Fire Department on October 6 through 12.

In a general order of the commissioner promulgated by Acting Chief William A. Terrenzi, the following program was issued:

(a) Fire stations shall be open to the public between the hours of noon and 8 P.M. for inspection of the premises and for the conveyance of information concerning the fire department functions and fire prevention matters. When citizens come to a station during Fire Prevention Week, the man on house patrol shall summon the commanding officer who should be available and ready to either show the visitors around the station and to answer questions regarding the department, or to have a suitable person assigned to this duty.

(b) Fire Prevention literature and Junior Fire Marshal badges will be passed out to children by the house patrol, but children will not be allowed to remain in quarters unless accompanied by a responsible adult.

(c) Canvas signs giving notice that Fire Prevention Week is in progress should be displayed from fire stations. Most stations have these signs in their possession from exhibitions of previous years, and it is the responsibility of company officers to see to it that these signs are kept in good condition from year to year. Signs should be displayed from Sunday to Saturday. Signs shall be checked daily by the officer in charge of quarters to assure that they are firmly affixed to the building in a proper manner.

Drills To Be Graded

District fire chiefs are directed to take an active interest in fire prevention programs in the following manner:

(a) By making arrangements with the various plants and industrial enterprises within the district to hold fire drills during the week; by grading these drills as "Good," "Fair," or "Poor," and making a report of same to the Fire

Prevention Division, indicating the name of the enterprise, the date of the drill and the grade. Same should be forwarded promptly. Each concern should be requested to acknowledge participation in Fire Prevention Week activities via written correspondence. These drills should be conducted by a company officer after arrangements are made. At plants where there are special or company fire brigades, particular attention should be given to assignments and/or response procedures. It is requested that the name of the company officer conducting the drill be furnished. It is anticipated that not less than three drills be conducted in each district.

New Trees Planned for City's Streets in Autumn Plantings

Mayor John F. Collins has announced approval of a contract award to Blueview Nurseries, 44 Codman Hill avenue, Dorchester, in the sum of $14,450 for "furnishing and planting trees on city streets and parkways."

Work is to be under direction of the tree division of the Parks and Recreation Department. Blueview Nurseries was the lowest of three bidders responding to publicly-advertised bid invitations on September 17.

Excavating and placing approximately 300 tree pits on the sidewalks of city streets, along parks and parkways in various sections are provided for in the contract. The trees are to be planted where directed by the supervisor in charge of the tree division.

It includes furnishing and planting in properly prepared pits, trees of such types and varieties as designated in the contract. If weather permits, it is hoped to have the work completed by November 30.

In the preparation of the pits, the contractor is required to excavate all earth, stones, brick, or concrete pavement or any other material encountered at specific tree locations. At the tree location where the existing walks are of concrete, the concrete shall be neatly cut out and removed and the remaining pavement shall be left to a neat edge around the perimeter of the pit. All tree pits shall be excavated to a standard depth. Proper loam must be purchased and spread and tree pits filled with the proper type of fertilizer.

Mayor Collins said the project is in accord with plans that he started in the first year of his administration whereby each year new trees have been planted on streets newly developed with houses and as a replacement of trees removed from other streets in various sections of the city. The trees, will be planted in sections of the city which require attention and from which citizen requests have been received.

Police, Hospitals Successfully Carry Out Realistic Disaster Drill With Army Assist

Boston's police department and eight of its major hospitals got a stiff test Tuesday afternoon, October 1.

Idea of the test was to determine how the police and hospitals would be able to handle a real serious accident—something of disaster proportions—involving, say, 200 casualties.

The police concluded the test with well-earned A's.
So did the hospitals.

There was no hiding the fact the 200 "casualties"—in this case, members of 20th Engineers Battalion, Fort Devens—earned kudos by the armful. They helped to make the emergency drill the most realistic thing that has hit the town since the airwaves carried Orson Welles' most horrendous hour into local radio sets a couple of decades back.

Hospitals participating were Boston City, Beth Israel, Carney, Faulkner, Children's Medical Center, Massachusetts General, Peter Bent Brigham and St. Elizabeth's.

The Boston Police Department supplied nearly a score of specialists trained in disaster work. In addition it handled the necessary communications and transport of casualties.

The Greater Boston Hospital Council developed plans for the drill and did the coordinating work under its executive director, William F. Voboril.

The test was called "Operation Disaster." Every effort was made to protect the element of surprise in the drill. The time and date and the general nature of the test were made known only to key officials of the cooperating groups.

Focal points in the program were White Stadium, Police Headquarters, and the eight hospitals. Starting time for action was 3 p.m. but the show actually got under way around one o'clock when Lieutenant Charles R. Gillen and Major John C. Hix brought the 200 "casualties" down from Fort Devens to White Stadium.

The soldiers were dispersed over the Stadium floor and designated as particular types of wounded. By 2.30 p.m. moulages, plastic recreations of various types of wounds, had been placed on legs, arms, heads, etc., of the injured. At 3 p.m. the disaster signal was passed to the Boston Police Department. The police, under Captain William J. Hogan of the Police Academy, immediately put into operation their pre-planned major disaster program. Police department disaster specialists were mobilized at White Stadium. These officers evaluated the injuries as quickly as possible and established a pattern of dispersal to the hospitals. Officials of the planning committee of the Greater Boston Hospital Council were on hand to help direct the flow of casualties to the hospitals via police ambulances and other emergency vehicles.

A physician member of the planning council was stationed in the radio room at Boston Police Headquarters to help coordinate the dispersal. Each of the participating hospitals had a direct "hot" line to the police radio room. The Boston Police Department also made available a mobile communications van at the site and a police car was stationed at each hospital to insure communication between the hospital, the disaster site and the police radio network.

The hospitals were notified by Police Radio Control that casualties would be arriving. The hospitals immediately put their own disaster plan into effect.

Fire Prevention . . .

(b) All public and private schools within each district shall be visited by a district chief or duly delegated company officer. School fire drills shall be held during Fire Prevention Week in all schools, both public and private. Permission should be obtained for the presentation of a five-minute talk on the subject of fire prevention. Such addresses should not be read from a printed manuscript. Every effort should be made to speak effectively and emphatically.

Home Inspection

The School Department in cooperation with the Fire Department is going to distribute "Home Inspection Blanks." Distribution of these blanks shall be by company officers within whose sub-districts the schools are located, and they shall be distributed during Fire Prevention Week. The teachers shall collect the completed blanks from the pupils, and in turn the company officers will collect from the various schools and return these blanks to the Fire Prevention Division with a summary of schools and total numbers collected on or before November 1. Posters for bulletin boards, two for each school, will also be distributed.

An essay contest is being conducted in all parochial and public schools in the city for the sixth grade of the grammar schools. The topic is "How to Keep Boston, the All-America City, Fire Safe." The essay is to be of 150 words or less. All officers and members are requested to show an interest in this essay contest and to answer questions concerning it to any student who may request information relative to Fire Prevention in order to complete his essay.

The district fire chief should compile a list of fraternal, social, civic and professional organizations within the district and advertise to them the willingness of the Fire Department to provide company officers for the purpose of lecturing on Fire Prevention at any time.

District fire chiefs should make a concerted effort to bring the activities of the department before these organizations and arrange for lectures to be given. The name of any organization so participating should be reported to Fire Prevention Division, specifically if the organization can be urged to forward on their own stationery a notation of the event, it would be to the greater advantage of the Fire Department.

Uniforms

Throughout the week, all fire fighters are to wear the department uniform going to and from the fire stations, even though they may be driving their cars. The uniforms shall be neat and clean and regulation blue shirts and black ties shall be worn in conjunction therewith. Fire fighters are to pay special attention to the observance of fire hazards and to the duty of observing and locating fire hazards along the route followed by them in their coming to and going from daily work. Dilapidated buildings, rubbish accumulations, and other hazards should be reported to the Fire Prevention Division. The public expects uniformed members of the Fire Department to know something about fire prevention work and to have an interest in this subject since they are public employees engaged in this field. Fire fighters, therefore, during Fire Prevention Week should have this subject uppermost in their minds, and they should not pass by a fire hazard at any time without making a note of it for reference to the Fire Prevention Division. In short, every uniformed man in the Fire Department is a fire prevention inspector at all times.

Company commanders, upon receipt of the Governor's Proclamation on Fire Prevention and Fire Prevention posters, will post these items in a suitable location at the front of each fire station where they will be visible to the public. They will remain posted until October 13.

Great Work of BFD in Space Heater Fire Peril Hailed by Mayor Collins

Work of the Boston Fire Department in wiping out the danger to life presented by fires caused by space heaters was an important factor in the choice of the city for All-America honors, Mayor John F. Collins believes.

In a statement issued in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 6 through 12, the Mayor called on everyone to heed the basic need of a never-ending vigilance against the threat of fire.

"Fire prevention," said the Mayor, "to be successful must be the cooperative effort of the citizens of the city and its fire department. The success of fire prevention in the City of Boston becomes evident with the selection of this city for All-America honors.

"One of the elements which weighed heavily in being selected for this honor was the winning of two national awards of the National Fire Protection Association, and two national awards from the United States Chamber of Commerce for our fire prevention activities in 1961 and 1962. This was a result of a program started in 1960 which was accelerated when tragic losses of life were traced, by concentrated investigation of each incident, to improper use of a heating device commonly known as a 'Space Heater' in many areas of the city.

No Space Heater Deaths

"With the exposure of the source of these fires which had contributed to more than one half of the fire fatalities in the city in 1959, the Boston Fire Department engaged in an intensive research program to search out the cause and simultaneously instituted a crash education and publicity effort to warn the public of the inherent danger of this device.

"This extensive fire prevention program resulted in no fire deaths from space heater fires in the City of Boston in the years, 1961 and 1962 and led to legislation now enacted into law in this Commonwealth which is designed to rid the state of this heating menace and hazard to life.

"The findings of the Boston Fire Department as a result of its research program is attested to, for these findings have become the basis for the banning of this type of heating equipment throughout practically the entire country which should be reflected by the lessening of lives lost in the nation from this cause. To this we can point with pride.

"We cannot rely on this success for our current and future fire safety. We must project the lessons learned by research, inspection and experience. We must keep pace with the developments created by modern living. Yet, we must not neglect the simple inescapable fact that fire safety lies in fire prevention practiced every minute of every hour of every day.

"As your Mayor, I emphasize that the need to practice fire safety has not lessened and it is my sincere hope that you, the citizens of Boston, will give some advance thought to basic fire prevention planning as it concerns your domestic and professional life.

"Establish a home evacuation plan, a home inspection plan, a habit-appraisal plan, and give attention to all aspects of living and working that may endanger your family and yourself, and in this way, practice fire prevention in fact."

Hotel Greeters Ask for Open Membership

In its September 28 issue, Hotel and Restaurant News reported that the local unit of the Hotel-Motel Greeters International has requested the parent organization to delete the "white only" factor from the organization's constitution and to restore the old slogan, "See America First."

The article read as follows:

Boston Charter (66) has voted to request the Hotel-Motel Greeters International to delete the "white only" factor from the constitution and also to reinstate the "See America First" slogan, which was dropped when the organization adopted the "International" designation.

The actions were taken at the first fall meeting of the Boston Charter, held at the Hotel Kenmore.

Robert X. Boucher, chairman of the Boston Charter's board of governors and past president of the Charter, initiated both actions and said that unless Article 4, Section 1 (a), Par. 1, which limits membership in the organization to white persons only, were revised immediately by the members, and President Fred Ayer said he would immediately notify the executive director that the Boston Charter was requesting immediate action on the change in the constitution and reinstatement of the slogan.

He also stated that unless the "See America" slogan were reinstated, the Charter should consider disassociation, saying that the slogan does not advocate travel in the United States alone, but invites such travel before seeing the rest of the world.

Both resolutions were passed unanimously.

Coconut Grove, Leyte, Black Falcon Recalled

Many of the members of the Boston City Hospital staff who participated in the recent "Operation Disaster" drill were veterans of three tremendous sudden disaster challenges hurled at the hospital by fate.

The real disasters were the Coconut Grove fire, during World War II, which attracted world-wide attention to the hospital; the fire aboard the aircraft carrier U.S.S. "Leyte," and another fire aboard the big freighter "Black Falcon." In each disaster the hospital established an excellent record of service.

Deadline Oct. 15, Don't Forget That Sticker!

At the end of the spring motor vehicle inspection period on May 15, more than 700 motorists in Massachusetts found themselves answering court summonses. That's quite a batch. They didn't get their stickers on time.

They were careless, forgetful, given to procrastination, or just plain indifferent to the lives of themselves, their families, and those with whom they wanted to share the highways of the state. This year the fall inspection period ends October 15.

Registrar James R. Lawton points out the number of sticker delinquents has been on the increase. This fall he's determined to reverse that trend.

"I am gratified by the manner in which Massachusetts motorists and official inspection stations have responded to the strengthened inspection system which we have inaugurated," Registrar Lawton said. "I trust that all will continue to support this system through October 15, and thereby bring a new standard of highway integrity to this state."

At present, the number of rejection stickers issued is running 10 to 20 per cent throughout the Commonwealth.

Registrar Lawton again warns that any inspection station making unreasonable demands for repairs would be subject to suspension of its license to be an inspection station. He also said that any unauthorized person who placed an official inspection sticker on a motor vehicle would be deemed an "improper person" and subject to as much as a 60-day suspension of his license to operate an automobile

Dr. Conlin Pleased By Drill Success

Dr. John F. Conlin, superintendent, and Deputy Superintendent James Walsh of City Hospital paid tribute to members of the hospital staff, to the police department, and to members of the Greater Boston Hospital Council which planned the recent "Operation Disaster" drill.

"The potential of Boston City Hospital to meet quick-striking disasters," said Dr. Conlin, "is traditional." "I am sure," he added "that for ourselves and for the eight other participating hospitals, the drill will prove most valuable."

Employees Credit Union

September 12.

To All Members:

As required by Massachusetts laws the individual accounts of our members are being verified by Edward F. Mul-laley, C.P.A. Within a short time each member will receive a notice of verification. Your Auditing Committee has taken this opportunity to stress the importance of this function for the following reasons:

1. A very high percentage of returns is required by the Banking Department, so a prompt reply is requested.

2. Members are informed of their balances thereby enabling them to review their personal financial conditions.

3. Changes of addresses, of names, and other minor differences may be cleared up at this time.

4. Sound auditing principles favor the periodic review of all accounts by an independent, disinterested party.

Knowing you will follow the instructions contained in the Notice of Verification, we thank you for your co-operation.

Very truly yours,
The Auditing Committee.

P.S. If you do not receive a notice after fellow employees have, please contact one of the committee members.

A Yale undergraduate left this placard on his door: "Call me at seven o'clock; it is absolutely necessary that I get up at seven. Make no mistake. Keep knocking until I answer. Try again at ten."

—William Lyon Phelps, quoted by Rudolf Fleisch in The Book of Unusual Quotations (Harper)

Imagine! Wolves in Shock and Bandages

Members of the 20th Engineer Battalion, Fort Devens, proved excellent "casualties" in the recent "Operation Disaster" drill. At White Stadium each of the 200 soldiers was tagged for the "injury" he was adjudged to have suffered. Each also acquired plastic moulages which very realistically reflected the "injury."

Three "victims" arriving at City Hospital forgot their roles for a few moments. That came when they spotted a class of student nurses moving past them on the way from one lecture to another. The soldiers, supposedly in shock and severely injured, sat up in their stretchers and paid the universal doughboy tribute to pretty girls everywhere—some enthusiastic wolf whistles. Then they fell back in the stretchers groaning.

The groans and "bloody" bandages won them no sympathy. The nurses who had been taken in at first sight laughed and hurried on for their next class.

Famed Architect Chosen to Plan $10 Million Central Library Addition

Mayor John F. Collins announced on October 7, selection of Philip Johnson Associates of New York by the Trustees of the Boston Public Library to work out designs for a $10 million expansion and improvement program for the Central Library in Copley square.

"The New York architectural firm is one of the world's foremost," said the Mayor. "It has been chosen after a long search during which the advice of the top designing brains of the nation have been sought and obtained. The firm is headed by Philip Johnson, an outstanding contemporary designer and architect.

"The Central Library building is one of the great artistic treasures of Boston and the United States. For some time the Library has known a pressing need for enlargement of its facilities and its physical space."

Funds for the new construction will come from three sources:

1. $2 million from the bequest left to the library in the will of John Deferrari, onetime Italian immigrant fruit peddler, who amassed a fortune in the stock market while living modestly and frugally, completely unknown until his death on April 29, 1950.

2. $2 million from the Josiah Henry Benton Fund, a benefaction contained in the will of a former trustee.

3. $6 million will come from the Capital Grant Program of Urban Renewal.

Mayor Collins Urges One Hundred Per Cent United Fund Participation

Mayor Collins has set a goal of 100 per cent participation by city workers in the 1964 United Fund Drive.

In a letter to department heads in which he announced appointment of Director William F. Lally, of the Welfare Department as municipal chairman of the drive this year, the Mayor asked for the cooperation of all department employees and noted the vital role United Community Services perform in Boston.

"I have always felt," he said, "the United Fund underscores the basic uniqueness of the New Boston in which we are putting on the face of the future, while motivated by the spirit and tradition of the past. Part of that tradition, I think, is a so-called 'small town' concern for our neighbors, be they elderly, sick, or just some boys on the corner in need of organized recreation.

"While few of us today have the time or opportunity to do these services for our neighbors personally, in supporting the United Fund we are assured that people are finding the New Boston not only an attractive city in which to live, but also one that cares about the welfare of its people.

"With this thought in mind, I know you will urge all your staff first and foremost to participate in the drive by giving, and then to make that gift as generous as their means allow."

Deferrari Contribution

"I am particularly gratified," said Mayor Collins in approving the "go-ahead" step of the Library Board of Trustees and the Library Director, "that the name of such a man as the humble John Deferrari should be associated with this tremendous stride in the cultural progress of our great city.

"The task of finding the designer for the necessary expansion has not been easy. I congratulate the Trustees and the Library Director in the thoroughness of their search and with the tremendous judgment they have displayed in making absolutely certain that whatever the final design of the new structure will be it will be in keeping with the original structure.

"The present library, a true masterpiece in American designing by Charles Follen McKim, offered a challenge of the first order in any consideration of expansion."

Architect Selected for Central Library Addition

Philip Johnson, head of Johnson Associates, 375 Park avenue, New York, is recognized as one of the nation's top designers. His work in the field of American architecture has gained international attention. It ranges from the $20 million New York State Theater now under construction in the Lincoln Center for Performing Arts to the Nuclear Reactor Building completed in 1961 for the Israel Atomic Energy Commission.

World's Fair Design

Some outstanding examples include the St. Anselm's Abbey and Museum Wing for Dumbar-ton Oaks, Washington, D.C., and the Annex Building and Sculpture Court of the Museum of Modern Art, New York. Johnson is the architect for the $9 million New York State Building for the 1964 World's Fair.

Mayor Collins, in directing attention to the pressing needs for the addition pointed out that the Library's book holdings have increased from 628,297 volumes in 1895 to 2,213,312 at the close of 1962.

The Trustees sought the advice of an advisory panel and reviewed a list of 50 leading U.S. architectural firms. It was from this list that they recommended five firms, including Philip Johnson Associates, to the Trustees.

Stenography Classes At Hyde Park High

Under the Manpower Development and Training Act, a new course will be conducted for clerk-stenographers, commencing October 28.

State Director Antonio England, of the Division of Employment Security, said Hyde Park High School will be available for instruction of unemployed men and women who have knowledge of typing and desire to learn stenography. There are many openings for qualified stenographers.

The course requires 20 weeks, with classes, Monday through Friday from 3 P.M. to 9.30 P.M. Applicants may register with the Massachusetts State Employment Service, 6 Somerset street, Boston, as soon as possible.

Judge Morrissey at Washington Meeting

Judge Francis X. Morrissey, associate justice of the Boston Municipal Court, was among a delegation of justices attending a meeting in Washington called to plan a national conference on bail and criminal justice.

Justice William J. Brennan, Jr., of the United States Supreme Court presided. The conference is planned for next spring.

REALISTIC!—Accent was on realism at "Operation Disaster." Arriving at City Hospital this young soldier feigned he had gone berserk from the horror of a simulated plane crash. Before they could get him on a stretcher it required the combined efforts of four police officers, two security guards and a couple of hospital aides. Private Corcoran is a tough young soldier. He's also a wonderful actor.

Old Corner Book Store Restoration Acclaimed

The original Old Corner Book Store at School and Washington streets—one of the stops on the Freedom Trail—the spot where Longfellow, Emerson, Lowell, Whittier, Holmes and Hawthorne as well as many lesser known New Englanders spent many an hour—is to be restored.

The Boston Globe is going to replace a non-historic pizza palace on the first floor. It will serve as the Globe's downtown office and once again place a newspaper on Newspaper Row where the Post, Globe, Advertiser, Record, Transcript, Herald, Traveler and once the New York Herald Tribune held offices for years.

The red-brick structure will be returned to its original appearance.

Announcement of the restoration plans was made October 8 by Walter Muir Whitehill, president of Historic Boston, Inc., a civic group formed for the specific purpose of preserving the building which won the name "Parnassus Corner" because of the literary giants who frequented it in the 19th century.

"We at City Hall, as neighbors of the Old Corner book shop," said Mayor John F. Collins, "are delighted at this good news. It is solid evidence that while Bostonians are bestirring themselves to build their city anew, they still want, and are still able, I'm happy to see, to preserve the best of the old."

The structure was built in 1712, reportedly the first building of brick in Boston. Originally it served as a private home.

John J. Murphy

John J. Murphy, 61, for 39 years in the municipal service at Boston City Hospital, died October 2. He was 61 and for many years was in charge of reference records at the hospital. He made his home at 658 Massachusetts avenue, South End.

BCH and Its Medical Schools Pay Tribute to Librarian Helen Symonds

In the quiet sanctum of the Medical Library on the second floor of the Administration Building at Boston City Hospital, the other day, there was a bit of unusual commotion.

They were having a tea.

Medical Librarian Helen Symonds didn't approve. But on this particular occasion she couldn't have her "druthers."

She was guest of honor.

The occasion was sort of a command performance. The top men of the hospital and the top men of the three great medical schools affiliated with the hospital wanted to show her how much they appreciated her long years of devoted service to the hospital—indeed, to the science of medicine, everywhere—was appreciated.

It was her last day. She was retiring.

Through a succession of decades she had seen young M.D.'s fresh out of medical school spend hours of study at the library's tables. Through the years, she helped them find the right book, the right publication on her shelves. Years later she had seen them "grown-up." Out of "whites" and into maturity.

They'd come back for a book from her shelves and to say, "hello."

She always wanted to be part of the background. She always wanted to help. But when the hospital and the top men of its affiliated medical schools learned Helen Symonds was retiring they wouldn't let her go without saying "Thank you—for everything." The "everything" embraced much more than you can put in mere words. It was a sort of tribute paid to one who serves long and well in the cause of science and modern knowledge.

BFD Services

A Memorial Mass for members of Engine 2 and Ladder 19 of the Boston Fire Department was held October 5 at Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston. The Rev. Edmund L. McLaughlin was celebrant. Members of the two companies met at the Engine 2 firehouse and marched to the church in a body.

Columbus Sails

(A feature of the old Boston Post was the appearance from time to time of a poem by the late Henry Gillen, a dedicated reporter and editor. On holidays one of his poems was almost certain to appear on page one. Here is one he wrote for a Columbus Day issue.)

*Alone, and troubled by the endless sky,
The alien ocean and the awful dread
Of folly, failure and a dream awry,
And craven plotting aimed against his head,
While even distant stars reluctantly
Stood to be marked and yet revealed no sign,
And noon's near sun that might an ally be Spun phantoms on the veiled horizon line.*

*With mind above all hindrance, blind to sound
Of voices in the heart that counseled "Turn,"
Faithful, at last he hears the surf resound
And on the beach sees golden fires burn,
And views the haven rising from the sea
God had reserved for bowed humanity.*

Great Work of Boston City Hospital In Field of Modern Infant Care Hailed

In an article by Herbert Black, medical editor of the Boston Globe in the current issue of the magazine Boston, the great work of Boston hospitals in the field of infant care is stressed. The article, though devoted solely to progress in this field, serves to emphasize the all-around position of the city as one of the great medical centers of the United States and the world.

Concerning Boston City Hospital, Mr. Black writes:

Among projects to help children at Boston City Hospital is one under the direction of Dr. Sydney S. Gellis, Director of Pediatrics there and chief of the Department of Pediatrics at Boston University School of Medicine. Financed by a $1.7 million Federal grant, it seeks to find out why certain babies remain thin and weak, unable to gain weight or grow to normal size.

The study also seeks to find out why other babies fail to develop resistance to viral diseases, and why still others have spells of periodic paralysis during which their muscles fail for a time before resuming normal function.

Betting $2 Million

Medicine today does not know causes or cures for these diseases and others like lypodystrophy, in which fat disappears from the body. But National Institutes of Health officials are betting nearly $2 million that doctors at the revamped Mary Curley Pavilion at City Hospital, under Dr. Gellis and Project Director Dr. Robert Klein, will come up with some answers.

In addition to the Federal project, which accepts cases from outside Boston and which provides free care, the City Hospital houses the Bill Cunningham Birth Defects Center, also under the direction of Dr. Gellis, who is Acting Dean of Boston University School of Medicine.

An exciting development there is the giving of new significance to a condition observed in newborn babies for centuries. It is the simple fact that there should be three blood vessels on the umbilical cord, two arteries and a vein. In a number of babies the second artery is missing. The City Hospital studies indicate that the missing artery is a vital tip-off to hidden heart or kidney defects.

Such babies, and they run about one in 100, should be checked carefully and over a prolonged period and the pediatrician should keep especially careful records in these cases, Dr. Gellis suggests.

The study also is separating full term babies with very low birth weight from truly premature babies. The doctors believe that the tiny, full term baby needs more careful attention than the premature baby and is more likely to suffer congenital defects than the "preemie."

Better Start in Life

It is felt that the true "preemie" has a much better chance of developing normally than the 9-month baby whose growth has been retarded before birth.

Reducing the number of premature births as a means of insuring a better start in life for babies is the purpose of another project at City Hospital. Dr. Edward H. Kass and his associates in Harvard's Mallory Institute and Thorndike Laboratory at the hospital are engaged in this work.

They have found that presence of certain bacteria present in the systems of some women cause premature births. By screening all women, treating those found to have bacteriuria, the number of premature births is being reduced.

Mayor Asks for Union Bargain Law for Hub

Mayor John F. Collins in an order submitted to the City Council October 7, asked acceptance of legislation authorizing the city to engage in collective bargaining with municipal employee unions.

"I believe that collective bargaining negotiations conceivably could disclose certain narrow limits within which a collective bargaining agreement might operate to the mutual advantage of the city and its employees," the mayor said.

He pointed out that many subjects usually covered by collective bargaining agreements in private industry are beyond the power of municipal governments.

"There are general or special statutes," he said, "under which public officials cannot constitutionally bargain away their powers."

"However," he said, "in view of an opinion of the attorney general upholding the constitutionality of the legislative act in question, I desire the full exploration of the potential advantages of collective bargaining."

White Cane Law for Protection of Blind

On Tuesday, October 15, the organized blind of the nation will celebrate the 33rd anniversary of the birth of the White Cane.

In Massachusetts, the Associated Blind of Greater Boston, Inc., an affiliate of the National Federation of the Blind, have asked Registrar of Motor Vehicles James R. Lawton to join with them in using the day to call public attention to the White Cane Law.

Briefly, the law provides that a motorist come to a complete stop when a blind pedestrian—alone, with a White Cane, or with a seeing-eye dog—is attempting to cross or is crossing, on the road ahead. A violation can result in a fine of as much as $100.

Said Registrar Lawton:

"It is naturally a privilege for me to join in calling the attention of the motoring public to their duty to blind citizens. In the past, Massachusetts has maintained an excellent record in this area. However, anyone violating this statute would certainly be liable to suspension of the right to operate a motor vehicle."

Mayor Seeks $29 Million School Construction Loan

Mayor John F. Collins placed before the City Council on October 14 a request for a $29 million bond issue to underwrite the biggest school construction program ever undertaken by the city.

The Mayor described the loan order as a first "major step" in a huge 1963-1975 school building program which "will place all of Boston's 92,000 public school children in attractive, community-centered buildings which are vital to effective education."

The loan order would provide for:

A new $10 million Comprehensive High School, the site for which will be selected soon.

A new $2.6 million Business Education School on the site of the Blackstone School in the West End.

Nearly $16 million for new schools or extensive additions or remodeling of existing structures in Jamaica Plain, West Roxbury, Roslindale, Dorchester, Hyde Park, Roxbury, Charlestown, Allston, Brighton, Mattapan, and South Boston.

Leaves Granted for C. & M. E. A.F.L. Conclave

The following circular letter was addressed to all department heads by Mayor Collins on October 10:

You are hereby authorized to grant leave of absence, without loss of pay, to employees of your department who are duly accredited delegates of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, so that they may attend their annual convention to be held in the City of Springfield, Massachusetts, October 15 through October 18, 1963, provided that such leave of absence will not impair departmental operation to such an extent that it will be necessary to incur overtime expense or the employment of temporary personnel to perform the duties of said delegate (s) during the permitted absence.

If overtime expense or employment of substitute personnel will be required due to such absence, then said delegate (s) may be granted leave of absence only with loss of pay. Travel time allowed.

New 9-Story Building At 500 Boylston St.

The Howard Johnson Company announced recently that it will build a new luxury type Howard Johnson's Restaurant to be located in downtown Boston. The restaurant, which will be downtown Boston's first new Howard Johnson's in over 20 years, will be located at 500 Boylston street in a new nine-story multimillion dollar office building. Construction is due to begin this fall with the building to be completed around October, 1965.

In announcing the new Howard Johnson's Restaurant, Robert D. Parks, Executive Vice-President of the Howard D. Johnson Company, stated that the restaurant will be a prototype for future Howard Johnson's Restaurants and is being built as a tribute to the New Boston.

Occupying approximately 5,000 square feet on the first floor of 500 Boylston street, the restaurant will be a new concept in Howard Johnson's standard interior design and will combine elegant decor with the most modern furnishings and equipment, all custom made, and of the highest quality, with no expense being spared to offer its customers luxury type dining at moderate prices.

The decor will include rich wall paneling with an unusually decorative ceiling and lighting fixtures. Present plans include a 140-seat dining room and a 28-seat soda fountain.

12 Miles of Wiring for Christmas Fete

Work on the construction of the electrical equipment to be used at Boston Common during the 14th Annual City of Boston Christmas Festival is under way according to Festival Director Paul Hines in a report to Mayor John F. Collins. The festival will open November 22 and run through "Little Christmas" on January 6.

According to Park Commissioner Martin Walsh and City Electrical Engineer Charles McCabe, the basic 1,500 feet of cable to feed the more than 12 miles of wire used in illuminating the Common during the festival will be installed through a new and unique type of installation.

All of the cable will be enclosed in weatherproof underground conduits. It will be done by driving the pipes underground through the use of a new hydraulic device, thus eliminating unsightly cables or damage either to the ground surface or the many concrete walks that adorn the Common.

Some idea of the extent of the Christmas Festival lighting may be gained from the fact that this year to carry out the complete lighting scheme there will be used 30,000 feet of feeder wires and 30,000 feet of streamers.

The cable will be laid by the Park Department workers and the S & C Electrical Contractors Company of Boston, which has been awarded the 1963 festival lighting contract. The contract calls only for labor as the city owns all of the electric light equipment. All the work will be under supervision of Engineer McCabe.

The equipment together with the festival's religious figures, is valued at upwards of $50,000. It was paid for out of private financial contributions to the festival over the 14 years of its life. Through this means of operation, the city is now saved several thousands of dollars per year.

"The festival," says Hines, "gives promise this year of being the biggest and most elaborate in its history. It is expected that more than 1,000,000 persons will be attracted here from all sections of New England to view the display."

NOW FOR THE FLOWERS—Preliminary work on the "Flower Clock" in Copley square is nearly complete. Soon it will be ready for the horticultural phase of its installation.

2 Shopping Sites for Washington Park Slated

The Boston Redevelopment Authority has designated two sites as available for future development as small neighborhood shopping centers in the Washington Park Urban Renewal Area.

The two sites contain 83,834 square feet of land in two locations which the Redevelopment Authority feels are suited for modern shopping facilities of a type which would greatly benefit the neighborhood now being improved through a bold renewal program.

Mayor Collins said that special consideration would be given to businesses displaced from the Washington Park Urban Renewal Area.

One of the sites has frontage on the west side of Humboldt avenue, between Townsend and Harrishof streets. It is located on a major street in the heart of the predominantly residential area and is surrounded by sites on which new housing, a new school, three new churches, and new recreational facilities are to be developed.

The second site is located at Walnut avenue and Circuit street, a short distance from Walnut avenue and Warren street. It is surrounded by new housing sites, a site for a new school, and an area in which extensive rehabilitation of residential structures is planned.

Mayor Collins pointed out, "This is an opportunity for small businessmen to combine their effort and resources in an enterprise beneficial to themselves and to the community as a whole."

Lillian A. Keliher

Mrs. Lillian A. (McNeil) Keliher, 78, of 61 Smith street, Roxbury, died in Boston City Hospital. She was the widow of John Austin Keliher, former member of the Massachusetts House and Senate, a congressman for four successive terms, and sheriff of Suffolk County.

She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Blanche Roos of West New York, New Jersey, and Mrs. Ethel Smith of Astoria, Long Island, New York.

New Washington Park Church Plans Unveiled

Plans for a proposed new Bethel Pentecostal Church in Washington Park, Roxbury, were presented by the church board of trustees to Mayor Collins at City Hall, October 10.

Boston Redevelopment Authority's plans for the area will enable the Bethel Pentecostal Church to move from its present site and relocate to a new location within the same neighborhood.

Speaking for the Bethel Pentecostal Board of Trustees in presenting the new church design to Mayor Collins, Ulysses D. Bracey stated that the architects selected by the church had already prepared floor plans and preliminary sketches and cost estimates.

Church leaders are now prepared to work with the Authority to acquire land and to lay plans for construction.

"As centers of neighborhood strength," the Mayor told the committee, "the church perhaps more than any other single source has played a pioneering role in neighborhood improvement. I am happy to see that the Bethel Pentecostal Church is now participating in helping in this way to carry out the Washington Park Urban Renewal plan which its members supported so strongly throughout the planning period."

In addition to Mr. Bracey, the church trustees present at the meeting in City Hall included Treasurer Paul S. Bracey, Secretary Charles Lindsey, and Donald Stewart. Also present were Otis B. Robinson and Richard M. Potter, architects for the proposed edifice.

Mrs. Collins Visits Chardon Street Home

Mrs. Mary Collins, wife of the Mayor, visited Chardon Street Home, October 11, on the invitation of the Board of Overseers of the Public Welfare, the 12-member voluntary citizen group responsible for welfare policy in Boston.

Mrs. Collins lunched with Board Chairman Ida M. Kahn; Vice-Chairman Mr. J. Leo Mulvey; Board Members Melena A. Cass and Katharine E. Driscoll; Director William F. Everett MTA Station to Be High-Rise High School

Trustees of the Metropolitan Transit Authority have voted to sell their Everett car barn property to Cardinal Cushing for $95,000. Plans call for the erecting of a high-rise regional or district high school, first of its type in New England.

Star Market had originally been high bidder at $132,000 but dropped from contention after failing to acquire a necessary zone change. Total area involved is approximately 106,122 square feet.

August Employment Up in Boston Area

The Greater Boston Activity Index reached a level 12.3 per cent above normal in August, it was reported by Research Director Thomas L. McGrath of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce. This represented a slight gain of .5 per cent over July. Among the indicator series, department store sales, other employment, bank debits, provided positive influences on the index while total production hours worked was a negative factor.

McGrath said bank loans, bank clearings, bank deposits, air cargo, and air passengers registered gains on their 1962 totals. New construction in the Boston Area continues on an upward trend with the dollar value of building permits close to $44 million or 66 per cent higher than the same month in 1962. Department store sales, reflecting the buying attitude of most Boston consumers, reached $26 million or 10 per cent above 1962. Total employment also experienced an increase, advancing from 1,095,800 in 1962, to 1,104,400 in 1963.

The United States Business Activity Index gained .8 per cent on its July level and was recorded at 4.8 per cent above normal. Bank debits, department store sales, other employment, increased significantly on their August, 1962, levels to push the index significantly above its normal growth pattern, McGrath reported.

The high levels of economic activity reflected in both the local and national indices seem to support the contention of many economists that the normal occurrence of a recession in the postwar business cycle will not be evident in 1964, McGrath stated.

$1 Million Face Lift For Edison at Center

A $1,000,000 face lifting and expansion operation for a Boston Edison Company substation on Hawkins street has been approved by the Boston Redevelopment Authority.

The substation, located in the Government Center urban renewal area, will provide electrical power for the entire project and for the immediate vicinity.

The fully automated station will be remodeled to bring its architecture into harmony with the Government Center.

The face lifting will involve $175-200,000 "beautification" project on the building exterior, including the alteration of the building height to bring it into conformity with roof levels of buildings in the Government Center.

An additional $800,000 will be spent on equipment to be installed in the substation which will supply its electrical current to transformers scattered throughout the Government Center located under streets and in the buildings themselves.

Jackson & Moreland, Inc., engineers, are preparing the remodeling plans.

Lowell's Epitaph—No Dust, No Dirt, No Tears

Mayor John F. Collins on October 16 announced award of a contract for the razing of the old Lowell School at Centre and Mozart streets, Jamaica Plain — with the firm proviso that the ancient structure come down with a minimum of dust, dirt, noise, confusion, and interference of any kind with the public and movement to traffic.

The contract was given the lowest of four bidders, Joseph A. Jacobs of West Peabody in the sum of $11,331. Work began within a few days after the new Lowell School at the nearby Holland Playground was occupied.

Mayor Collins, pointing out the site of the old school in a residential area, insisted that extraordinary precautions be contained in the demolition contract to eliminate any annoyance or inconvenience.

No one in the district shed any tears for the poor old schoolhouse.

CD Resumes Testing On 1st & 3d Fridays

Resumption of Civil Defense siren warning tests has been resumed, Director Charles W. Sweeney of the Boston CD announces. The tests were suspended a year ago at the time of the Cuban crisis.

Routine tests will be held throughout the city at 12 noon on the first and third Fridays of the month.

"I now feel that we should resume this testing in order to insure that the system is working," Boston

Civil Defense Director Charles W. Sweeney, wrote in a message to Mayor John F. Collins today. He asked the Mayor to pass the word along to the public.

"In addition (to the routine tests)," Director Sweeney told the Mayor, "individual sirens will be tested, one at a time, in various sections of the city at various times after completion of routine maintenance. This will be a continuing program."

A woman who runs a nursery school in San Bruno, California, was delivering a station-wagon load of kids home one day when a fire truck zoomed past. Sitting on the front seat was a Dalmation dog. The children fell to discussing the dog's duties. "They use him to keep the crowds back," said one five-year-old. "No," said another, "he's just for good luck." A third child brought the argument to an end. "They use the dog," he said firmly, "to find the fire plug!"

$333 Million Long-Range Improvement Plan for Entire City

Mayor John F. Collins and the Boston Redevelopment Authority have announced a $333 million long-range plan of capital improvements for the city.

The Mayor and the BRA offered a far-reaching program designed to reverse the suburban population trend of the mid-20th century. Details of the massive program unveiled at a seminar at Boston College, October 22, offered a picture of a powerful, growing city for the last quarter of the 20th century—a city ready to face every demand of the 21st century.

Every section of the city from East Boston to the Brookline line, from Charlestown's Sullivan square to the Dedham border would be involved.

Every major department would participate. Every major present need in the fields of education, library services, hospitals and health, police and fire protection, traffic and parking, public buildings and public services would be met. The demands of the future would be anticipated.

Boston alone could not underwrite the program. At Mayor Collins' direction the BRA during two and one-half years of study has deeply explored the problems of financing. It is found that the city's total investment could be held to around $87 million.

State aid, federal assistance, trust funds, sales of city property, and general funds could be used to balance the program.

Details of the program are far-reaching. They embrace a wide scope of city needs—from the ancient Charles Street Jail to the demand for up-to-date parking facilities. In one way or another they affect every resident of the city.

Take for instance the plans for the expansion of the city's schools and the replacement of its long inadequate, obsolete schoolhouses.

The capital improvements program unveiled by Mayor Collins follows closely the extensive Sargent Survey and report. Already Mayor Collins has taken the initial step in that program with presentation of a $29 million plan for a number of new schools in most parts of the city.

However, the need goes well beyond that first big stride. Under the BRA program, eight additional junior high schools are proposed for construction. To replace 71 elementary schools which no longer meet proper standards of modern education facilities, 53 new elementary schools would be built and 11 additions constructed.

New Boston Running Ahead on All Skeds

Mayor John F. Collins' timetable for anticipated completion dates for major projects in the New Boston renaissance, showed every program already started, running far ahead of original target dates. Favorable weather and other conditions have helped the amazing progress.

Here's how the timetable now appears:

Prudential Tower (private construction), spring, 1965.

Hotel America (private construction), spring, 1965.

War Memorial Auditorium (municipal construction), winter, 1964.

State Office Building, fall, 1965.

Federal Building, early, 1965.

New City Hall (municipal construction), fall, 1965.

Tremont Street Store-Apartment Building (private), early, 1965.

"British Properties Building" (private construction), early, 1965.

$333 Million Long-Range Improvement Plan

Take a look at the city's steadily growing demands for library services. Already Mayor Collins has disclosed plans for more than a $10 million addition to the Central Library in Copley square. He and the BRA under a capital improvements program recognize the pressing need for new branches. Prospective sites are indicated in West End, Dudley square, Brighton, Fields Corner, South End, Grove Hall, Dorchester Lower Mills, Orient Heights, Allston, and Uphams Corner.

Next year Boston City Hospital will observe the 100th anniversary of its founding. During the past century it has played a major role in establishing Boston as one of the world's outstanding medical centers. It is closely affiliated with three of the nation's top medical schools—those of Harvard, Tufts, and Boston Universities.

It has served Boston well for the last 10 decades. To meet the challenge of the years ahead it will require a wide and definite expansion of its physical facilities. Planned under the capital program would be an outlay for a new $21 million facility which would be able to meet the proposed need for a State Medical School.

The hospital's capacity for facing the problem of alcoholism would be established through the creation of an Alcoholic Study Center and an Alcoholic Reception Center.

Today Boston shares with large municipalities everywhere the problem of disposal of its rubbish and waste. For cities everywhere the day of the outdoor disposal—the out-of-the-way wastebasket is nearing an end. Sooner or later modern methods must be found.

Boston today needs a greater incinerator capacity. The city of the immediate tomorrow will not be able to postpone the challenge for any considerable length of time. The capital improvement program recognized that need. Under its terms $4 million would be provided for a modern facility.

Under Mayor Collins, the Boston Police and Fire Departments have made tremendous progress. Today they are rated among the nation's best.

Boston is on the threshold of top modern rating in its so-called downtown area.

If it is to know its complete destiny as the leading city of the northeast and of the nation, it must advance on a city-wide front.

That's the reason for the program advanced this week by Mayor Collins and the BRA.

Registrar Warns of Time Change Perils

Registrar James R. Lawton has asked all newspapers, radio and television stations through the state to alert their readers and listeners that Daylight Saving Time in Massachusetts will end Sunday, October 27.

Motorists who had been making the return trip home from work during daylight hours will now be driving home in the dusk of early evening.

The Registrar also called attention to the dangers of driving on Halloween, which this year falls on Thursday, October 31. The great numbers of children who will be on the sidewalks and streets throughout the state during that evening will create a definite traffic hazard, and he asked all motorists to exercise special care.

Catherine Maney to Be ABCD Coordinator

Miss Catherine M. Maney has been nominated coordinator of the joint Action for Boston Community Development-School Department educational programs. She has been in the Boston school system since 1937.

She is principal of the Theodore Lyman District, East Boston, and a graduate of Boston Teachers College receiving a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education in 1935 and her Masters Degree in Education in 1936. She has had teaching experience on the elementary, junior high school, and senior high school levels. She was a teacher at the Donald McKay Junior High School, 1937 to 1939; Girls' High School, 1939-1940; and William Howard Taft Junior High School, 1940. She was named assistant principal of the Samuel Adams School in 1950, and principal of the Theodore Lyman District in 1960.

BCH and Tufts to Provide Mouth Cancer Program

All city and county workers are invited to participate in a program jointly sponsored by Boston City Hospital's Department of Oral Surgery and Tufts University Dental School, aimed directly at detection of mouth cancer in its early stages.

Under a program worked out by Dr. James V. Sacchetti, the hospital's assistant superintendent and deputy for surgery, and Dr. Richard G. Taylor, director of the hospital's Department of Oral Surgery, every city and county employee may undergo a mouth check to determine any evidence of incipient cancer.

The date—November 15.

The time—7 A.M. to 4 P.M.

The place—lobby of the Administration Building, City Hospital, 818 Harrison avenue, South End.

Why such a program?—Today, among smokers, particularly, but by no means exclusively, the incidence of mouth cancer is high. In its early stages its victim can be completely unaware of the condition. In these stages it is painless. Dangerous advance may develop unnoticed, unless detected by careful examination by competent oral surgeons such as this program provides.

By early detection cancer of the mouth may not only be arrested—it may be cured.

Method of Examination—Trained oral surgeons are able to detect mouth cancer quickly through examination of "suspicious areas" of cancer within the mouth. Using small wooden tongue depressors the examining oral surgeon may obtain cultures by swift, completely painless procedure. These cultures are then carefully evaluated and reported. The examination will take not more than three minutes.

Important—(1) Each person will be requested to designate the name of his or her oral surgeon or physician to whom results of the examination will be forwarded. Any condition requiring attention of and treatment by an oral surgeon or physician will be reported to the designated surgeon or physician. In the absence of such, referral will be made to the Employees' Health office at City Hospital, directed by Dr. R. O. Blackburn.

(2) The program will not include evaluation of the teeth.

(3) Sufficient number of oral surgeons will be provided November 15 to avoid delay.

The program is completely voluntary. There will be no charge.

The pilot program is believed the first attempted in this area. Response to the program, according to Doctors Sacchetti and Taylor, will determine whether it will be offered the general public in the future.

Mayor Lauds Memory of Courageous Career of Fire Chief John Martin

(Following are the remarks of his Honor, Mayor John F. Collins, at the dedication of the Boston fire academy on Moon Island in memory of the late Fire Chief John A. Martin on October 24.)

They say the highest praise you can give a ballplayer is to call him a "Ballplayer's Ballplayer."

I suppose the reasoning behind that is that ballplayers themselves are the best judges of those who practice the craft. They know and recognize qualities which those outside do not or cannot properly evaluate.

Today we seek to honor the memory of a man who left us only a few months ago. To do so is a privilege—for everyone who served with him—for everyone who served under his leadership—indeed, for everyone who had the blessing of knowing him.

Truly, John A. Martin was a "Firefighter's Firefighter."

Yet, beyond that praise he so richly earned during his lifetime . . . beyond the deep sense of respect and affection everyone who truly knew him shared . . . there was something else.

For Jackie Martin was above all else "A Man's Man."

Wonderful Choice

I don't suppose anyone will ever really know why Chief Martin chose firefighting for a career. Who actually knows what a youth of 21 is thinking? For him there were many roads open to the years ahead awaiting his choice.

Call it the inspiration of a natural vocation if you will. Call it a lucky choice. Call it a mere random selection of a boy who needed a job and wanted to work.

Whatever it was—it was a most fortunate choice—for the city he served long and well—for every member of that vast army of sincere friends and admirers who came to know him in the ensuing years.

Violent Baptism

He didn't have to wait long for his baptism in the career he chose for himself.

He was young and green when he had his first brush with possible death. It was an icy midwinter day. He was assigned to one of those great horse-drawn steamers that will remain forever as the most picturesque pieces of firefighting equipment ever created.

The icy streets afforded the pounding hooves of the three handsome horses no traction. The horses and the steamer, still belching smoke, went through a plate-glass window. The horses were destroyed. The steamer's crew escaped death by fractional inches.

John Martin completed his tour of duty that wintry afternoon. He shrugged the experience away.

64 Duty Hours

More than 40 years later he shrugged away another close call with death. That came in the railroad yards in Charlestown as flames, wild and uncontrolled, at the time, trapped him between two buildings. He crawled his way to safety.

He put in 64 hours at that fire. It required skill, know-how, and a built-in gift of leadership—first, to bring it under control and, then, to make sure it was dead.

John Martin had the skill, the know-how, and the built-in gift of leadership.

He had something more than that. He had courage.

During that fire a sliver of glass pierced his boot and worked its way up his leg. He was urged to leave the scene. He was urged to submit to medical attention and hospitalization. He shrugged and waved aside the unwanted advice.

"Guts and Muscle"

Between that cold day when he was 21 and those May days and nights in Charlestown when he was in the glorious twilight of his amazing career he was injured in line of duty no less than 20 times.

"It takes guts, muscle, and water to put out a big fire even with all this modern equipment," he once philosophized. "Water we have aplenty," he added, "guts and muscle we supply."

Somehow or other, John Martin in giving so unsparingly of himself through 45 long years gave much to the Boston Fire Department. When he was named its chief he said he would make the department one of the nation's finest. He did just that.

He did it by example.

He did it on the night of the Coconut Grove Disaster, when he found himself the first uniformed officer on the scene. From the maw of that fire he brought out 60 persons—through smoke that blinded and over bodies of the dead that jammed exits.

He did it by counsel.

No firefighter could long be associated with him without becoming a better firefighter because of the association.

He did it by always divining the proper attitude and the proper conduct of the true firefighter.

From the very day he was advanced from the rank of private to the day that death ended his career—he never asked a subordinate to do something he would hesitate for the slightest moment to do himself.

Courage

Beyond the satisfaction of knowing he was serving the Boston Fire Department to the top level of his great store of ability and courage—Chief John A. Martin asked little of life.

He has shown all of us that the truly great are not always garbed in royal ermine or academic robes. He has shown us that a great heart can beat under a heavy rubber coat—he has shown us "Devotion to Duty" is something more than an empty phrase.

Ed Sullivan Show to Open New Auditorium

Ed Sullivan came to Boston the other day to receive a couple of awards. He left town a few hours later firmly committed to bringing to Boston his famed Sunday night TV show as an attraction for the new War Memorial Auditorium's opening in November, 1964.

The invitation and the acceptance were announced in successive speeches by Mayor Collins and Sullivan at the 15th anniversary luncheon of the Broadcasting Executives Club of New England, held at the Sheraton Plaza.

Sullivan was chosen as honored guest because, as one of the pioneers of telecasting, his program, also, is 15 years old, during all of which time he has had the eight o'clock spot on the same network and the same night.

The TV host was presented with a scroll bearing the Sullivan coat of arms and motto ("The Steadfast Hand Prevails") by Gearoid F. O'Clérigh, consul general of Ireland; and with a plaque bearing a gold golf putter by William B. McGrath of Station WHDH-TV, a past president of the B.E.C.

Judge Lynch Feted on Seventy-First Birthday

Judge William G. Lynch, former chief justice of the Dorchester District Court, was tendered a reception on October 19, at Scituate, on the occasion of his 71st birthday. Highlight of the occasion was receipt from Judge Jerome Troy, his successor at the Dorchester Court, of a card of greeting containing the signatures of every member of the courthouse personnel.

Judge Lynch is a former president of the Boston City Council. He served as clerk of the South Boston Court before being elevated to the bench.

Among those attending the reception were family members and friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gleason, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas McCourt, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Lynch, II, Dr. and Mrs. John B. Lynch, Mr. and Mrs.

R. P. Chapman Heads Key Festival Group

Mayor John F. Collins has announced appointment of President Richard P. Chapman of the New England Merchants National Bank as chairman of Finance Committee of the 1963-64 edition of the big Boston Christmas Festival.

The festival needs $25,000 public contributions this year to meet its budgetary requirements, says the Mayor, the festival sponsor, "I am certain that under the leadership of Mr. Chapman the money will be raised. The festival not only gives the community a healthy spiritual uplift each year, but it is good for its economy. It is the biggest annual municipal promotion in New England.

"Chapman, who is always helping charitable, educational, and business institutions, is a trustee and/or director of more than 30 leading corporations. Since he graduated from Harvard College Business School in 1927 he has been in the continual employ of the New England Merchants Bank, rising from counterman to the presidency.

"The festival this year," says the Mayor, "gives promise of being the biggest and most elaborate in its 14-year history. It will open Friday, November 22, the same date as last year, and run through the Feast of the Epiphany on January 6."

"One of the new outstanding features this year," says Festival Director Paul Hines, "will be a presentation of a 'Toyland' at Playland on Boston Common. Through the aid of leading national toy manufacturers the display is expected to exceed in novelty and variety any public exhibition of toys ever presented outdoors. It should give both the children and the grown-ups a real thrill."

"Toyland," like the rest of the Common display, except for the cost of the installation of the lights, will be paid for out of the money to be raised by Mr. Chapman's committee.

As at former Christmas festivals the most popular feature will be the city's heroic-sized crèche which will be displayed, as usual, at the most prominent spot on the Common. All of the religious figures to be used have been completely rehabilitated and artistically decorated in ecclesiastical colors.

IMPROVEMENTS VOTED

The Mayor and Public Improvement Commission have approved the following:

That this commission, having passed the order of notice relating to the public improvement hereinafter described, and having caused a copy of said order to be published June 8 and June 10, 1963, in the Boston American and the Boston Herald, two daily newspapers published in the City of Boston, and having given the public hearing, notice of which was given in said order, and being of the opinion that public necessity and convenience require, does hereby order that specific repairs be made in Hano street, Brighton district, at the southeasterly corner of Braintree street, and the northwesterly corner of Cambridge street, consisting of increasing the curb radii, as shown on a plan marked "City of Boston, Public Works Department, Engineering Division, Specific Repair Plan, August 30, 1963, Frederick L. Garvin, Acting Division Engineer," and on file in the office of said department.

Popular Ex-Boxers Now Valued Outside-the-Ring Workers

They live opposite each other on Fowler street in Dorchester's Grove Hall. They hurry to the job every workaday morning, come home quietly every night. Even as you and I, they sometimes find themselves twisting the knobs of the "idiot box."

Sometimes they run into a bit of TV ring action. If it's good they stay with it for a while at least. If it's the usual mediocre fare, or worse, they twist until they find something else.

Not too many years ago they were among the best squared ring performers this town has ever seen. That makes a pretty handsome list when you realize they started it 'way back in the days when John L. Sullivan asked the world to find him a single man he couldn't lick.

Meet Walter Byars and Johnny Hill.

Today Walter is a boys' worker at the Robert Gould Shaw House. The kids never saw him in the ring. But he's just as vital a hero among them today as folks like Bill Russell, Jimmy Brown, Mickey Mantle, and Stan Koufax. There's no juvenile delinquency among the boys with whom he works. He is a valued member of the Youth Activities Board created by Mayor John F. Collins.

Billy Woods is known to boxing circles as much for his talents for training young boxers as he was for his ring prowess. In his active days in the ring—and, brother, they were active—he had something like 50 wins out of 60 encounters. After he hung up his combat gloves, he pulled on the pillow-size and helped in the development of one crop after another of guys who held their own pretty well. Today he's a member of the crack security staff at Boston City Hospital.

Walter is a welterweight still—in perfect shape. He was a welterweight back in his active fighting days who cleared his way through the amateurs and established a sterling record as a pro.

He fought all over the North American continent, in Europe and elsewhere in the world. He flattened the late great Irish Bob Murphy in two rounds, at a time when Murphy was still the scourge of all comers. Johnny Wood spent only a few months in the amateur ranks before they drafted him for professional duty. He fought the likes of Joe Pyle, Johnny Priest, and Roy Andrews during his active days.

When he quit the action he was one of the late Johnny Buckley's choices to correct the mistakes of boxers coming along and to give them equipment to carry on as winners. He worked with such good boys as Norman Hayes, Jake LaMotta and Bobo Olsen. His wife, Helen, is a long-time staff worker at City Hospital's Maternity Building.

Big Dorchester Street Program Nears Finish

These are the streets: Alabama (part), Ashland, Beach, Blanche (part), Caspian Way, Ellington, Everdean (part), Florida, Granite, Intervale (part), Lawrence avenue, Marden avenue, Mill, Northern avenue (part), Parish, Park (part), Southwick, Coffey (part), Itasca (part), Messinger (part), Brent (part), Capen (part), Castle Rock, Claybourne (part), Deer (part), Favre (part), Granville, Hildreth, Paisley Park.

Detective Sergeant Daniel P. Lovett, commander of Boston Police Post 1018, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has announced the opening of the new Post clubhouse at 500 Morton street, Dorchester, on Sunday, October 27.

It is located on Morton street, one of Boston's main arteries (Routes 3 and 28 South) at the triangle of Canterbury street and American Legion Highway.

East Boston Memorial Stadium Official Name

Mayor John F. Collins announces he has been notified by Commissioner Martin F. Walsh that the full membership of the Parks and Recreation Commission had voted unanimously to name the city's big East Boston recreation and athletic facility, "The East Boston Memorial Stadium."

The extensive area contains playing surfaces and facilities for many types of sports for both the young and adults. Concrete stands provide seating for various "spectator sports." The plant is used this fall for practice sessions of the Boston Patriots.

Originally laid out and built by the state it was turned over to the City of Boston when the Commonwealth took over a nearby municipally-owned playground for the extension of Logan International Airport.

Commissioner Walsh told Mayor Collins that plans are under way for the placing of a plaque at the stadium identifying it under its new official name.

Don't Make It Easy for That Automobile Thief — Lock That Car!

Here are a few excerpts from a recent conference on automobile thefts in Massachusetts.

Twenty cars a day are stolen in Boston alone.

Motorists invite theft by leaving their keys in the car or leaving the ignition unlocked.

Juveniles nabbed for car thefts tell the Youth Service Board that "every street always has at least one unlocked car." Forty per cent of the juveniles in state custody are auto thieves.

Juveniles find it easy to obtain master keys. Wild-driving youngster recently caught in chase had 21 master keys in his possession. He admitted theft of 70 cars. Boys say they can obtain keys for 10 cents to a half dollar. Many are bought or stolen from garages or auto dealers.

While 90 per cent of stolen cars are recovered, damages and thefts occurring while under control of thieves cost insurance companies and motorists over $15 million a year.

Four major reasons for car thefts — (1) personal gain; (2) potential thief has no other means of transportation home; (3) drunkenness; (4) for use in commission of another crime.

Car stripping, particularly of luxury "extras" is a million-dollar racket today.

To point up carelessness of motorists who leave cars unlocked and/or leave keys in the cars Registrar James R. Lawton is preparing a letter to the 351 city and town police departments in the state. He'll urge strict enforcement of law which makes such people liable to $25 fine for first offence.

Lawton also plans to seek 23 states to cooperate in a demand on one large manufacturer to discontinue his line of ignition switches which allows removal of the key without locking the mechanism. He'll also seek rigid controls on master key distribution.

Personnel Order No. 254.

Sergt. John J. Nolan, Detectives Ellsworth W. Williams and Anthony C. Antonuccio, and Special Officers James S. Deeb and John F. Hegarty, all of District 15, are hereby commended for meritorious police duty and each is granted three days' additional vacation.

About 4:30 P.M., Wednesday, August 28, 1963, the body of an unidentified female was found about 20 yards into the woods off Route 93 in Wilmington, Mass. The body was badly beaten about the face and on examination by Medical Examiner Hill of that county, it was ruled a homicide.

As the result of a teletype item containing a description of this woman with a list of the clothing worn, Sergeant Nolan with the above-named officers conducted an intensive investigation due to the fact that a woman answering the description given had been seen on District 15 in the company of one Vincent P. Donovan of 50 Monument street, Charlestown, this subject being well known to the police. The officers also recalled that on the morning of Monday, August 26, 1963, the said Donovan reported that a 1963 Nash Rambler which he had rented from the Mini-Cost Rental Company of Cambridge, had been set afire while parked in front of 122 Walford Way, Charlestown.

On Thursday, August 29, 1963, the body of the dead woman was tentatively identified as Claire A. Graham, 29 years, of Somerville, Mass. With this additional information, the officers then canvassed the District questioning bartenders and waitresses and learned that the woman who had been in the company of Vincent P. Donovan on the night of Sunday, August 25, 1963, answered to the name of Claire.

Donovan was eventually located about 8 P.M., on August 29, and following relentless interrogation, he admitted he had been drinking with the Graham woman on Sunday evening, August 25, and at about 2 A.M., on Monday, while parked in a car in Charlestown, he made improper advances, which she resisted. He then stated he beat and choked her. Realizing she was lifeless, he then drove to Wilmington where he disposed of the body and then drove back to Charlestown where he set fire to the upholstery of the car to destroy the bloodstains.

Vincent Donovan was arraigned in Charlestown District Court before Judge James J. Mellen on Friday morning, August 30, 1963, charged with the murder of Claire A. Graham. He waived reading of the complaint and after a plea of not guilty was entered, Judge Mellen ordered him held without bail and continued the case to September 10, 1963. On that date, Judge Frank J. Cavanagh found probable cause and ordered him held without bail for the grand jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the conscientious and intelligent police work performed by the above-named officers in this case, who, by their untiring efforts and hours given beyond their regular tours of duty, brought about the arrest of the perpetrator of this heinous crime.

October 3.

Personnel Order No. 255.

Patrolman Robert S. Skehan of District 15 is hereby commended for meritorious police duty and is granted three days' additional vacation.

About 8 P.M., Saturday, August 31, 1963, Patrolman Robert S. Skehan of District 15, while on duty in uniform, assigned to street patrol duty on Main street was informed by the detectives of this District that a warrant had been issued by the Boston Municipal Court for the arrest of one Ralph P. Verrill, 28 years, single, of 18 Miller street, Charlestown, for the murder of one Judy F. Southwick, at 792 Tremont street, Boston, and that he was thought to be in the Charlestown area. Having arrested Verrill for drunkenness at Miller and Lawrence streets, Charlestown, about 1:30 A.M. on Friday, August 23, 1963, Patrolman Skehan knew him by sight and immediately proceeded to canvass the many bars in the Thompson square area, making discreet inquiries in an effort to locate and apprehend him, requesting those to whom he had conversed to keep this information in confidence and if Verrill were seen they were to notify the police at once.

About 9:30 P.M. that evening, while conversing with the bartender of the Gem Tavern at Main and Miller streets in pursuance of his investigation and when standing at the side-door entrance on Miller street, Patrolman Skehan observed a woman beckoning to him in an excited manner. He immediately went to her and on approaching she stated,

"Ralph Verrill just went down the street." When asked what street and in what direction, she stated, "Down Main street towards Thompson square." She was then asked to identify herself and stated, "I am his mother."

Realizing that Verrill had probably been at his home and may be on the way to the Thompson Square MTA Station, Patrolman Skehan rapidly ran down Main street in that direction in an attempt to overtake and arrest him. After running about three blocks, he observed Verrill walking on the sidewalk in front of him and called to him to stop. He complied, and as he turned around Patrolman Skehan observed him discard a shiny metal object which he threw into Main street. When asked his name, Verrill replied "Murphy," and when he asked what he had done to the woman, he stated, "Nothing." He was then placed under arrest by Patrolman Skehan who proceeded to walk him back to the Gem Tavern where he could communicate with the station by telephone. After walking about one block and when at the corner of Main and Chapin streets, they were met by Verrill's mother, Elizabeth Covell, and desiring to have positive identification of his prisoner, Patrolman Skehan asked her if he was her son. She did not answer verbally but nodded her head affirmatively. On observing his mother make this gesture, Verrill suddenly resisted the hold on his right arm, broke away, and ran into the middle of Main street heading back in the direction of Thompson square. Patrolman Skehan called to him to stop and when he failed to do so, he drew his service revolver and discharged one round into the air as a warning. When Verrill continued his flight and being unable to overtake him, Patrolman Skehan when in front of 208 Main street discharged a second round from his service revolver aiming at his lower body to prevent his escape from custody. The bullet struck Verrill in the right hip causing him to fall to the street. Patrolman Skehan then called to a passing taxicab driver to notify police that he was in need of assistance.

While waiting for help to arrive, guarding his prisoner who was lying in the middle of Main street, a large group of civilians gathered around Patrolman Skehan. Among the group were about five young men who stated that they were friends of the wounded prisoner, and using abusive language, they threatened to take him from Patrolman Skehan's custody. They were warned not to interfere and when they persisted, Patrolman Skehan became concerned as to their intentions and drawing his service revolver, he repeated his warning advising them that if they made any overt act to rescue the prisoner, they would be subject to arrest and possible bodily harm. At this time, Lieut. John R. Nee, District 4, with Detectives Donovan and Rufo also of District 4, and Detective Williams, Special Officers Hegarty and Deeb of District 15, all of whom had maintained a stakeout at the home of Verrill on Miller street, arrived on the scene having heard the gunshots discharged by Patrolman Skehan, and dispersed the crowd of onlookers.

Ralph Verrill was then removed from the scene in the 1500 Ambulance by Patrolmen Manning and Bean, accompanied by Detective Donovan of District 4 and Elizabeth Covell, the prisoner's mother, to the Boston City Hospital where on examination by Dr. Donald Ames he was found to be suffering from a penetrating wound of the right hip, held for treatment, and Lieutenant Nee of District 4 made arrangements for assigning a police guard.

On searching the area where he had observed Verrill discard the shiny metal object, Patrolman Skehan found lying on Main street near the curb, a large carving knife with a grey wooden handle and an eight-inch blade which he is holding for evidence.

On the morning of Monday, September 9, 1963, Ralph P. Verrill was arraigned in Boston Municipal Court before Judge Elias Shamon, charged with the murder of Judy F. Southwick. He was ordered held without bail and the case was continued to September 20, 1963. On that date, Judge Shamon found probable cause and held this subject without bail for the grand jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the perseverance and courage beyond the call of ordinary police duty displayed by Patrolman Robert S. Skehan in this case, who, by his keen observation brought about the arrest, singlehandedly, of a vicious killer, thereby reflecting credit not only on himself, but on the entire department as well.

Five years ago, the city, acting by this Commission with the approval of your predecessor in office, contracted with Hoyle, Doran and Berry, architects, for architectural services in connection with the municipal auditorium now under construction on Boylston street. The contract contained a provision, customary in such contracts, that the architect employ, upon the written request of the Commission, a competent resident engineer to give constant supervision to all construction work, and that the city pay the architect "the amount paid by the architect for the services of such resident engineer but in no event to exceed forty dollars ($40) per day."

Since the design of the auditorium was correlated with the design of the Prudential Center, there was a two-year delay in the construction of the auditorium incident to the delay in the construction of the Prudential Center. In the interim, the market for competent resident engineers has become such that they command a salary somewhat higher than the maximum set by the above-mentioned provision.

The resident engineer is for the protection of the city; and if he is to be a real protection, his morale must be high. Fair compensation is essential to high morale. The enclosed letter from the architect indicates that a currently fair compensation could be paid if the contract provision involved were amended to call for the city to pay the architect for services rendered by the resident engineer after August 31, 1963, such amount not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars a week as the architect shall pay directly to the resident engineer for his services (including overtime) and, in addition, the taxes and insurance premiums payable by the architect with respect thereto.

It is self-evident that it would serve no useful purpose to advertise for bids to amend the existing contract, because the amendment can only be made by agreement between the persons now party thereto. Accordingly, your authority is hereby requested to dispense with advertising in entering into an agreement with Hoyle, Doran and Berry to amend its aforesaid contract as indicated above.

It may not be inappropriate to add that this amendment will not increase the maximum liability of the city under the aforesaid contract because the total increase payable by the city under such amendment is not expected to exceed $2,000 and so is within the existing contractual limit on contingencies.

Respectfully,

AUDITORIUM COMMISSION,

By ROBERT C. NORDBLOM,
Acting Chairman.

HOYLE, DORAN AND BERRY, ARCHITECTS,
243 BOYLSTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

August 19, 1963.

Mr. Joseph R. Hynes, Executive Secretary,
Auditorium Commission, 44 School Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HYNES:

We enclose copies of a letter from Mr. Donovan, resident engineer at the municipal auditorium, to us, and a letter in reply to Mr. Donovan from us.

Mr. Donovan requested us to consider an increase in his compensation, which we were compelled to refuse because of our contractual relations with the Auditorium Commission.

Our contract with the Commission was written some five years ago, and the stipulation regarding the salary of a resident engineer reflected the availability of and salaries of supervisory personnel which then prevailed. We think it fair to state that a resident engineer on a project of the magnitude of the municipal auditorium would today ask for and might receive a larger sum than was contemplated at that time.

There is no question as to the value of Mr. Donovan's services, and we are of the opinion that a moderate advance in his compensation is justifiable, and will help to maintain the excellent morale which has always been evident in his relations with the architect.

This would require an amendment to our contract with the Commission, and we recommend that this be done, setting a figure which would enable us to pay a nominal salary to the resident engineer of not over $250 per week. It is customary, in this bracket, that overtime receives no extra compensation. Normal deductions from Mr. Donovan's salary would be made for taxes and insurance premiums, and this office would add to such payments as required by law. We believe the amended sum in our contract, figured on a weekly basis rather than daily, should be sufficient to cover the nominal $250 per week salary plus our own payments on account of taxes and insurance premiums.

We have reviewed also the stipulation that the amount of $100,000 from the funds available for the auditorium construction be earmarked for a certain category of expenses, which category includes the salary for the resident engineer. Assuming that Mr. Donovan's services will be required for approximately one year from now, we see no reason for a change to be made in the $100,000 sum so earmarked.

Sincerely yours,
HOYLE, DORAN AND BERRY,
C. P. HARRIS.

AUDITORIUM COMMISSION.
MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM UNDER CONSTRUCTION

DEAR MR. MAYOR:

Recently the resident engineer for the Municipal Auditorium now under construction on Boylston street, Boston, reported to this Commission that, in his opinion, he anticipated that the work would be completed about a year hence. Section 2 of chapter 7 of the Revised Ordinances of 1961 prescribes that in addition to construction of the Municipal Auditorium, this Commission "shall contract for the care and management thereof after its completion; and for such purposes may, subject to the approval of the Mayor, make such contracts and employ such experts, assistants and employees as they may think necessary or expedient." This Commission deems it in the public interest to formulate in the interim policies for managing the Auditorium after its completion and thinks it most expedient to have the assistance of an expert in the formulation thereof.

In 1959, the city acting by this Commission, with the approval of your predecessor in office, made a $7,500 contract with such an expert, Edward C. Sherry; but because Mr. Sherry removed from the environs of Boston, that contract was canceled without any substantial work done under it. Essentially, therefore, what this Commission now proposes is the replacement of that contract by a contract with another expert.

This Commission has ascertained that Mr. George Laing, an individual with offices at 96 Beacon street, Boston, because of his long period of service as manager of the former Mechanics Building on Huntington avenue, is recognized as a qualified consultant in this field.

Accordingly, since the services involved, by reason of their highly professional character do not lend themselves to inviting bids by advertisement, your authority is hereby respectfully requested to dispense with advertising in awarding to Mr. Laing a contract under which for the nine months beginning with September, 1963, and ending with May, 1964, at a cost to the city of $833.33 a month, would give in person general consultant assistance in connection with the formulation of policies for managing the Auditorium after its completion, including policy governing the use of the Auditorium and its component parts, policy for developing good public relations in connection with the Auditorium, schedule of rates for the use of the Auditorium, content of contracts for such use, method of managing concessions in or connected with the Auditorium, and nature of fixtures and furnishings in the Auditorium.

Respectfully,
AUDITORIUM COMMISSION,
By ROBERT C. NORDBLOM,
Acting Chairman.

Shriners' Burns Hospital to be One of Finest in Nation

Plans for a $3 million Shriners' hospital and research center specializing in children's burns was formally announced recently at a meeting in Mayor Collins' office at City Hall.

Present at the meeting were Shrine officials; Msgr. Francis Lally, chairman, and James G. Colbert, treasurer of the BRA; along with officials of the Boston Fire Department.

The vote of Shriner approval for the multimillion-dollar project came after an all-day session of the Shriners board of directors in Chicago recently.

The decision consummates a negotiated contract between the Shriners and Massachusetts General Hospital, which will operate the center — one of the first of its kind in the nation.

Judge Robert C. Wilson of Suffolk Probate Court, a leading Shriner and one of the key figures in getting the hospital located in Boston, said that steps were taken "immediately" to purchase a 40,000 square-foot site on Blossom street in the West End redevelopment area near MGH.

The problem of finding a spot close to MGH has been the major stumbling block in bringing the institute to Boston. When it appeared the city might lose the center to Ann Arbor, Michigan, Judge Wilson and other top officials moved to bridge the difficulties.

Mayor Collins played the leading role in clearing the way.

Kane Simonian, executive director of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, said the agency is prepared to transfer the land before the month is out.

The hospital—to be called the Shriners Institute for Children's

Mayor Hails Shriners' Decision to Build Hospital in New Boston

Mayor John F. Collins made the following statement at the conference at which formal announcement of the construction of the Shriners Institute for Children's Burns near the Massachusetts General Hospital:

"I am very happy that the Shriners are going to build a new hospital in Boston.

"I am sure that it will be a great asset to our city and to the New Boston.

"I might also say that we are witnessing here an example of the spirit of cooperation among our citizens which is helping to build the New Boston and without which no city can be truly great.

"We have a Catholic clergyman, chairman of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, working in close cooperation with the Shriners to make possible the erection of a completely free hospital where persons of all creeds, rich or poor, will be treated at no charge whatever.

"Needless to say, I am delighted that we were able to make land available to the Shriners as the site for their hospital.

"I know that other cities were most anxious to get this hospital, but we were able to move fast enough to get it for Boston.

"It is my understanding that the work on the new Shrine hospital will start some time in the early part of 1964.

"When work begins on this hospital for which the Shriners already have appropriated the necessary money, it will mean that $57 million worth of construction will have been started in the West End since I assumed office as Mayor in 1960. I consider that a notable record.

"I want to thank Judge Wilson, with whom I served in the Probate Court before becoming Mayor. I am glad we were able to work effectively with the Shriners, and I am sure their new hospital will provide a vital public service."

Post Office Dept. Seeks Bids for Kenmore P. O.

The Post Office Department is seeking competitive bids for a building to house its postal operations at the Kenmore Station of the Boston Post Office. Postmaster General John A. Gronouski announces.

Under the department's lease construction program, a contract will be awarded to the bidder who designates a building suitable to the department's needs and agrees to improve it or provide a new building, if necessary, according to departmental specifications and then lease it to the department for a basic period of ten years, with options to renew the lease for an additional twenty years.

The department's capital investment will be limited substantially to postal equipment. The building will remain under private ownership, with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

Bidding documents will be available from P. X. O'Connor, regional real estate officer, 1420 Post Office Building, Boston, together with specifications, lease provisions and other information. Bids must be submitted by November 29, 1963.

Shriners' Hospital to Be One of Finest in Nation

Burns—will be concerned primarily with saving lives and limbs of children with acute burns. But it will also participate with Harvard Medical School in general burns research and teaching activities.

Elliott Richardson, an MGH trustee who has been participating in the negotiations, said he was "extremely pleased" with the Shriners' decision.

"The board of trustees of MGH are looking forward to a fruitful collaboration with the Shriners in the care of burned children," he said. "The Boston community, and indeed the whole New England region, have much reason to be grateful for the generosity of the Shriners."

Dr. John H. Knowles, general director of MGH, has said that the institute "will benefit all humanity in its care of patients, and in the advance of knowledge through research."

Judge Wilson said he was "optimistic" the project would move ahead now quickly, and that the hospital would be in operation by 1965.

Judge Wilson Thanks Mayor for Saving Shrine Hospital for Boston

Judge Robert Wilson detailing plans for the new Shrine Hospital in Boston's West End told a conference in Mayor Collins' office that the Shrine would spend $1.5 million for the operation of the hospital. He said Mayor Collins and the BRA had saved the hospital for Boston by swiftly clearing red tape.

The Shrine official's statement read as follows:

"I am presenting to Mayor Collins and to Monsignor Lally, Chairman of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, a formal notice of the intent of the Shriners to build an ultramodern, $3.5 million burn hospital in the West End.

"I believe this hospital will be a great asset to Boston and an integral part of the New Boston.

Elks Scholarship for Hero Officer's Daughter

The Elks National Foundation has presented a full scholarship to the daughter of Boston Policeman James B. O'Leary who was shot and killed while in the performance of his duty.

The Elks scholarship will finance study of O'Leary's oldest daughter, Catherine, at Aquinas Secretarial School in Newton, Massachusetts. This college is run by the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Past Grand Exalted Ruler John F. Malley, Chairman of the Foundation, and Past Grand Exalted Ruler Judge John E. Fenton made the presentation to Miss O'Leary and her mother, Mrs. James B. O'Leary, at Police Headquarters in Boston.

Police Commissioner Edmund L. McNamara thanked the Elks for their generous and speedy contribution

The hospital will be divided into three activities. It will contain 30 beds for patients suffering from the most severe burns. It will have a teaching section and a section for research designed to improve methods and techniques of treating the most serious burns.

"This will be a completely free hospital. In accordance with Shrine policy, no charge whatever will be made upon the patients treated at the hospital. We do not even accept money from the Blue Cross or Blue Shield. The Shriners will spend about $1.5 million a year to operate the hospital.

"In behalf of the Shriners may I say that we are deeply grateful to Mayor Collins and the Boston Redevelopment Authority for making the land available for this hospital.

"Three of these hospitals are being built throughout the country, and there was keen competition for them.

"It appeared that Boston would lose the hospital until Mayor Collins and the Redevelopment Authority stepped in and cut red tape with about the greatest despatch I have ever seen in order to make the necessary land available to us.

"This apparently is the New Boston in more ways than one. I have never witnessed such swift action in Boston since the late James M. Curley was in his prime, and I don't recall that even Mr. Curley ever moved any more swiftly than did Mayor Collins and the Redevelopment Authority to make possible the construction of the Shrine Hospital."

An impressive ceremony was held on Sunday, October 27, in the Washington Park urban renewal area as parishioners of St. Mark's Congregational Church and their friends helped dedicate the site of 82 units of new moderate-income housing to be built as part of Mayor Collins' Boston Development Program.

Site of the new private rental housing development is a recently-cleared tract off Townsend street and Humboldt avenue. The dedication ceremonies were at Townsend street and Crestwood park.

Following regular Sunday service, the pastor and parishioners of St. Mark's Congregational Church filed out of the church and walked to the dedication site where refreshments were served.

Dedication ceremonies featured the 30-voice St. Mark's Choir. Presiding was President Jackson W. Campbell of the St. Mark's Development Corporation, formed by the parish to sponsor the new housing.

Among platform guests were Mayor John F. Collins; Dr. F. Nelson Schlegel, Executive Secretary, Congregational City Missionary Society; Rev. George Thomas, St. Mark's Congregational Church; Rev. Washington Park Site for $600,000 YMCA

Preview of a new $600,000 Roxbury YMCA was given Mayor John F. Collins by representatives of the "Y" and the Washington Park community on October 24 in the Mayor's office.

The new facility will be erected in the Washington Park urban renewal area at Warren street and the new Washington Park Boulevard on a site provided under the urban renewal plan. It will be designed by the Architects Collaborative of Cambridge and will replace a store front "Y" on Warren street with a modern recreational complex fully equipped with indoor swimming pool, club, activity and exercise rooms, a teenage center, and administrative offices.

The new facility, with a large outdoor area for recreation and sports, will expand the number of youth and adults now served by the Roxbury YMCA from approximately 1,000 members to approximately 4,000 boys and girls and adults.

In viewing the architect's renderings of the new building, Mayor Collins praised the role played by local community leaders, directors of the Downtown "Y", and BRA staff in bringing the project to fruition as another example of the "partnership for progress" in the revitalization of the Washington Park area.

"The funds for this new building," the Mayor pointed out, "were raised entirely in Boston through the efforts of an outstanding group of 'Y' directors. Planning for the building was the result of close co-operation between local sponsors who have long urged that Roxbury be provided with a recreation facility of this kind and the Boston Redevelopment Authority, which has provided a choice location for the new building in the official urban renewal plan."

Construction will start in early spring, 1964. Completion is scheduled for late fall or early winter.

Among those attending the preview were Carl Thiesen, A. H. Parker, Jr., Samuel C. Brown, Louis Brothers, George Davis, Dr. Ray Johns of the YMCA, and Architect Herbert Gallagher.

Square Name Honors Memory of Priest

Memory of the Rev. Philip J. Carrigan, World War II hero, who was lost in a flight in Africa in 1962, was honored October 27, when a square in his honor was dedicated in Brighton.

Father Carrigan was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carrigan of Brighton. The Oak Square-Brighton Post, VFW, sponsored the dedication.

Father Carrigan, a Boston native, attended Boston College High and Boston College, enlisted in the Army as a private on May 5, 1943, serving in the Pacific Theater. He was wounded on Luzon.

After his discharge from the Army in January, 1946, Father Carrigan attended the Queen of Apostles Seminary in Dedham and the Queen of Apostles Seminary in Washington. He was ordained on February 5, 1955, in the Society of African Missions.

On the morning of December 3, 1962, Father Carrigan took off by plane from Monrovia, Liberia, to say Mass at Saastown, approximately 200 miles away. No trace of the plane was ever found. After an extensive search by the Air Force, the Society of African Missions and the U. S. Government listed him officially as dead.

John J. Duane

A solemn requiem Mass was sung October 22 in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy, for John J. Duane, 85, of 15 Curtis avenue, Quincy, president and founder of the J. J. Duane Building Wrecking Company.

Mr. Duane died recently in Massachusetts Osteopathic Hospital.

A one-time police officer, he resigned from the Force in 1919 and subsequently founded his company.

His firm demolished the New York Streets area, West End redevelopment area, and the area in which the Government Center is being constructed.

He was a former member of the Quincy Selective Service Board, a member of the Quincy South Shore Chamber of Commerce, a charter member of the Quincy Rotary Club, Holy Name Society, and the St. Vincent de Paul Society of St. Joseph's Church.

He leaves a wife, Mary C. (Burkhard); four sons, William J., Herbert T., John F., and James A., all of Quincy; two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Williams and Catherine A. Duane, both of Quincy; 32 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

MIAMI WILL COME TO ROXBURY—Architect's sketch shows conception of the year-round swim pool which will be installed in the new $600,000 YMCA on Washington Boulevard, Roxbury. The pool facility will be of Olympic size.

Pitney-Bowes Building Offers Unique Planning

Construction of a unique new office building is now well under way in Kenmore square with a completion date of April, 1964, set as the target. The Poley-Abrams Company are the general contractors.

The structure will contain six stories of approximately 5,500 square feet per floor, in which the first floor and a half has already been leased to Pitney-Bowes Company whose present facility has been incorporated into the new structure. The Pitney-Bowes Company, a nationally known concern, manufactures and distributes Pitney-Bowes postal meter equipment throughout the world.

An entirely novel concept of office building architecture includes a facade of colored porcelainized paneling, with the tinted glass set into aluminum mullions. The de luxe lobby entrance of extremely modern and attractive design lends itself to the executive decor trend in greater metropolitan office buildings that are being designed in all major cities.

Offices, which will be partitioned to specific tenant requirements, will be completely air conditioned and individually thermostatically controlled, and will contain flush-mounted fluorescent fixtures, acoustic hung ceilings, and resilient tile flooring of varied design and color.

A further attractive feature is the incorporation of a two-floor parking garage for the specific use of tenants in this building. Tenants will have access from the garage directly to their offices via an automatic elevator, common to both the garage and the office floors.

The structure is adjacent to the new toll road extension of the Massachusetts Turnpike, making the building very accessible to all of the suburban areas.

The location of the site for the building was chosen because of its immediate accessibility to the MTA transportation system where employees would still be removed from the congested areas surrounding Kenmore square and yet be in the heart of the shopping complex in the general Kenmore Square area and the downtown Prudential Center area which is a stone's throw from the facility.

The owners of the new Charlesgate West Building are the Charlesgate West Trust, a group of investors from both Baltimore, Maryland, and Boston, who have shown faith in the growth of the New Boston by building the first new office building in the area.

John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky is better known in the Senate for the power of his reasoning than for the persuasion of his oratory. Once when he was presenting a detailed argument to an audience of three on the Senate floor, Senator Jacob K. Javits interrupted to ask for a quorum call so more members could hear his "most important statement." Cooper agreed, with the proviso: "Don't tell them I'm speaking."

School Children Will Hail Festival Nov. 22

The Boston Public Schools Music Department is planning to present a concert of vocal and instrumental music by several thousand boys and girls at the opening of the fourteenth annual City of Boston Christmas Festival, to be held at the City Hall Plaza on Friday afternoon, November 22, according to Joseph Troncone, the new school director of Music Education. It will be a concert by the largest number of children participating in a civic event in recent years.

Musical groups of more than a score of public schools will also each present concerts of Christmas music at the Christmas chapel, Boston Common, during the festival days. More than 100 such concerts by noted Greater Boston musical groups will also be presented at the same place during the festival period.

From all present indications, said Festival Director Paul Hines in a report to Mayor John F. Collins, sponsor of the event, the festival this year will not only be the most elaborate and beautiful in all its history, but will be the most musical. More than 3,000 vocalists and instrumentalists are expected to take part.

Meanwhile, Mayor Collins has issued an invitation to all Greater

City Hospital Friends Committee Meeting

The membership committee of the Friends of the Boston City Hospital conducted a meeting at the Somerset Hotel on October 28. The coffee hour was in the Country Room.

Dr. John F. Conlin, director of the hospital, greeted the committee members. Mrs. Abraham E. Pinanski, former chairman of the National Committee for Hospital Auxiliaries, discussed "The Place of an Auxiliary in a Tax-Supported Hospital."

Chairmen of the committee for the event were Mrs. Somers Fraser and Mrs. Maurice Cherazie, assisted by Mrs. Charles J. Callahan, Jr., Mrs. Robert Ingersoll, Mrs. Neal O'Hara, and Mrs. Harry J. Blake.

Boston musical groups, particularly the church choirs, glee clubs, and business office choral aggregations to participate in this year's festival. Already more than twenty such organizations are scheduled to take part. Arrangements may be made by musical directors to join in the program by contacting the Festival Headquarters at Room 21, Quincy Hall Market Building, or calling the Mayor's office, LA 3-1100.

The festival this year, says Hines, will be organized, developed, and promoted by city employees, all under the supervision of the Mayor, the same as it always has been in the past.

An outstanding feature of the festival this year will be the presentation of a miniature "Toyland" at Playland, Boston Common, for the amusement and entertainment of both the children and grownups. More than 1,000,000 visitors from all sections of New England are expected to come here during the festival season to view the Christmas displays.

Work was started last week on the laying of the 1,500 feet of basic cable that will be used to feed the 12 miles of electric stringers and feeders that illuminate and beautify the Common during the festival.

Ex-BCH Girl, Bride of Colombian Mayor

Miss Esperanza Ferreira, former social worker at Boston City Hospital, became the bride of Mayor José Vicente Romero of Cali, Colombia, October 25, at nuptials in Santa Maria Church in the South American city.

The bride has been serving as a member of the Peace Corps Volunteers in Colombia for the past year. She met Mayor Romero on the day she arrived in Cali. He was a member of the party of welcoming dignitaries on hand to greet the Volunteers when their plane put down.

He is 30. He won his doctorate degree at the University of Illinois. He is a prominent South American industrialist and owner of several coal mines.

WELFARE COSTS FOR SEPTEMBER

Following is a summary of the Welfare Department for September:

Departmental expenditures for the month of September were $3,961,668 a new high in public assistance costs. This was due primarily to 1948 legislation requiring Public Welfare budgets to reflect fluctuations of 5 per cent or more in the cost of living index. From 1948 to July, 1960, the last adjustment period, the cost of living had risen 30.9 per cent. As of September the figure has climbed another 5.1 per cent to 36 per cent, requiring further adjustment and contributing to an average case cost rise from $130.28 to $137.23. During the month, 1,466 requests for assistance were processed. Of these, 1,151 were approved, 315 were rejected or withdrawn, and 1,039 cases were closed. A resultant caseload increase of 112 finds a balance of 29,972 at the end of this month.

Old Age Assistance: The 11,550 recipients in this category represent 40 per cent of the caseload total and account for 27 per cent of departmental costs. Although with 138 approvals, 38 rejections and 201 closings, there was a slight decrease in caseload, disbursements increased. The $1,076,231 ($92.09 per client) spent during the month reflects the necessary adjustments mentioned above.

Medical Assistance for Aged: While this category is not affected by the cost of living index, increased caseload and medical costs expanded the September expenditures by $42,354 to $888,511. This provided care to seven out of every ten eligible clients (4,520 out of 6,452). The balance, or 1,932, were certified for assistance under this program but did not incur any medical expenses. Nearly one third of the 105 applications denied were classified as voluntary withdrawals.

Aid to Dependent Children: The upward caseload trend in this category continued during the month. Loss of employment and marital estrangement were the primary factors in the approval of 286 cases, while return to employment was the prevailing reason for 242 cases being closed. An outlay of $1,348,276 provided services for 7,313 families for an average cost of $184.35.

Disability Assistance: Rising medical costs, in addition to the cost of living adjustment, caused a noticeable jump in expenditures for this category. Although the caseload remained static (down one from last month) costs reached a new high for 1963. The $493,418 disbursed to or in behalf of 3,258 clients represents an average payment of $151.22. Approximately one half of the 82 applicants rejected failed to meet the requirements of the State Medical Review Team.

General Relief: The number of approvals and closings during the month of September was an identical 338, leaving a current caseload balance of 1,750. Average expenditures of $71.77 brought the monthly cost of this program to $155,232. Many of the persons closed out in this category do not necessarily leave the Welfare rolls. As they qualify, they are absorbed by the other categories of assistance.]

October 7.

Personnel Order No. 262.

Patrolman Francis V. Connolly, District 4, is hereby commended for meritorious police duty on two occasions and is granted three days' additional vacation.

At about 12.50 A.M., Sunday, September 8, 1963, Patrolman Connolly, while on a day of relief and en route to his home, when at the corner of Dartmouth and Harwich streets he observed a man, later identified as David Abdulah, alias Davis Stockman, Jr., 24 years, single, of 16 Sussex street, Roxbury, attempting to secrete what appeared to be a revolver in the waistband of his trousers.

Disregarding his personal safety, Patrolman Connolly alighted from his vehicle and being unarmed approached Abdulah, identified himself as a police officer, whereupon the subject aimed his gun at the officer. This officer grabbed the arm of Abdulah and after a short struggle was able to disarm him. He was placed under arrest for suspicion of violation of the Firearms Law. A search at the scene revealed a 10-inch pinchebar and eleven rolls of coins on his person and the weapon taken from the suspect was found to be a .32 caliber Colt fully loaded with six cartridges in the cylinder.

Further investigation disclosed that Abdulah had secreted himself inside the Station Grille located at 128 Dartmouth street and had broken out after the Grille had closed.

Abdulah was arraigned in Boston Municipal Court on several charges and was held in $10,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

At about 8.25 P.M., September 9, 1963, Patrolman Connolly while assigned to foot patrol duty in the vicinity of the Cathedral project heard a cry for help coming from the vicinity of Waltham and Washington streets. He immediately went to the scene and observed a man, later identified as Isaac Wright, 46 years, single, of 908 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, having a choke-hold on one James McGowan, 72 years, married, of 28 Beauford road, Jamaica Plain, and going through his pockets.

Upon seeing the officer approach, Wright flung McGowan to the street and fled down Washington street with Patrolman Connolly in pursuit. Wright was apprehended on Union Park street and after a struggle, Wright was placed under arrest for unarmed robbery. When searched at District 4, Wright had on his person a watch, the property of his victim.

Wright was arraigned in Boston Municipal Court on the charge of unarmed robbery and was held in bail of $10,000 for the Grand Jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the devotion to duty and good police work which was performed by Patrolman Francis V. Connolly in these two cases.

October 7.

Personnel Order No. 263.

Patrolman John A. Sacco of District 9 is hereby commended for meritorious police duty and is granted three days' additional vacation.

About 11 P.M., Saturday, September 7, 1963, the 9-T car with Patrolmen Joseph Higginbottom and John A. Sacco responded to a radio call to Southampton street and Massachusetts avenue on report of a man threatening to jump from a tower. Upon arrival, the officers observed a male figure 200 feet in the air seated on top of a metal framework surrounding a gas storage tank located at 70 Southampton street, Roxbury.

Patrolman Sacco immediately climbed the framework via a zigzagging metal ladder surrounding the structure to a small platform from where he observed a man, later identified as James McHugh, 50 years, of 111 St. Botolph street, a former mental patient, who was perched precariously on the narrow metal girder about 200 feet from the ground and about 75 feet from the top of the storage tank.

Patrolman Sacco quietly talked with the man and then pleaded with him to come down to the platform at the top of the framework where the officer was standing. He held his attention until joined on the platform by Father Murphy of Rescue, Inc., who tried to entice him down by showing him two bottles of beer he had brought with him. McHugh asked the priest to leave, but to place the bottles on the platform. Patrolman Sacco and Father Murphy pretended to climb to a location on a lower level and McHugh then left the girder and climbed to an unprotected side of the platform directly over the storage tank, which was 75 feet below.

While Father Murphy held McHugh's attention, Patrolman Sacco succeeded in coming up behind him and with the assistance of Father Murphy, they were able to subdue him. Members of the Fire Department who were present then assisted in securely binding James McHugh and he was lowered to the ground.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the courage and complete disregard for his own safety demonstrated by Patrolman Sacco in this case, which resulted in saving the life of a mentally-disturbed person who was bent on self-destruction.

October 9.

Personnel Order No. 264.

Patrolman Thomas F. Pollard, Jr., District 14, is hereby detailed to report to the commanding officer of District 2, effective Monday, October 14, 1963, at 7.45 o'clock A.M., for duty until further orders.

October 11.

Personnel Order No. 266.

Detective First Grade John E. Norton and Patrolman Donald F. Sweeney, Robbery Squad of the Criminal Investigation Division, are hereby commended for meritorious police duty and each is granted three days' additional vacation.

About 12.40 P.M., Wednesday, September 18, 1963, the above officers responded to a holdup alarm at the Cabot Pharmacy, Inc., 100 Dorchester street, South Boston. Upon arrival, they were met by Barry T. O'Hearn, 53 Old Harbor street, South Boston, an employee, who stated there had been a holdup of the store and that the man had gone down G street.

POLICE DEPARTMENT ORDERS

The officers obtained a partial description of the wanted man, a description of his clothing and proceeded to G street. When in the vicinity of East Fourth street, they observed a man answering the description given and noted he was being followed by another man, who pointed to the man ahead. The officers questioned the man answering the description and he identified himself as Walter Novicki, 54 years, married, of 13 Lark street, South Boston, but denied he had robbed the drugstore. After being identified by the man who was following him, Paul Leonard, an employee of the drugstore, the officers then arrested Novicki as a suspicious person, to wit, armed robbery of the Cabot Pharmacy, Inc.

After intensive interrogation at Police Headquarters, Novicki finally admitted he had committed this robbery. During the interrogation, Patrolman Sweeney noticed that Novicki answered the description of a man wanted for the robbery of the Cumberland Farm Dairy Store, 222 Old Colony avenue, South Boston, on Saturday, September 7, 1963, but Novicki denied any participation in that particular robbery. The questioning continued and, finally, Novicki broke down and admitted he was the one who robbed this establishment.

Novicki was arraigned before Judge Thomas E. Linehan on two counts of unarmed robbery, one at the Cabot Pharmacy and the other, the Cumberland Farm Dairy Store, and not being represented by counsel, he pleaded guilty to both counts. Judge Linehan declined jurisdiction on both cases and held Novicki for the grand jury with bail at $5,000 on each count.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the fine police work performed by Detective Norton and Patrolman Sweeney in this case who, by their alertness and thoroughness of their interrogation, cleared two robberies in which the subject had been involved.

October 11.

Personnel Order No. 267.

Detectives Arthur Linsky, Richard Hudson, Aristides N. Manos and Patrolmen Willis D. Saunders, John L. Ridlon, and Dennis F. Casey are hereby commended for meritorious police duty and each is granted three days' additional vacation.

The above officers while investigating local narcotic traffic acquired information that an unknown male had arrived in Boston from New York City to employ addicts to "push" a delivery of Heroin during the Labor Day week end. They ascertained that one Lewis J. Williams, single, of 27 Chestnut street, Newark, New Jersey, was one of the suppliers and that he had contacted two known addicts, William H. Washington, married, of 86 Winthrop street, Roxbury, and John E. Clark, single, of 54 Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury, as "pushers."

From August 1, 1963, to August 30, 1963, the movements of the above subjects were under constant surveillance. Known drug addicts were questioned to determine the method of delivery. It was learned that the suspects were to leave Boston by Greyhound bus for New York at different times of the day, August 29, 1963, that they would return to Boston by the same transportation and meet at a certain undisclosed location to prepare the Heroin for distribution.

On August 29, 1963, the first suspect, Lewis J. Williams, returned to Boston and at 1.30 A.M., August 30, 1963, the officers observed the suspect enter a restaurant at 735 Tremont street, City, where he was placed under arrest for suspicion of possession of Heroin. A large quantity of Heroin was found concealed upon his person.

About 2.45 A.M., August 30, 1963, the officers went to Brigham Circle in Roxbury, where they observed the second suspect, William H. Washington, leaving a Greyhound bus. He attempted to flee, but was quickly overcome by the officers and arrested on suspicion of possession of Heroin.

About 4.30 A.M., August 30, 1963, the officers went to the area of Elm Hill avenue and George street, Roxbury, and observed the third suspect, John Clark, leaving a taxi. On observing the officers, Clark ran down Elm Hill avenue where he was apprehended, searched and found to have strapped to his left forearm a large quantity of Heroin. This subject was arrested for suspicion of possession of narcotics, to wit, Heroin.

On Friday morning, August 30, 1963, Lewis J. Williams was arraigned before Judge Canavan in Boston Municipal Court and his case was continued to September 10, 1963, with bail set at $2,500. On September 10 the case was further continued to September 13, 1963, and on that date the subject defaulted and a warrant was issued by Judge Shannon.

On Friday, August 30, 1963, William Washington was arraigned before Judge McKenney in Roxbury District Court charged with unlawful possession of Heroin. The case was continued to September 9, 1963, with bail set at $25,000.

The case was further continued to September 23, 1963, with the same bail, and then to October 9, 1963, when he appeared before Judge McKenney in Roxbury District Court, was found guilty and a fine of $1,000 was imposed.

On the A.M. of Friday, August 30, 1963, John E. Clark was arraigned before Judge McKenney in Roxbury District Court charged with the unlawful possession of Heroin. The case was continued to September 9, 1963, and bail was set at $25,000. This subject was also arrested in Roxbury District Court on a default warrant issued by the Roxbury Probation Department in 1960 for non-support and he was sentenced by Judge McKenney to one (1) year in the House of Correction. On Monday, September 9, 1963, Clark was found guilty for the unlawful possession of Heroin by Judge Eisenstadt and was sentenced to one (1) year in the House of Correction to be served on and after the one year he is presently serving.

The total weight of the narcotics seized by the officers was 2½ ounces and had a potential "illicit" value of $37,500.

This investigation was conducted in close cooperation with the Federal Narcotic Office in Boston.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the outstanding police work performed in this case by the above-mentioned officers all of whom demonstrated their devotion to duty and interest in this heinous crime by their arrest of three drug peddlars thereby preventing a large amount of this pernicious drug from reaching its victims.

Somewhere in an old burlesque theater in Newark, New Jersey, is a battered trunk. Inside are clean shirts, underwear, a few old suits with five-dollar bills stuffed in the pockets. Outside is a label: "Jackie Gleason—Hold for Arrival." The trunk was shipped there several years ago by Gleason, then at the peak of TV popularity. Watching it hauled away, he said, "Now if anything goes wrong, I'll always have somewhere to go."

A performance bond, and also a labor and materials or payment bond, each of a surety company qualified to do business under the laws of the Commonwealth and satisfactory to the Awarding Authority and each in the sum of 100 per cent of the contract price, will be required of the successful general bidder.

The Awarding Authority reserves the right to waive any informalities and to reject any or all general bids if it be in the public interest so to do. The Awarding Authority also reserves the right to reject any subbid on any subtrade if it determines that such subbid does not represent the subbid of a person competent to perform the work as specified or that less than three such subbids were received and that the prices are not reasonable for acceptance without further competition, in accordance with section 44D, chapter 149, of the General Laws, as amended.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, August 26, 1963.
To the City Council.
Gentlemen:

I am enclosing herewith a communication from James W. Haley, Commissioner of Public Works, requesting funds to meet certain obligations of the City of Boston in the Washington Park Redevelopment Project area.

Under the provisions of section 26CC of chapter 121 of the General Laws, a city is authorized to incur debt outside the debt limit for a period of twenty (20) years to meet the city's share of a redevelopment project of this nature.

Chapter 598 of the Acts of 1958 required the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority to pay to the City of Boston a specified sum of money in full satisfaction of just compensation for the existing tunnel and for the net amounts heretofore paid by and raised in tax levies of the city for Sumner tunnel operating deficit. These funds can only be appropriated for a purpose or purposes for which the city is authorized to incur debt outside its debt limit for a period of twenty (20) years or more.

As these funds will be expended for a purpose consistent with the pertinent provisions of law cited herein, I am submitting an order for the appropriation of $455,500.

I respectfully request the adoption of this order by your Honorable Body.

Respectfully,
JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Public Works Department,
August 22, 1963.

Hon. John F. Collins,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

The 1963 program for Public Works in the Washington Park Boston Redevelopment Project Area includes the following:

(a) Engineering services for the entire project under proposed Fay, Spofford & Thorndike contract, $250,000.

(b) Installation of sewerage works for Academy Homes, $62,000.

(c) Installation of water facilities for Academy Homes, $34,000.

(d) Installation of street lighting for Academy Homes, $13,000.

(e) Highways for Academy Homes, $96,500. Total, $455,500.

To meet these obligations, I respectfully request that sums as set forth above be transferred from the proceeds of the sale of Sumner Tunnel to appropriate accounts of the Public Works Department to be used for urban renewal purposes.

Respectfully,
JAMES W. HALEY,
Commissioner of Public Works.

Ordered, That in accordance with the provisions of chapter 598 of the Acts of 1958, the sum of $455,500 be, and hereby is appropriated from the account, Sumner Tunnel Traffic Receipts, Part I, to be expended under the direction of the Public Works Department, for engineering services and the installation of facilities for sewerage, water, street lighting and highways in the Washington Park Redevelopment Project Area.

AMENDMENT TO BOSTON BUILDING CODE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, August 27, 1963.

To the City Council.
Gentlemen:

I am in receipt of a communication from the Building Commissioner in which he states that the Advisory Committee which has been engaged in the study of the Boston Building Code in conjunction with the Building Commissioner is of the unanimous opinion that Part 28 of the present Building Code should be stricken and that a new Part 28 be inserted in its place. This Part 28 covers the provisions of the Code as it relates to the use of Iron and Steel in the construction of structures in the City of Boston.

Under this Code, no change can be made except upon recommendation of the Building Commissioner and the approval of the City Council.

Chapter 478 was approved by his Excellency, the Governor, on June 11, 1963, and became effective legislation on September 9, 1963. Due to administrative procedures of the Boston Retirement Board, I have, at their request, agreed to approve the increase of pensions and retirement allowances payable to certain former public employees or their widows, as of October 1, 1963.

It is noted that the annual cost of the increase will be approximately, $480,663. Due to the October 1, 1963, implementation date the sum of $53,086 will be required to meet the additional expenditures of the Non-Contributory Pensions and Annuities Account of the Boston Retirement Board at this time.

I respectfully request your Honorable Body to adopt the accompanying order.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

President HINES in the chair.

City of Boston,

Boston Retirement Board, September 5, 1963.

Therefore, I submit herewith the recommendation of the Building Commissioner for an amendment to the Building Code and respectfully recommend its adoption by your Honorable Body.

Respectfully,

JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Building Department,
August 19, 1963.

Hon. John F. Collins and the Hon. City Council.
Gentlemen:

The Building Code Advisory Committee is presently in the process of revising certain sections of the Building Code of the City of Boston.

After numerous discussions and investigation of the Steel and Iron Section by the Advisory Committee, in conjunction with the Building Commissioner, it is the unanimous opinion of the Committee and the Commissioner that Part 28 of the present Building Code should be stricken and that a new Part 28 be inserted in its place.

The new revision is for the purpose of having the Building Code, as it pertains to the Steel and Iron Section in connection with the construction of buildings and other structures in the City of Boston, conform with the more recent and best engineering practices known to the Committee at this time.

Accordingly, acting under the power vested in me by St. 1938, c. 479, s. 105A, as inserted by St. 1939, c. 217, s. 1, I recommend that the Building Code be amended by striking out Part 28, and inserting in place thereof a new Part 28.

A copy of the proposed ordinance is attached.

Respectfully,

ROBERT E. YORK,
Building Commissioner.

Section 28-1.0. Design of Steel and Iron. — Structures of steel and iron shall be designed by methods admitting of rational analysis according to established principles of mechanics, supplemented by the assumptions herein specified, to support the loads and withstand the forces to which they are subject without exceeding the stresses allowed in this part for the various members and the materials thereof.

Sect. 28-1.1A. Plans and Drawings.

1.1.1A. Plans. — The plans (design drawings) shall show a complete design with sizes, sections, and the relative locations of the various members. Floor levels, column centers, and offsets shall be dimensioned. Plans shall be drawn to a scale large enough to convey the information adequately.

Plans shall indicate the class or classes of construction (as defined in Sect. 28-1.2A) to be employed, and they shall be supplemented by such data concerning the assumed loads, shears, moments and axial forces to be resisted by all members and their connections, as may be required for the proper preparation of the shop drawings.

Where joints are to be assembled with high strength bolts and are required to resist shear between the connected parts, the plans shall indicate the type of connections to be provided, namely, friction or bearing.

Camber of trusses, beams and girders, if required, shall be called for on the design drawings.

1.1.2A. Shop Drawings. — Shop drawings, giving complete information necessary for the fabrication of the component parts of the structure, including the types of material, the location, type and size of all rivets, bolts and welds, shall be prepared in advance of the actual fabrication. They shall clearly distinguish between shop and field rivets, bolts and welds.

Shop drawings shall be made in conformity with the best modern practice and with due regard to safety, speed and economy in fabrication and erection.

1.1.3. Notations for Welding. — Note shall be made on the plans and on the shop drawings of those joints or groups of joints in which it is especially important that the welding sequence and technique of welding be carefully controlled to minimize locked-up stresses and distortion.

Weld lengths called for on the plans and on the shop drawings shall be the net effective lengths.

1.1.4A. Standard Symbols and Nomenclature. — Welding symbols used on plans and shop drawings shall preferably be the American Welding Society symbols. Other adequate welding symbols may be used, provided a complete explanation thereof is shown on the plans or drawings.

Sect. 28-1.2A. Classes of Construction. — Three basic classes of construction and associated design assumptions are permissible under the respective conditions stated hereinafter, and each will govern in a specific manner the size of members and the types and strength of their connections.

Class A, commonly designated as "rigid-frame" (continuous frame), assumes that beam-to-column connections have sufficient rigidity to hold virtually unchanged the original angles between intersecting members.

Class B, commonly designated as "conventional" or "simple" framing (unrestrained, free-ended), assumes that the ends of beams and girders are connected for shear only, and are free to rotate under load.

Class C, commonly designated as "semi-rigid framing" (partially restrained), assumes that the connections of beams and girders possess a dependable and known moment capacity intermediate in degree between the complete rigidity of Class A and the complete flexibility of Class B.

The design of all connections shall be consistent with the assumptions as to class of construction called for on the design drawings.

Class A construction is unconditionally permitted under this Specification. Two different methods of design are recognized. Within the limitations laid down in Sect. 28-2.1, members of continuous frames, or continuous portions of frames, may be proportioned, on the basis of their maximum predictable strength, to resist the specified design loads multiplied by the prescribed load factors. Otherwise Class A construction shall be designed, within the limitations of Sect. 28-1.5A, to resist the stresses produced by the specified design loads, assuming moment distribution in accordance with the elastic theory.

Class B construction is permitted under this Specification, subject to the stipulations of the following paragraph wherever applicable. Beam-to-column connections with seats for the reactions and with top clip angles for lateral support only are classed under Class B.

In tier buildings, designed in general as Class B construction (that is, with beam-to-column connections other than wind connections flexible) the distribution of the wind moments between the several joints of the frame may be made by a recognized empirical method provided that the wind connections, designed to resist the assumed moments, are adequate to resist the moments induced by the gravity loading and the wind loading at the increased unit stresses permitted therefor.

Class C (semi-rigid) construction will be permitted only upon evidence that the connections to be used are capable of furnishing, as a minimum, a predictable proportion of full end restraint. The proportioning of main members joined by such connections shall be predicated upon no greater degree of end restraint than this minimum.

Class B and C construction may necessitate some non-elastic but self-limiting deformation of a structural steel part.

Sect. 28-1.3A. Loads and Forces. — See Part No. 23, "Live and Dead Loads."

Sect. 28-1.4A. Material.

1.4.1A. Structural Steel. — Structural steel shall conform to one of the following specifications:

On the net section at pin holes in eyebars, pin-connected plates or built-up members

$$F_t = 0.45F_y$$

1.5.1.2. Shear. — On the gross section

$$F_v = 0.40F_y$$

For shear calculation, the gross section of beams and plate girders may be taken as the product of the overall depth and the thickness of the web. (See Sect. 28-1.10 for reduction required for thin webs.)

1.5.1.3A. Compression.

1.5.1.3.1. — On the gross section of axially loaded compression members when $\frac{Kl}{r}$, the largest effective slenderness ratio of any unbraced segment as defined in Sect. 1.8A, is less than C_c

$$\text{F.S.} = \text{factor of safety} = \frac{5}{3} + \frac{3(Kl/r)}{8C_c} - \frac{(Kl/r)^3}{8C_c^2}$$

and

$$C_c = \sqrt{\frac{2\pi^2 E}{F_y}}$$

1.5.1.3.2. — On the gross section of axially loaded columns when l/r exceeds C_c

1.5.1.3.3A. — On the gross section of axially loaded bracing and secondary members, when l/r exceeds 120 and the end conditions are such as to provide restraint with respect to rotation,

$$F_{as} = \frac{F_a \text{ (by Formula 1 or 2)}}{1.6 - \frac{l}{200r}} \quad \text{Formula (3)}$$ in which l is the full unbraced length of the member.

1.5.1.3.5. — On the web of rolled shapes at the toe of the fillet (crippling, see Sect. 28-1.10.10)

$$F_a = 0.75F_y$$

1.5.1.4. Bending.

1.5.1.4.1. — Tension and compression on extreme fibers of laterally supported compact rolled shapes and compact built-up members having an axis of symmetry in the plane of loading

$$F_b = 0.66F_y$$

(In order to qualify as a compact section the width-thickness ratio of projecting elements of the compression flange shall not exceed $1,600/\sqrt{F_y}$, except that, for rolled shapes, an upward variation of 3 percent may be tolerated. The width-thickness ratio of flange plates in box sections and flange cover plates included between longitudinal lines of rivets, high strength bolts or welds shall not exceed $6,000/\sqrt{F_y}$. The depth-thickness ratio of the web, d/t , shall not exceed $13,300/\sqrt{F_y}$. When subjected to combined axial force and bending moment d/t shall not exceed $13,300(1 - 1.43f_a/F_a)/\sqrt{F_y}$ except that it need not be less than $8,000\sqrt{F_y}$. Flanges of compact built-up sections shall be continuously connected to the web or webs. Such members are deemed to be supported laterally when the distance, in inches, between points of support of the compression flange does not exceed $2,400b_f/\sqrt{F_y}$ nor $20,000,000A_f/dF_y$.)

Beams and girders which meet the requirements of the preceding paragraph and are continuous over supports or are rigidly framed to columns by means of rivets, high strength bolts or welds, may be proportioned for $\frac{9}{10}$ of the negative moments produced by gravity loading which are maximum at points of support, provided that, for such members, the maximum positive moment shall be increased by $\frac{1}{10}$ of the average negative moments. This reduction shall not apply to moments produced by loading on cantilevers. If the negative moment is resisted by a column rigidly framed to the beam or girder, the $\frac{1}{10}$ reduction may be used in proportioning the column for the combined axial and bending loading, provided that the unit stress, f_a due to any concurrent axial load on the member, does not exceed $0.15F_a$.

1.5.1.4.2A. — Tension and compression on extreme fibers of members, except channels, unsymmetrical about the plane of loading supported as in Sect. 28-1.5.1.4.1 in the region of compression stress

$$F_b = 0.60F_y$$

1.5.1.4.5A. — Compression on extreme fibers of rolled shapes, plate girders and built-up members having an axis of symmetry in the plane of their web (other than box-type beams and girders), the larger value computed by Formulas (4) and either (5A) or (5B) as applicable, but not more than $0.60F_y$

* Where l/r is less than 40, stress reduction according to Formula (4) may be neglected.

$$\text{In case } \frac{ld}{A_f} \leq \frac{40,000,000}{F_y} \text{ use}$$

$$F_b = \left(0.67 - \frac{F_y}{108,000,000} \frac{ld}{A_f} \right) F_y \quad (5A)$$

$$\text{In case } \frac{ld}{A_f} \geq \frac{40,000,000}{F_y} \text{ use}$$

$$F_b = \frac{12,000,000}{\frac{ld}{A_f}} \quad (5B)$$

where l is the unbraced length of the compression flange; r is the radius of gyration of a tee section comprising the compression flange plus one-sixth of the web area, about an axis in the plane of the web; A_f is the area of the compression flange; C_c is defined in Sect. 28-1.5.1.3 and C_b , which can conservatively be taken as unity, is equal to where M_1 is the smaller and M_2 the larger bending moment at the ends of the unbraced length, taken about the strong axis of the member, and where M_1/M_2 , the ratio of end moments, is positive when M_1 and M_2 have the same sign (single curvature bending) and negative when they are of opposite signs, (reverse curvature bending). When the bending moment at any point within an unbraced length is larger than that at either end of this length the ratio M_1/M_2 shall be taken as unity. See Sect. 28-1.10 for further limitation in plate girder flange stress.

1.5.1.4.6A. — Compression on extreme fibers of channels, loaded in the plane parallel to the web which passes through the shear center, the value computed by Formula (5), but not more than

$$F_b = 0.60F_y$$

Sect. 28-1.6A. Combined Stresses.

1.6.1A. Axial Compression and Bending. — Members subject to both axial compression and bending stresses shall be proportioned to satisfy the following requirements:

1. When $f_a/F_a \leq 0.15$

$$\frac{f_a}{F_a} + \frac{f_b}{F_b} \leq 1.0 \quad \text{Formula (6)}$$

2. When $f_a/F_a > 0.15$

$$\frac{f_a}{F_a} + \frac{C_m f_b}{\left(1 - \frac{f_a}{F'_e}\right) F_b} \leq 1.0 \quad \text{Formula (7a)}$$ and, in addition, at points braced in the plane of bending

$$\frac{f_a}{0.6F_y} + \frac{f_b}{F_b} \leq 1.0 \quad \text{Formula (7b)}$$

where

F_a = axial stress that would be permitted if axial force alone existed

F_b = compressive bending stress that would be permitted if bending moment alone existed

(In the expression for F'_e , l_b is the actual unbraced length in the plane of bending and r_b is the corresponding radius of gyration. K is the effective length factor in the plane of bending. As in the case of F_a , F_b and $0.6F_y$ as used in Formula (7b), F'_e may be increased one-third in accordance with Sect. 28-1.5.6.)

C_m = a coefficient whose value shall be as follows:

1. For compression members in frames subject to joint translation (side-sway), $C_m = 0.85$.

2. For restrained compression members in frames braced against joint translation and not subject to transverse loading between their supports in the plane of bending, $C_m = 0.6 + 0.4 \frac{M_1}{M_2}$, but not less than 0.4, where M_1/M_2 is the ratio of the smaller to the larger moments at the ends of that portion of the member, unbraced in the plane of bending, under consideration. M_1/M_2 is positive when the member is bent in single curvature and negative when it is bent in reverse curvature.

3. For compression members in frames braced against joint translation in the plane of loading and subjected to transverse loading between their supports, the value of C_m may be determined by rational analysis. However, in lieu of such analysis, the following values may be used: (a) for members whose ends are restrained, $C_m = 0.85$, (b) for members whose ends are unrestrained, $C_m = 1$.

Table C 1.6.1.1. — Revise as indicated.

Table C 1.6.1.1A

Category	Loading conditions ($f_a > 0.15F_a$)	f_b	C_m	Remarks
A	Computed moments maximum at end; joint translation not prevented	$\frac{M_2}{S}$	0.85	 $M_1 < M_2$; $\frac{M_1}{M_2}$ positive as shown Check Formulas (7a) & (7b)
B	Computed moments maximum at end; no transverse loading; joint translation prevented	$\frac{M_2}{S}$	$\left(0.4 \frac{M_1}{M_2} + 0.6 \right)$ but not less than 0.4	 Check both Formulas (7a) & (7b)
C	Transverse loading; joint translation prevented	$\frac{M_2}{S}$ Using Formula (7b) $\frac{M_3}{S}$ Using Formula (7a)	$1 + \psi \frac{f_a}{F'_e}$	 Check both Formulas (7a) & (7b)

When bending occurs simultaneously about both axes of a column the second (bending) term in Formula (7a) shall be evaluated as the sum of two terms, as

where the subscripts x and y refer to the principal axes of bending of the column profile.

Category (C) is exemplified by the compression chord of a truss, subject to transverse loading between panel points. For this case the value for C_m can be computed using the expression

$$C_m = 1 + \psi \frac{f_a}{F'_e}$$

where

$$\psi = \frac{\pi^2 \delta_0 EI}{M_0 L^2}$$

δ_0 = maximum deflection due to transverse loading

M_0 = maximum moment between supports due to transverse loading

Values for ψ for several conditions of loading and end restraint are given in Table C 28-1.6.1.2.

1.6.2. Axial Tension and Bending. — Members subject to both axial tension and bending stresses shall be proportioned to satisfy the requirement of Formula (7b) where f_b and F_b are taken, respectively, as the computed and permitted bending tensile stress. However, the computed bending compressive stress, taken alone, shall not exceed the value permitted by Formulas (4), (5A) or (5B).

1.6.3A. Shear and Tension. — Rivets and bolts subject to combined shear and tension due to force applied to the connected parts, shall be so proportioned that the tension stress produced by the force shall not exceed the following:

For A141 rivets.....	$F_t = 28,000 - 1.6f_v \leq 20,000$
For A195 and A406 rivets.....	$F_t = 38,000 - 1.6f_v \leq 27,000$
For A307 bolts.....	$F_t = 20,000 - 1.6f_v \leq 14,000$
For A325 bolts in bearing-type joints	$F_t = 37,500 - 1.6f_v \leq 30,000$
For A354, Grade BC, bolts in bearing-type joints.....	$F_t = 45,000 - 1.6f_v \leq 37,500$

where f_v , the shear stress produced by the same force, shall not exceed the value for shear given in Sect. 28-1.5.2A.

For bolts used in friction-type joints, the shear stress allowed in Sect. 28-1.5.2A shall be reduced so that:

For A325 bolts.....	$F_v \leq 15,000(1 - f_t A_b / T_b)$
For A354, Grade BC, bolts.....	$F_v \leq 20,000(1 - f_t A_b / T_b)$

where f_t is the tensile stress due to applied load and T_b is the proof load of the bolt.

Sect. 28-1.7. Members and Connections Subject to Repeated Variation of Stress.

1.7.1. Up to 10,000 Complete Stress Reversals. — The stress carrying area of members, connection material and fasteners* need not be increased because of repeated variation or reversal of stress unless the maximum stress allowed by Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 is expected to occur over 10,000† times in the life of the structure.

* As used in this Section, "fasteners" comprise welds, rivets and bolts.

† Approximately equivalent to one application per day for 25 years.

1.7.2. 10,000 to 100,000 Cycles of Maximum Load. — Members, connection material and fasteners (except high strength bolts in friction-type joints) subject to more than 10,000 but not over 100,000† applications of maximum design loading shall be proportioned, at unit stresses allowed in Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 for the kind of steel and fasteners used, to support the algebraic difference§ of the maximum computed stress and two-thirds of the minimum computed stress, but the stress-carrying area shall not be less than that required in proportioning the member, connection material and fasteners to support either the maximum or minimum computed stress at the values allowed in Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 for the kind of steel and fasteners used.

1.7.3. 100,000 to 2,000,000 Cycles of Maximum Load. — Members, connection material and fasteners (except high strength bolts in friction-type joints) subject to more than 100,000 but not more than 2,000,000¶ applications of maximum design loading shall be proportioned at unit stresses allowed in Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 for A7 steel, A141 rivet steel and E60XX and submerged arc Grade SA-1 welds to support the algebraic difference of the maximum computed stress and $\frac{2}{3}$ of the minimum computed stress, but the stress-carrying area shall not be less than that required in proportioning the member, connection material and fasteners to support either the maximum or minimum computed stress at the values allowed in Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 for the kind of steel and fasteners used.

1.7.4. Over 2,000,000 Cycles of Maximum Load. — Members, connection material and fasteners (except high strength bolts in friction-type joints) subject to more than 2,000,000 applications of maximum design loading shall be proportioned at two-thirds of the unit stress allowed in Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 for A7 steel, A141 rivet steel and E60XX and submerged arc Grade SA-1 welds to support the algebraic difference of the maximum computed stress and three-quarters of the minimum computed stress, but the stress-carrying area shall not be less than that required in proportioning the member, connection material and fastener to support either the maximum or minimum computed stress at the values allowed in Sect. 1.5 and 1.6 for the kind of steel and fasteners used.

1.7.5. Details. — Members subject to the provisions of Sect. 1.7.2, 1.7.3 and 1.7.4 shall have no sharp notches, sharp copes or attachments of clips, brackets or similar details, at locations where the stress exceeds 75 percent of those allowed in this section.

1.7.6. High Strength Bolted Connections. — High strength bolts in friction-type joints shall be proportioned at the unit stresses allowed in Sect. 1.5.2 and 1.6.2 to resist the largest stress on the joint produced by any single application of the design loads.

† Approximately equivalent to ten applications per day for 25 years.

§ In determining the algebraic difference, tensile stress is designated as positive and compression stress as negative.

¶ Approximately equivalent to 200 applications per day for 25 years.

Sect. 28-1.8A. Slenderness Ratios.

1.8.1A. Definition. — Except where otherwise noted:

In determining the slenderness ratio of an axially loaded compression member, except as provided in Sect. 1.5.1.3.3A, the length shall be taken as its effective length Kl , and r as the corresponding radius of gyration.

1.8.2A. Sidesway Prevented. — In frames where lateral stability is provided by diagonal bracing, shear walls, attachment to an adjacent structure having adequate lateral stability, or by floor slabs or roof decks secured horizontally by walls or bracing systems parallel to the plane of the frame, and in trusses, the effective length factor K for the compression members shall be taken as unity, except as otherwise permitted in Sect. 1.8.3A.

1.8.3A. Sidesway Not Prevented. — The effective length Kl of compression members in a frame which depends upon its own bending stiffness for lateral stability, shall be determined by a rational method and shall not be less than the actual unbraced length.

Figures A and B may be used to determine the effective length factor K which depends upon the end restraints and which when multiplied by the actual length gives the effective length for use in Formulas (1) and (2).

Figure A may be used in case effective means to prevent sidesway of the column are employed. Figure B shall be used in case sidesway is possible. In figures A and B the subscripts A and B refer to the joints at the two ends of the column section being considered. G is given by in which $\sum$ indicates a summation for all members, other than those the principal function of which is to resist tensile axial forces, rigidly connected to that joint as in Class A construction and lying in the plane in which buckling of the column is being considered, I_c is the moment of inertia and L_c the unsupported length of column section, and I_g is the moment of inertia and L_g the unsupported length of a girder or other restraining member. I_c and I_g shall be taken about axes perpendicular to the plane of buckling being considered.

In Figures A and B, having determined G_A and G_B for a column section, K is obtained by constructing a straight line between the appropriate points on the scales for G_A and G_B . For example, in Figure 1, if G_A is 0.5 and G_B is 1.0, K is found to be 0.73.

In case Class C "semi-rigid framing" is employed the values of $\frac{I_y}{I_o}$ shall be decreased sufficiently to fully reflect the effect of changes in angle between columns and girders or other restraining members.

For the case in which sidesway is permitted and the far end of a girder or other restraining member with respect to a given column is free to rotate in the plane of the frame (virtually hinged) the value of $\frac{I_o}{L_o}$ shall be reduced by 50 percent.

Refinements in the value of $\frac{I_o}{L_o}$ and K may be made provided they are fully substantiated by analysis supplemented if necessary by tests

For column ends supported by but not rigidly connected to a footing or foundation, G may be taken as 10 unless the support is designed as a true friction-free pin in which case G shall be taken as infinity. If the column end is rigidly attached to a properly designed footing, G may be taken as 1.0. Smaller values may be used if justified by analysis.

1.8.4. Maximum Ratios. — The slenderness ratio of compression members shall not exceed 200.

The slenderness ratio of tension members, other than rods, preferably should not exceed:

For main members.....	240
For bracing and other secondary members.....	300

Sect. 28-1.9. Width-Thickness Ratios.

1.9.1. Projecting Elements Under Compression. — Projecting elements of members subjected to axial compression or compression due to bending shall have ratios of width-to-thickness not greater than the following:

Single-angle struts; double-angle struts with separators	$2,400/\sqrt{F_y}$
Struts comprising double angles in contact; angles or plates projecting from girders, columns or other compression members; compression flanges of beams; stiffeners on plate girders.....	$3,000/\sqrt{F_y}$
Stems of tees.....	$4,000/\sqrt{F_y}$

The width of plates shall be taken from the free edge to the first row of rivets, bolts or welds; the width of legs of angles, channels and zees, and of the stems of tees, shall be taken as the full nominal dimension; the width of flanges of beams and tees shall be taken as one-half the full nominal width. The thickness of a sloping flange shall be measured halfway between a free edge and the corresponding face of the web.

When a projecting element exceeds the width-to-thickness ratio prescribed in the preceding paragraph, but would conform to same and would satisfy the stress requirements with a portion of its width considered as removed, the member will be acceptable.

1.9.2. Compression Elements Supported Along Two Edges.— In compression members the unsupported width of web, cover or diaphragm plates, between the nearest lines of fasteners or welds, or between the roots of the flanges in case of rolled sections, shall not exceed $8,000/\sqrt{F_y}$ times its thickness.

When the unsupported width exceeds this limit, but a portion of its width no greater than $8,000/\sqrt{F_y}$ times the thickness would satisfy the stress requirements, the member will be considered acceptable.

The unsupported width of cover plates perforated with a succession of access holes, may exceed $8,000/\sqrt{F_y}$, but shall not exceed $10,000/\sqrt{F_y}$ times the thickness. The gross width of the plate less the width of the widest access hole shall be assumed available to resist compression.

Sect. 28-1.10. Plate Girders and Rolled Beams.

1.10.1. Proportions.— Riveted and welded plate girders, cover-plated beams and rolled beams shall in general be proportioned by the moment of inertia of the gross section. No deduction shall be made for shop or field rivet or bolt holes in either flange, except that in cases where the reduction of the area of either flange by such holes, calculated in accordance with the provisions of Sect. 1.14.3 exceeds 15 percent of the gross flange area, the excess shall be deducted.

1.10.2. Web.— The clear distance between flanges in inches, shall not exceed $$\frac{14,000,000}{\sqrt{F_y} (F_y + 16,500)}$$

times the web thickness.

1.10.3. Flanges.— The thickness of outstanding parts of flanges shall conform to the requirements of Sect. 1.9.

Each flange of welded plate girders shall in general consist of a single plate rather than two or more plates superimposed. The single plate may comprise a series of shorter plates, laid end-to-end and joined by complete penetration butt welds.

Unstiffened cover plates on riveted girders shall not extend more than $3,000/\sqrt{F_y}$ times the thickness of the thinnest outside plate beyond the outer row of rivets or bolts connecting them to the angles. The total cross-sectional area of cover plates of riveted girders shall not exceed 70 percent of the total flange area.

1.10.4. Flange Development.— Rivets, high strength bolts or welds connecting flange to web, or cover plate to flange, shall be proportioned to resist the total horizontal shear resulting from the bending forces on the girder. The longitudinal distribution of these rivets, bolts or of intermittent welds shall be in proportion to the intensity of the shear. But the longitudinal spacing shall not exceed the maximum permitted, respectively, for compression or tension members in Sect. 28-1.18.2.3 or 28-1.18.3.1. Additionally, rivets or welds connecting flange to web shall be proportioned to transmit to the web any loads applied directly to the flange unless provision is made to transmit such loads by direct bearing.

Partial length cover plates shall be extended beyond the theoretical cut-off point and the extended portion shall be attached to the beam or girder by rivets, high strength bolts (friction-type joint), or fillet welds adequate, at stresses allowed in Sect. 1.5.2A or 1.5.3 or Sect. 1.7, to develop the cover plate's portion of the flexural stresses in the beam or girder at the theoretical cut-off point. In addition, for welded cover plates, the welds connecting the cover plate termination to the beam or girder in the length a' , defined below, shall be adequate, at the allowed stresses, to develop the cover plate's portion of the flexural stresses in the beam or girder at the distance a' from the end of the cover plate.* The length a' , measured from the end of the cover plate, shall be:

1. A distance equal to the width of the cover plate when there is a continuous weld equal to or larger than $\frac{3}{4}$ of the plate thickness across the end of the plate and continued welds along both edges of the cover plate in the length a' .
2. A distance equal to $1\frac{1}{2}$ times the width of the cover plate when there is a continuous weld smaller than $\frac{3}{4}$ of the plate thickness across the end of the plate and continued welds along both edges of the cover plate in the length a' .
3. A distance equal to 2 times the width of the cover plate when there is no weld across the end of the plate but continuous welds along both edges of the cover plate in the length a' .

1.10.5. Stiffeners.

1.10.5.1. — Bearing stiffeners shall be placed in pairs at unframed ends on the webs of plate girders and, where required†, at points of concentrated loads. Such stiffeners shall have a close bearing against the flange, or flanges, through which they receive their loads or reactions, and shall extend approximately to the edge of the flange plates or flange angles. They shall be designed as columns subject to the provisions of Sect. 28-1.5.1, assuming the column section to comprise the pair of stiffeners and a centrally located strip of the web whose width is equal to not more than 25 times its thickness at interior stiffeners or a width equal to not more than 12 times its thickness when the stiffeners are located at the end of the web. The effective length shall be taken as not less than $\frac{3}{4}$ of the length of the stiffeners in computing the ratio l/r . Only that portion of the stiffener outside of the angle fillet or the flange-to-web welds shall be considered effective in bearing.

1.10.5.2. — The largest average web shear f_v in any panel between stiffeners (total shear force divided by web cross-sectional area), in pounds per square

* This may require the cover plate termination to be placed at a point in the beam or girder that has lower bending stress than the stress at the theoretical cut-off point.

† For provisions governing welded plate girders see Sect. 28-1.10.10.

inch, computed for any condition of complete or partial loading, shall not exceed the value given by Formula (8) or (9), as applicable.

$$F_v = \frac{F_y}{2.89} \left[C_v + \frac{1 - C_v}{1.15 \sqrt{1 + (a/h)^2}} \right] \quad \text{Formula (8)}$$

when C_v is less than 1.0;

$$F_v = \frac{F_y}{2.89} (C_v) \quad \text{Formula (9)}$$ but not more than $0.4F_y$, when C_v is more than 1.0 or when intermediate stiffeners are omitted;

where

a = clear distance between transverse stiffeners, in inches

h = clear distance between flanges, in inches

$$C_v = \frac{45,000,000k}{F_y (h/t)^2}, \text{ when } C_v \text{ is less than } 0.8$$

$$= \frac{6,000}{h/t} \sqrt{\frac{k}{F_y}}, \text{ when } C_v \text{ is more than } 0.8$$

t = thickness of web, in inches

$$k = 4.00 + \frac{5.34}{(a/h)^2}, \text{ when } a/h \text{ is less than } 1.0$$

$$= 5.34 + \frac{4.00}{(a/h)^2}, \text{ when } a/h \text{ is more than } 1.0$$

When a/h is more than 3 its value shall be taken as infinity. In this case Formula (8) reduces to Formula (9) and $k = 5.34$.

1.10.5.3. — Intermediate stiffeners are not required when the ratio h/t is less than 260 and the maximum web shear stress f_v is less than that permitted by Formula (9).

The spacing of intermediate stiffeners, when stiffeners are required, shall be such that the web shear stress will not exceed the value for F_v given by Formulas (8) or (9), as applicable, and the ratio a/h shall not exceed $\left(\frac{260}{h/t}\right)^2$ nor 3.0.

The spacing between stiffeners at end panels and panels containing large holes shall be such that the smaller panel dimension, a or h , shall not exceed $\frac{11,000t}{\sqrt{f_v}}$.

1.10.5.4. — The gross area, in square inches, of intermediate stiffeners spaced in accordance with Formula (8) (total area, when stiffeners are furnished in pairs) shall be not less than that computed by Formula (10).

$$A_{st} = \frac{1 - C_v}{2} \left[\frac{a}{h} - \frac{(a/h)^2}{\sqrt{1 + (a/h)^2}} \right] Y D h t \quad \text{Formula (10)}$$

where

C_v , a , h and t are as defined in Sect. 28-1.10.5.2

$$Y = \frac{\text{yield point of web steel}}{\text{yield point of stiffener steel}}$$

$D = 1.0$ for stiffeners furnished in pairs
 $= 1.8$ for single angle stiffeners
 $= 2.4$ for single plate stiffeners

When the greatest shear stress f_v in a panel is less than that permitted by Formula (8) this gross area requirement may be reduced in like proportion.

The moment of inertia of a pair of stiffeners, or a single stiffener, with reference to an axis in the plane of the web, shall not be less than $(h/50)^4$.

Intermediate stiffeners may be stopped short of the tension flange a distance not to exceed 4 times the web thickness, provided bearing is not needed to transmit a concentrated load or reaction. When single stiffeners are used they shall be attached to the compression flange, if it consists of a rectangular plate, to resist any uplift tendency due to torsion in the plate. When lateral bracing is attached to a stiffener, or a pair of stiffeners, these, in turn, shall be connected to the compression flange to transmit 1 percent of the total flange stress, unless the flange is composed only of angles.

Intermediate stiffeners required by the provisions of Sect. 28-1.10.5.3 shall be connected for a total shear transfer, in pounds per linear inch of single stiffener or pair of stiffeners, not less than that computed by the formula where F_y = yield point of web steel.

This shear transfer may be reduced in the same proportion that the largest computed shear stress f_v in the adjacent panels is less than that permitted by Formula (8). However, rivets and welds in intermediate stiffeners which are required to transmit to the web an applied concentrated load or reaction shall be proportioned for not less than the applied load or reaction.

Rivets connecting stiffeners to the girder web shall be spaced not more than 12 inches on center. If intermittent fillet welds are used, the clear distance between welds shall not be more than 16 times the web thickness nor more than 10 inches.

1.10.6. Reduction in Flange Stress. — When the web depth-to-thickness ratio exceeds $24,000/\sqrt{F_b}$, the maximum stress in the compression flange shall not exceed

where

F_b = applicable bending stress given in Sect. 1.5.1

A_w = area of the web

A_f = area of compression flange

1.10.7. Combined Shear and Tension Stress. — Plate girder webs subject to a computed average shear stress in excess of that permitted by Formula (9) shall be so proportioned that bending tensile stress, due to moment in the plane of the girder web, shall not exceed $0.5F_y$ nor $$\left(0.825 - 0.375 \frac{f_v}{F_v}\right) F_y \quad \text{Formula (12)}$$

where

f_v = computed web shear stress (total shear divided by web area)

F_v = allowable web shear stress according to Formula (8) or (9)

1.10.8. Splices. — Butt welded splices in plate girders and beams shall be complete penetration groove welds and shall develop the full strength of the smaller spliced section. Other types of splices in cross-sections of plate girders and in beams, shall develop the strength required by the stresses, at the point of splice, but in no case less than 50 percent of the effective strength of the material spliced.

1.10.9A. Horizontal Forces. — The flanges of plate girders supporting cranes or other moving loads shall be proportioned to resist the horizontal forces produced by such loads. (See Part 23)

1.10.10. Web Crippling.

1.10.10.1. — Webs of beams and welded plate girders shall be so proportioned that the compressive stress at the web toe of the fillets, resulting from concentrated loads not supported by bearing stiffeners, shall not exceed the value of $0.75F_y$ pounds per square inch allowed in Sect. 28-1.5.1; otherwise, bearing stiffeners shall be provided. The governing formulas shall be:

For interior loads,

$$\frac{R}{t(N + 2k)} = \text{not over } 0.75F_y \text{ pounds per square inch} \quad \text{Formula (13)}$$

For end-reactions,

$$\frac{R}{t(N + k)} = \text{not over } 0.75F_y \text{ pounds per square inch} \quad \text{Formula (14)}$$

where

R = concentrated load or reaction, in pounds

t = thickness of web, in inches

N = length of bearing in inches (not less than k for end reactions)

k = distance from outer face of flange to web toe of fillet, in inches.

1.10.10.2. — Webs of plate girders shall also be so proportioned or stiffened that the sum of the compression stresses resulting from concentrated and distributed loads, bearing directly on or through a flange plate, upon the compression edge of the web plate, and not supported directly by bearing stiffeners, shall not exceed

when the flange is restrained against rotation, nor $$\left[2 + \frac{4}{(a, h)^2} \right] \frac{10,000,000}{(h/t)^2} \text{ pounds per square inch} \quad \text{Formula (16)}$$

when the flange is not so restrained.

These stresses shall be computed as follows:

Concentrated loads and loads distributed over partial length of a panel shall be divided by the product of the web thickness and the girder depth or the length of panel in which the load is placed, whichever is the lesser panel dimension.

Any other distributed loading, in pounds per linear inch of length, shall be divided by the web thickness.

Sect. 28-1.11. Composite Construction.

1.11.1. Definition. — Composite construction shall consist of steel beams or girders supporting a reinforced concrete slab, so inter-connected that the beam and slab act together to resist bending. When the slab extends on both sides of the beam, the effective width of the concrete flange shall be taken as not more than one-fourth of the span of the beam, and its effective projection beyond the edge of the beam shall not be taken as more than one-half the clear distance to the adjacent beam, nor more than eight times the slab thickness. When the slab is present on only one side of the beam, the effective width of the concrete flange (projection beyond the beam) shall be taken as not more than one-twelfth of the beam span, nor six times its thickness nor one-half the clear distance to the adjacent beam.

Beams totally encased 2 inches or more on their sides and soffit in concrete poured integrally with the slab may be assumed to be interconnected to the concrete by natural bond, without additional anchorage, provided the top of the beam is at least $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches below the top and 2 inches above the bottom of the slab, and provided that the encasement has adequate mesh or other reinforcing steel throughout the whole depth and across the soffit of the beam. When shear connectors are provided in accordance with Sect. 1.11.4, encasement of the beam to achieve composite action is not required.

1.11.2. Design Assumptions.

1.11.2.1. — Encased beams shall be proportioned to support unassisted all dead loads applied prior to the hardening of the concrete (unless these loads are supported temporarily on shoring) and, acting in conjunction with the slab, to support all dead and live loads applied after hardening of the concrete, without exceeding a computed bending stress of $0.66F_y$, where F_y is the yield point of the steel beam. The bending stress produced by loads after the concrete has hardened shall be computed on the basis of the moment of inertia of the composite section. Concrete tension stresses below the neutral axis of the composite section shall be neglected. Alternatively, the steel beam alone may be proportioned to resist unassisted the moment produced by all loads, live and dead, using a bending stress equal to $0.76F_y$, in which case temporary shoring is not required.

1.11.2.2. — When shear connectors are used in accordance with Sect. 28-1.11.4 the composite section shall be proportioned to support all of the loads without exceeding the allowable stress prescribed in Sect. 28-1.5.1.4.1 or 28-1.5.1.4.4, as applicable. The moment of inertia I_{tr} of the composite section shall be computed in accordance with the elastic theory. Concrete tension stresses below the neutral axis of the composite section shall be neglected. The compression area of the concrete above the neutral axis shall be treated as an equivalent area of steel by dividing it by the modular ratio n .

For construction without temporary shoring the value of the section modulus of the transformed composite section used in stress calculations (referred to the tension flange) shall not exceed where M_L and M_D are, respectively, the live load and dead load moments and S_s is the section modulus of the steel beam (referred to its tension flange) and provided that the steel beam alone, supporting the loads before the concrete has hardened, is not stressed to more than the applicable bending stress given in Sect. 28-1.5.1.

1.11.3. End Shear. — The web and the end connections of the steel beam shall be designed to carry the total dead and live load.

1.11.4. Shear Connectors. — Except in the case of encased beams as defined in Sect. 28-1.11.1, the entire horizontal shear at the junction of the steel beam and the concrete slab shall be assumed to be transferred by shear connectors welded to the top flange of the beam and embedded in the concrete. The total horizontal shear to be thus resisted between the point of maximum positive moment and each end of the steel beam (or between the point of maximum positive moment and a point of contraflexure in continuous beams) shall be taken as the smaller value using the formulas

$$V_h = \frac{0.85f'_c A_c}{2} \quad \text{Formula (18)}$$

and

$$V_h = \frac{A_s F_y}{2} \quad \text{Formula (19)}$$

where

f'_c = specified compression strength of concrete at 28 days

A_c = actual area of effective concrete flange defined in Sect. 1.11.1

A_s = area of steel beam

The number of connectors resisting this shear, each side of the point of maximum moment, shall not be less than that determined by the relationship V_h/q , where q , the allowable shear load for one connector, or one pitch of a spiral bar, is as given in Table 28-1.11.4.

Table 28-1.11.4

$\frac{3}{4}$ " diam. spiral bar	17.8	18.5	19.1

w = length of channel in inches.

The required number of shear connectors may be spaced uniformly between the sections of maximum and zero moment.

Shear connectors shall have at least 1 inch of concrete cover in all directions.

Sect. 28-1.12A. Simple and Continuous Spans.

1.12.1A. Simple Spans. — When beams, girders and trusses are designed on the basis of simple spans, the effective length shall be taken as the distance between centers of gravity of the members to which they deliver their end reactions.

1.12.2. End Restraint. — When designed on the assumption of full or partial end restraint, due to continuous, semi-continuous or cantilever action, the beams, girders and trusses, as well as the sections of the members to which they connect, shall be designed to carry the shears and moments so introduced, as well as all other forces, without exceeding at any point the unit stresses prescribed in Sect. 1.5.1; except that some non-elastic but self-limiting deformation of a part of the connection may be permitted when this is essential to the avoidance of overstressing of fasteners.

Sect. 28-1.13. Deflections. — Beams and girders supporting floors and roofs shall be proportioned with due regard to the deflection produced by the design loads.

Beams and girders supporting plastered ceilings shall be so proportioned that the maximum live load deflection will not exceed 1/360 of the span.

The depth of beams and girders supporting flat roofs shall be not less than $f_b/600,000$ times their span length whether designed as simple or continuous spans.

Sect. 28-1.14. Gross and Net Sections.

1.14.1. Definitions. — The gross section of a member at any point shall be determined by summing the products of the thickness and the gross width of each element as measured normal to the axis of the member. The net section shall be determined by substituting for the gross width the net width computed in accordance with Sect. 1.14.3 to 1.14.6 inclusive.

1.14.2. Application. — Unless otherwise specified, tension members shall be designed on the basis of net section. Compression members shall be designed on the basis of gross section. Beams and girders shall be designed in accordance with Sect. 1.10.1.

1.14.3. Net Section. — In the case of a chain of holes extending across a part in any diagonal or zigzag line, the net width of the part shall be obtained by deducting from the gross width the sum of the diameters of all the holes in the chain, and adding, for each gage space in the chain, the quantity

$$\frac{s^2}{4g}$$

where

s = longitudinal spacing (pitch, in inches) of any two consecutive holes

g = transverse spacing (gage, in inches) of the same two holes

The critical net section of the part is obtained from that chain which gives the least net width; however, the net section taken through a hole shall in no case be considered as more than 85 percent of the corresponding gross section.

In determining the net section across plug or slot welds, the weld metal shall not be considered as adding to the net area.

1.14.4. Angles. — For angles, the gross width shall be the sum of the width of the legs less the thickness. The gage for holes in opposite legs shall be the sum of the gages from back of angles less the thickness.

1.14.5. Size of Holes. — In computing net area the diameter of a rivet or bolt hole shall be taken as $\frac{1}{8}$ inch greater than the nominal diameter of the rivet or bolt.

1.14.6. Pin-Connected Members. — Eyebars shall be of uniform thickness without reinforcement at the pin holes.* They shall have "circular" heads in which the periphery of the head beyond the pin hole is concentric with the pin hole. The radius of transition between the circular head and the body of the eyebar shall be equal to or greater than the diameter of the head.

The width of the body of the eyebar shall not exceed 8 times its thickness, and the thickness shall not be less than $\frac{1}{2}$ inch. The net section of the head through the pin hole transverse to the axis of the eyebar, shall not be less than 1.33 nor more than 1.50 times the cross-sectional area of the body of the eyebars. The diameter of the pin shall not be less than $\frac{7}{8}$ the width of the body of the eyebars. The diameter of the pin hole shall not be more than $\frac{1}{32}$ inch greater than the diameter of the pin.

The minimum net section across the pin hole, transverse to the axis of the member, in pin-connected plates and built-up members shall be determined at the stress allowed for such sections in Sect. 1.5.1.1. The net section beyond the pin hole, parallel to the axis of the member, shall not be less than $\frac{2}{3}$ of the net section across the pin hole. The corners beyond the pin hole may be cut at 45° to the axis of the member provided the net section beyond the pin hole on a plane perpendicular to the cut is not less than that required beyond the pin hole parallel to the axis of the member. The parts of members built up at the pin hole shall be attached to each other by sufficient fasteners to support the stress delivered to them by the pin.

The distance transverse to the axis of a pin-connected plate or any separated element of a built-up member from the edge of the pin hole to the edge of the member or element, shall not exceed 4 times the thickness at the pin hole. The diameter of the pin shall preferably not be less than 5 times the thickness of the member or separated element at the pin hole. If a smaller size is used, the bearing stress shall not exceed that allowed by Sect. 1.5.1. The diameter of the pin hole shall not be more than $\frac{1}{32}$ inch greater than the diameter of the pin.

1.14.7. Effective Areas of Weld Metal. — The effective area of butt and fillet welds shall be considered as the effective length of the weld times the effective throat thickness.

The effective shearing area of plug and slot welds shall be considered as the nominal cross-sectional area of the hole or slot, in the plane of the faying surface.

The effective area of fillet welds in holes and slots shall be computed as above specified for fillet welds, using for effective length, the length of centerline of the weld through the center of the plane through the throat. However, in the case of overlapping fillets, the effective area shall not exceed the nominal cross-sectional area of the hole or slot, in the plane of the faying surface.

The effective length of a fillet weld shall be the overall length of full-size fillet including returns.

The effective length of a butt weld shall be the width of the part joined.

The effective throat thickness of a fillet weld shall be the shortest distance from the root to the face of the diagrammatic weld.

The effective throat thickness of a complete penetration butt weld (i.e., a butt weld conforming to the requirements of Sect. 1.23.6) shall be the thickness of the thinner part joined.

The effective throat thickness of single-V or single-bevel groove welds having no root opening and having partial penetration into their joints shall be $\frac{1}{4}$ inch less than the depth of the V or bevel groove. The effective throat thickness of single-J or single-U groove welds having no root opening and having partial penetration into their joints shall be the depth of the J or U groove. The effective throat thickness of any of these partial penetration groove welds shall be not less than $\sqrt{t_t/6}$, where t_t is the thickness of the thinner part connected by the weld.

Sect. 28-1.15. Connections.

1.15.1. Minimum Connections. — Connections carrying calculated stresses, except for lacing, sag bars, and girts, shall be designed to support not less than 6,000 pounds.

1.15.2. Eccentric Connections. — Axially stressed members meeting at a point shall have their gravity axes intersect at a point if practicable; if not, provision shall be made for bending stresses due to the eccentricity.

1.15.3. Placement of Rivets, Bolts and Welds. — Except as hereinafter provided, the rivets, bolts or welds at the ends of any member transmitting axial stress into that member shall have their centers of gravity on the gravity axis of the member unless provision is made for the effect of the resulting eccentricity. Except in members subject to repeated variation in stress, as defined in Sect. 1.7, disposition of fillet welds to balance the forces about the neutral axis or axes for end connections of single angle, double angle, and similar type members is not required. Eccentricity between the gravity axes of such members and the gage lines for their riveted or bolted end connections may be neglected.

1.15.4. Unrestrained Members. — Except as otherwise indicated by the designer, connections of beams, girders or trusses shall be designed as flexible, and may ordinarily be proportioned for the reaction shears only.

Flexible beam connections shall permit the ends of the beam to rotate sufficiently to accommodate its deflection by providing for a horizontal displacement of the top flange determined as follows:

$$e = 0.007d \quad \text{when the beam is designed for full uniform load and for live load deflection not exceeding } 1/360 \text{ of the span}$$

$$= \frac{f_b L}{3,600,000} \quad \text{when the beam is designed for full uniform load producing the unit stress } f_b \text{ at mid-span}$$

where

e = the horizontal displacement of the end of the top flange, in the direction of the span, in inches f_b = the flexural unit stress in the beam at mid-span, in pounds per square inch d = the depth of the beam, in inches

L = the span of the beam, in feet

1.15.5. Restrained Members. — Fasteners or welds for end connections of beams, girders and trusses not conforming to the requirements of Sect. 1.15.4 shall be designed for the combined effect of end reaction shear and tensile or compressive stresses resulting from moment induced by the rigidity of the connection when the member is fully loaded.

1.15.6. Fillers. — When rivets or bolts carrying computed stress pass through fillers thicker than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch, except in friction-type connections assembled with high strength bolts, the fillers shall be extended beyond the splice material and the filler extension shall be secured by enough rivets or bolts to distribute the total stress in the member uniformly over the combined section of the member and the filler, or an equivalent number of fasteners shall be included in the connection.

In welded construction, any filler $\frac{1}{4}$ inch or more in thickness shall extend beyond the edges of the splice plate and shall be welded to the part on which it is fitted with sufficient weld to transmit the splice plate stress, applied at the surface of the filler as an eccentric load. The welds joining the splice plate to the filler shall be sufficient to transmit the splice plate stress and shall be long enough to avoid overstressing the filler along the toe of the weld. Any filler less than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick shall have its edges made flush with the edges of the splice plate and the weld size shall be the sum of the size necessary to carry the splice plate stress plus the thickness of the filler plate.

1.15.7. Connections of Tension and Compression Members in Trusses. — The connections at ends of tension or compression members in trusses shall develop the strength required by the stress, but not less than 50 percent of the effective strength of the member. Groove welds in connections at the ends of tension or compression members in trusses shall be complete penetration groove welds.

1.15.8. Compression Members with Bearing Joints. — Where compression members bear on bearing plates, and where tier-building columns are finished to bear, there shall be sufficient rivets, bolts or welds to hold all parts securely in place.

Where other compression members are finished to bear, the splice material and its riveting, bolting or welding shall be arranged to hold all parts in line and shall be proportioned for 50 percent of the computed stress.

All of the foregoing joints shall be proportioned to resist any tension that would be developed by specified lateral forces acting in conjunction with 75 percent of the calculated dead load stress and no live load.

1.15.9. Combination of Welds. — If two or more of the general types of weld (butt, fillet, plug, slot) are combined in a single joint, the effective capacity of each shall be separately computed with reference to the axis of the group, in order to determine the allowable capacity of the combination.

1.15.10. Rivets and Bolts in Combination with Welds. — In new work, rivets, A307 bolts, or high strength bolts used in bearing-type connections, shall not be considered as sharing the stress in combination with welds. Welds, if used, shall be provided to carry the entire stress in the connection. High strength bolts installed in accordance with the provisions of Sect. 1.16.1 as a friction-type connection prior to welding may be considered as sharing the stress with the welds.

In making welded alterations to structures, existing rivets and properly tightened high strength bolts may be utilized for carrying stresses resulting from existing dead loads, and the welding need be adequate only to carry all additional stress.

1.15.11. High Strength Bolts (in Friction-Type Joints) in Combination with Rivets. — In new work and in making alterations, rivets and high strength bolts, installed in accordance with the provisions of Sect. 1.16.1 as friction-type connections, may be considered as sharing the stresses resulting from dead and live loads.

1.15.12. Field Connections. — Rivets, high strength bolts or welds shall be used for the following connections:

Column splices in all tier structures 200 feet or more in height.

Column splices in tier structures 100 to 200 feet in height, if the least horizontal dimension is less than 40 percent of the height.

Column splices in tier structures less than 100 feet in height, if the least horizontal dimension is less than 25 percent of the height.

Connections of all beams and girders to columns and of any other beams and girders on which the bracing of columns is dependent, in structures over 125 feet in height.

Roof-truss splices and connections of trusses to columns, column splices, column bracing, knee braces and crane supports, in all structures carrying cranes of over 5-ton capacity.

Connections for supports of running machinery, or of other live loads which produce impact or reversal of stress.

Any other connections stipulated on the design plans.

In all other cases field connections may be made with A307 bolts.

For the purpose of this Section, the height of a tier structure shall be taken as the vertical distance from the curb level to the highest point of the roof beams, in the case of flat roofs, or to the mean height of the gable, in the case of roofs having a rise of more than $2\frac{2}{3}$ in 12. Where the curb level has not been established, or where the structure does not adjoin a street, the mean level of the adjoining land shall be used instead of curb level. Penthouses may be excluded in computing the height of structure.

Sect. 28-1.16A. Rivets and Bolts.

1.16.1A. High Strength Bolts. — Use of high strength bolts shall conform to the provisions of the Specifications for Structural Joints Using ASTM A325 Bolts as approved by the Research Council on Riveted and Bolted Structural Joints, March 1962, except that A354, Grade BC, bolts meeting the dimensional requirements of the Council's specification and tightened to their proof load, may be substituted for A325 bolts at the working stresses permitted in Sects. 28-1.5A and 28-1.6A.

1.16.2. Effective Bearing Area. — The effective bearing area of rivets and bolts shall be the diameter multiplied by the length in bearing, except that for countersunk rivets and bolts half the depth of the countersink shall be deducted.

1.16.3. Long Grips. — Rivets and A307 bolts which carry calculated stress, and the grip of which exceeds five diameters, shall have their number increased 1 percent for each additional $\frac{1}{16}$ inch in the grip.

1.16.4. Minimum Pitch. — The minimum distance between centers of rivet and bolt holes shall be not less than $2\frac{2}{3}$ times the nominal diameter of the rivet or bolt but preferably not less than 3 diameters.

1.16.5. Minimum Edge Distance. — The minimum distance from the center of a rivet or bolt hole to any edge, used in design or in preparation of shop drawings, shall be that given in Table 1.16.5.

† All edge distances in this column may be reduced $\frac{1}{8}$ inch when the hole is at a point where stress does not exceed 25 percent of the maximum allowed stress in the element.

1.16.6. Minimum Edge Distance in Line of Stress. — In bearing-type connections of tension members, where there are not more than two fasteners in a line parallel to the direction of stress, the distance from the center of the end fastener and that end of the connected part toward which the stress is directed shall be not less than

(a) for riveted connections: the area of the fastener divided by the thickness of the connected part for fasteners in single shear, and twice this distance for fasteners in double shear.

(b) for high strength bolted connections: $1\frac{1}{2}$ times the distances given in (a).

The end distance may, however, be decreased in such proportion as the fastener stress is less than that permitted under Sect. 1.5.2A, but it shall not be less than the distance specified in Sect. 1.16.5 above.

When more than two fasteners are provided in the line of stress the provisions of Sect. 1.16.5 shall govern.

1.16.7. Maximum Edge Distance.—The maximum distance from the center of any rivet or bolt to the nearest edge of parts in contact with one another shall be 12 times the thickness of the plate, but shall not exceed 6 inches.

Sect. 28-1.17. Welds.

1.17.1. Welder and Welding Operator Qualifications.—Welds shall be made only by welders and welding operators who have been previously qualified by tests as prescribed in the Standard Code for Arc and Gas Welding in Building Construction of the American Welding Society, to perform the type of work required, except that this provision need not apply to tack welds not later incorporated into finished welds carrying calculated stress.

1.17.2. Qualifications of Weld and Joint Details.—Weld grooves for complete penetration welds which are accepted without welding procedure qualification under the Standard Code for Arc and Gas Welding in Building Construction or the Standard Specification for Welded Highway and Railway Bridges of the American Welding Society may be used under this Specification without welding procedure qualification.

Weld grooves of the 60° single-V, 45° single-bevel, single-J or single-U form, conforming to the details for such grooves provided in the above AWS Standards but having partial penetration with an effective throat thickness as defined in Sect. 1.14.7 and no root opening, may be used under this Specification without welding procedure qualification. However, they shall not be used in butt joints to resist tensile stress acting in a direction normal to the plane of the weld throat, except in splices or connections of columns or other members subject primarily to axial compressive stress.

Joint forms or welding procedures other than those included in the foregoing may be employed provided they shall have been qualified in accordance with the requirements of these AWS Standards.

ASTM-A233 class E60 and E70* series electrodes for manual arc welding and Grade SAW-1 or Grade SAW-2* submerged arc process may be used for welding A7, A373 and A36 steel. Only E70 low-hydrogen electrodes for manual arc welding or Grade SAW-2 for submerged arc welding shall be used with A441 or weldable A242 steel, except that fillet welds or partial penetration groove welds may be made with E60 series low-hydrogen electrodes and Grade SAW-1 submerged arc process.

Welding A440 steel is not recommended.

* See allowable stresses, Sect. 1.5.3.

1.17.3. Submerged Arc Welding. — The bare electrodes and granular fusible flux used in combinations for submerged arc welding shall be capable of producing weld metal having the following tensile properties when deposited in a multiple pass weld

Grade SAW-1

Tensile strength.....	62,000 to 80,000 psi

1.17.4. Minimum Size of Fillet Welds. — In joints connected only by fillet welds, the minimum size of fillet weld to be used shall be as shown in Table 1.17.4 weld size is determined by the thicker of the two parts joined, except that the weld size need not exceed the thickness of the thinner part joined unless a larger size is required by calculated stress:

Table 1.17.4

Material Thickness of Thicker Part Joined (Inches)	Minimum Size of Fillet Weld (Inches)
To $\frac{1}{2}$ inclusive	$\frac{3}{16}$
Over $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$	$\frac{1}{4}$
Over $\frac{3}{4}$ to $1\frac{1}{2}$	$\frac{5}{16}$
Over $1\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{1}{4}$	$\frac{3}{8}$
Over $2\frac{1}{4}$ to 6	$\frac{1}{2}$
Over 6	$\frac{5}{8}$

1.17.5. Maximum Effective Size of Fillet Welds. — The maximum size of a fillet weld that may be assumed in the design of a connection shall be such that the stresses in the adjacent base material do not exceed the values allowed in Sect. 1.5.1. The maximum size that may be used along edges of connected parts shall be:

1. Along edges of material less than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick, the maximum size may be equal to the thickness of the material.
2. Along edges of material $\frac{1}{4}$ inch or more in thickness, the maximum size shall be $\frac{1}{16}$ inch less than the thickness of the material, unless the weld is especially designated on the drawings to be built out to obtain full throat thickness.

1.17.6. Length of Fillet Welds. — The minimum effective length of a strength fillet weld shall be not less than 4 times the nominal size, or else the size of the weld shall be considered not to exceed one-fourth of its effective length.

If longitudinal fillet welds are used alone in end connections of flat bar tension members, the length of each fillet weld shall be not less than the perpendicular distance between them. The transverse spacing of longitudinal fillet welds used in end connections shall not exceed 8 inches, unless the design otherwise prevents excessive transverse bending in the connection.

1.17.7. Intermittent Fillet Welds. — Intermittent fillet welds may be used to transfer calculated stress across a joint or faying surfaces when the strength required is less than that developed by a continuous fillet weld of the smallest permitted size, and to join components of built-up members. The effective length of any segment of intermittent fillet welding shall be not less than 4 times the weld size with a minimum of $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

1.17.8. Lap Joints. — The minimum width of laps on lap joints shall be 5 times the thickness of the thinner part joined and not less than 1 inch. Lap joints joining plates or bars subjected to axial stress shall be fillet welded along the edge of both lapped parts except where the deflection of the lapped parts is sufficiently restrained to prevent opening of the joint under maximum loading.

1.17.9. End Returns of Fillet Welds. — Side or end fillet welds terminating at ends or sides, respectively, of parts or members shall, wherever practicable, be returned continuously around the corners for a distance not less than twice the nominal size of the weld. This provision shall apply to side and top fillet welds connecting brackets, beam seats and similar connections, on the plane about which bending moments are computed. End returns shall be indicated on the design and detail drawings.

1.17.10. Fillet Welds in Holes and Slots. — Fillet welds in holes or slots may be used to transmit shear in lap joints or to prevent the buckling or separation of lapped parts, and to join components of built-up members. Such fillet welds may overlap, subject to the provisions of Sect. 1.14.7. Fillet welds in holes or slots are not to be considered plug or slot welds.

1.17.11. Plug and Slot Welds. — Plug or slot welds may be used to transmit shear in a lap joint or to prevent buckling of lapped parts and to join component parts of built-up members.

The diameter of the holes for a plug weld shall be not less than the thickness of the part containing it plus $\frac{5}{16}$ inch, rounded to the next greater odd $\frac{1}{16}$ inch, nor greater than $2\frac{1}{4}$ times the thickness of the weld metal.

The minimum center-to-center spacing of plug welds shall be 4 times the diameter of the hole.

The length of slot for a slot weld shall not exceed 10 times the thickness of the weld. The width of the slot shall be not less than the thickness of the part containing it, plus $\frac{5}{16}$ inch, rounded to the next greater odd $\frac{1}{16}$ inch, nor shall it be greater than $2\frac{1}{4}$ times the thickness of the weld. The ends of the slot shall be semicircular or shall have the corners rounded to a radius not less than the thickness of the part containing it, except those ends which extend to the edge of the part.

The minimum spacing of lines of slot welds in a direction transverse to their length shall be 4 times the width of the slot. The minimum center-to-center spacing in a longitudinal direction on any line shall be 2 times the length of the slot.

The thickness of plug or slot welds in material $\frac{5}{8}$ inch or less in thickness shall be equal to the thickness of the material. In material over $\frac{5}{8}$ inch in thickness, it shall be at least one-half the thickness of the material but not less than $\frac{5}{8}$ inch.

Sect. 28-1.18. Built-Up Members.

1.18.1. Open Box-Type Beams and Grillages. — Where two or more rolled beams or channels are used side-by-side to form a flexural member, they shall be connected together at intervals of not more than 5 feet. Through-bolts and separators may be used, provided that in beams having a depth of 12 inches or more, no fewer than 2 bolts shall be used at each separator location. When concentrated loads are carried from one beam to the other, or distributed between the beams, diaphragms having sufficient stiffness to distribute the load shall be riveted, bolted or welded between the beams. Where beams are exposed, they shall be sealed against corrosion of interior surfaces, or spaced sufficiently far apart to permit cleaning and painting.

1.18.2. Compression Members.

1.18.2.1. — All parts of built-up compression members and the transverse spacing of their lines of fasteners shall meet the requirements of Sects. 1.8 and 1.9

1.18.2.2. — At the ends of built-up compression members bearing on base plates or milled surfaces, all components in contact with one another shall be connected by rivets or bolts spaced longitudinally not more than 4 diameters apart for a distance equal to $1\frac{1}{2}$ times the maximum width of the member, or by continuous welds having a length not less than the maximum width of the member.

1.18.2.3. — The longitudinal spacing for intermediate rivets, bolts or intermittent welds in built-up members shall be adequate to provide for the transfer of calculated stress. However, where a component of a built-up compression member consists of an outside plate, the maximum spacing shall not exceed the thickness of the thinner outside plate times $4,000/\sqrt{F_y}$ when rivets are provided on all gage lines at each section, or when intermittent welds are provided along the edges of the components, but this spacing shall not exceed 12 inches. When rivets or bolts are staggered, the maximum spacing on each gage line shall not exceed the thickness of the thinner outside plate times $6,000/\sqrt{F_y}$ nor 18 inches. The maximum longitudinal spacing of rivets, bolts or intermittent welds connecting two rolled shapes in contact with one another shall not exceed 24 inches.

1.18.2.4. — Compression members composed of two or more rolled shapes separated from one another by intermittent fillers shall be connected to one another at these fillers at intervals such that the slenderness ratio l/r of either shape, between the fasteners, does not exceed the governing slenderness ratio of the built-up member. The least radius of gyration r shall be used on computing the slenderness ratio of each component part.

1.18.2.5. — Open sides of compression members built up from plates or shapes shall be provided with lacing having tie plates at each end, and at intermediate points if the lacing is interrupted. Tie plates shall be as near the ends as practicable. In main members carrying calculated stress the end tie plates shall have a length of not less than the distance between the lines of rivets, bolts or welds connecting them to the components of the member. Intermediate tie plates shall have a length not less than one-half of this distance. The thickness of tie plates shall be not less than $1/50$ of the distance between the lines of rivets, bolts or welds connecting them to the segments of the members. In riveted and bolted construction the pitch in tie plates shall be not more than 6 diameters and the tie plates shall be connected to each segment by at least three fasteners. In welded construction, the welding on each line connecting a tie plate shall aggregate not less than one-third the length of the plate.

1.18.2.6. — Lacing, including flat bars, angles, channels or other shapes employed as lacing, shall be so spaced that the ratio l/r of the flange included between their connections shall not exceed the governing ratio for the member as a whole. Lacing shall be proportioned to resist a shearing stress normal to the axis of the member equal to 2 percent of the total compressive stress in the member. The ratio l/r for lacing bars arranged in single systems shall not exceed 140. For double lacing this ratio shall not exceed 200. Double lacing bars shall be joined at their intersections. In determining the required section for lacing bars, Formula (1) or (3) shall be used, l being taken as the unsupported length of the lacing bar between rivets or welds connecting it to the components of the built-up member for single lacing and 70 percent of that distance for double lacing. The inclination of lacing bars to the axis of the member shall preferably be not less than 60 degrees for single lacing and 45 degrees for double lacing. When the distance between the lines of rivets or welds in the flanges is more than 15 inches, the lacing shall preferably be double or be made of angles.

1.18.2.7. — The function of tie plates and lacing may be performed by continuous cover plates perforated with a succession of access holes. The width of such plates at access holes, as defined in Sect. 1.9.2, is assumed available to resist axial stress, provided that: the width-to-thickness ratio conforms to the limitations of Sect. 1.9.2; the ratio of length (in direction of stress) to width of hole shall not exceed 2; the clear distance between holes in the direction of stress shall be not less than the transverse distance between nearest lines of connecting rivets, bolts or welds; and the periphery of the holes at all points shall have a minimum radius of $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

1.18.3. Tension Members.

1.18.3.1. — The longitudinal spacing of rivets, bolts and intermittent fillet welds connecting a plate and a rolled shape in a built-up tension member, or two plate components in contact with one another, shall not exceed 24 times the thickness of the thinner plate nor 12 inches. The longitudinal spacing of rivets, bolts and intermittent welds connecting two or more shapes in contact with one another in a tension member shall not exceed 24 inches. Tension members composed of two or more shapes or plates separated from one another by intermittent fillers shall be connected to one another at these fillers at intervals such that the slenderness ratio of either component between the fasteners does not exceed 240.

1.18.3.2. — Either perforated cover plates or tie plates without lacing may be used on the open sides of built-up tension members. Tie plates shall have a length not less than two-thirds the distance between the lines of rivets, bolts or welds connecting them to the components of the member. The thickness of such tie plates shall not be less than 1/50 of the distance between these lines. The longitudinal spacing of rivets, bolts or intermittent welds at tie plates shall not exceed 6 inches. The spacing of tie plates shall be such that the slenderness ratio of any component in the length between tie plates will not exceed 240.

Sect. 28-1.19. Camber.

1.19.1. Trusses and Girders. — Trusses of 80 feet or greater span should generally be cambered for approximately the dead load deflection. Crane girders of 75 feet or greater span should generally be cambered for approximately the dead and half live load deflection.

1.19.2. Camber for Other Trades. — If any special camber requirements are necessary in order to bring a loaded member into proper relation with the work of other trades, as for the attachment of runs of sash, the requirements shall be set forth on the plans and on the detail drawings.

1.19.3. Erection. — Beams and trusses detailed without specified camber shall be fabricated so that after erection any minor camber due to rolling or shop assembly shall be upward. If camber involves the erection of any member under a straining force, this shall be noted on the erection diagram.

Sect. 28-1.20. Expansion. — Adequate provision shall be made for expansion and contraction appropriate to the service conditions of the structure.

Sect. 28-1.21. Column Bases.

1.21.1. Loads. — Proper provision shall be made to transfer the column loads, and moments if any, to the footings and foundations.

1.21.2. Alignment. — Column bases shall be set level and to correct elevation with full bearing on the masonry.

1.21.3. Finishing. — Column bases shall be finished in accordance with the following requirements:

1. Rolled steel bearing plates, 2 inches or less in thickness, may be used without planing, provided a satisfactory contact bearing is obtained; rolled steel bearing plates over 2 inches but not over 4 inches in thickness may be straightened by pressing; or, if presses are not available, by planing for all bearing surfaces (except as noted under Requirement 3 of this Section), to obtain a satisfactory contact bearing; rolled steel bearing plates over 4 inches in thickness shall be planed for all bearing surfaces (except as noted under Requirement 3 of this Section).

2. Column bases other than rolled steel bearing plates shall be planed for all bearing surfaces (except as noted under Requirement 3 of this Section).

3. The bottom surfaces of bearing plates and column bases which are grouted to insure full bearing contact on foundations need not be planed.

Sect. 28-1.22. Anchor Bolts. — Anchor bolts shall be designed to provide resistance to all conditions of tension and shear at the bases of columns, including the net tensile components of any bending moments which may result from fixation or partial fixation of columns.

Sect. 28-1.23A. Fabrication.

1.23.1. Straightening Material. — Rolled material, before being laid off or worked, must be straight within the tolerances allowed by ASTM specification A6. If straightening is necessary, it shall be done by methods that will not injure the metal.

1.23.2. Gas Cutting. — Gas cutting shall preferably be done by machine. Gas cut edges which will be subjected to substantial stress or which are to have weld metal deposited on them shall be free from gouges; any gouges that remain from cutting shall be removed by grinding. All re-entrant corners shall be shaped notch free to a radius of at least $\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

1.23.3. Planing of Edges. — Planing or finishing of sheared or gas cut edges of plates or shapes will not be required unless specifically called for on the drawings or included in a stipulated edge preparation for welding.

1.23.4. Riveted and Bolted Construction — Holes. — Holes for rivets or bolts shall be $\frac{1}{16}$ inch larger than the nominal diameter of the rivet or bolt. If the thickness of the material is not greater than the nominal diameter of the rivet or bolt plus $\frac{1}{8}$ inch, the holes may be punched. If the thickness of the material is greater than the nominal diameter of the rivet or bolt plus $\frac{1}{8}$ inch, the holes shall be either drilled from the solid, or sub-punched and reamed. The die for all sub-punched holes, and the drill for all sub-drilled holes, shall be at least $\frac{1}{16}$ inch smaller than the nominal diameter of the rivet or bolt.

1.23.5A. Riveted and High Strength Bolted Construction — Assembling.

— All parts of riveted members shall be well pinned or bolted and rigidly held together while riveting. Drifting done during assembling shall not distort the metal or enlarge the holes. Holes that must be enlarged to admit the rivets or bolts shall be reamed. Poor matching of holes shall be cause for rejection.

Rivets shall be driven by power riveters, of either compression or manually-operated type, employing pneumatic, hydraulic or electric power. After driving they shall be tight and their heads shall be in full contact with the surface.

Rivets shall ordinarily be hot-driven, in which case their finished heads shall be of approximately hemispherical shape and shall be of uniform size throughout the work for the same size rivet, full, neatly finished and concentric with the holes. Hot-driven rivets shall be heated uniformly to a temperature not exceeding 1950°F; they shall not be driven after their temperature has fallen below 1000°F.

Rivets may be driven cold if approved measures are taken to prevent distortion of the riveted material. The requirements for hot-driven rivets shall apply except as modified in the Tentative Specification for Cold-Driven Rivets of the Industrial Fasteners Institute.

Surfaces of high strength bolted parts in contact with the bolt head and nut shall not have a slope of more than 1:20 with respect to a plane normal to the bolt axis. Where the surface of a high strength bolted part has a slope of more than 1:20, a beveled washer shall be used to compensate for the lack of parallelism. High strength bolted parts shall fit solidly together when assembled and shall not be separated by gaskets or any other interposed compressible materials. When assembled, all joint surfaces, including those adjacent to the washers, shall be free of scale except tight mill scale. They shall be free of dirt, loose scale, burrs, and other defects that would prevent solid seating of the parts. Contact surfaces within friction-type joints shall be free of oil, paint, lacquer or galvanizing.

All A325 and A354, Grade BC, bolts shall be tightened to a bolt tension not less than the proof load given in the applicable ASTM Specification for the type of bolt used. Tightening shall be done with properly calibrated wrenches or by the turn-of-nut method.

Bolts tightened by means of a calibrated wrench, shall be installed with a hardened washer under the nut or bolt head, whichever is the element turned in tightening. Hardened washers are not required when bolts are tightened by the turn-of-nut method.

1.23.6. Welded Construction. — Surfaces to be welded shall be free from loose scale, slag, rust, grease, paint and any other foreign material except that mill scale which withstands vigorous wire brushing may remain. Joint surfaces shall be free from fins and tears. Preparation of edges by gas cutting shall, wherever practicable, be done by a mechanically guided torch.

Parts to be fillet welded shall be brought in as close contact as practicable and in no event shall be separated by more than $\frac{3}{16}$ inch. If the separation is $\frac{1}{16}$ inch or greater, the size of the fillet welds shall be increased by the amount of the separation. The separation between faying surfaces of lap joints and butt joints on a backing structure shall not exceed $\frac{1}{16}$ inch. The fit of joints at contact surfaces which are not completely sealed by welds, shall be close enough to exclude water after painting.

Abutting parts to be butt welded shall be carefully aligned. Misalignments greater than $\frac{1}{8}$ inch shall be corrected and, in making the correction, the parts shall not be drawn into a sharper slope than 2 degrees ($\frac{1}{16}$ inch in 12 inches).

The work shall be positioned for flat welding whenever practicable.

In assembling and joining parts of a structure or of built-up members, the procedure and sequence of welding shall be such as will avoid needless distortion and minimize shrinkage stresses. Where it is impossible to avoid high residual stresses in the closing welds of a rigid assembly, such closing welds shall be made in compression elements.

In the fabrication of cover-plated beams and built-up members, all shop splices in each component part shall be made before such component part is welded to other parts of the member. Long girders or girder sections may be made by shop splicing not more than three sub-sections, each made in accordance with this paragraph.

All complete penetration butt welds made by manual welding, except when produced with the aid of backing material or welded in the flat position from both sides in square-edge material not more than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick with root opening not less than one-half the thickness of the thinner part joined, shall have the root of the initial layer gouged out on the back side before welding is started from that side, and shall be so welded as to secure sound metal and complete fusion throughout the entire cross-section. Butt welds made with use of a backing of the same material as the base metal shall have the weld metal thoroughly fused with the backing material. Backing strips may be removed by gouging or gas cutting after welding is completed, provided no injury is done to the base metal and weld metal and the weld metal surface is left flush or slightly convex with full throat thickness.

Butt welds shall be terminated at the ends of a joint in a manner that will ensure their soundness. Where possible, this should be done by use of extension bars or run-off plates. Extension bars or run-off plates, if used, shall be removed upon completion of the weld and the ends of the weld made smooth and flush with the abutting parts.

No welding shall be done when the ambient temperature is lower than 0°F.

Base metal shall be preheated as required to the temperature called for in Table 1.23.6 prior to tack welding or welding. When base metal not otherwise required to be preheated is at a temperature below 32°F, it shall be preheated to at least 70°F prior to tack welding or welding. Preheating shall bring the surface of the base metal within 3 inches of the point of welding to the specified preheat temperature, and this temperature shall be maintained as a minimum interpass temperature while welding is in progress. Minimum preheat and interpass temperatures shall be as specified in Table 1.23.6.

Where required, multiple-layer welds may be peened with light blows from a power hammer, using a round-nose tool. Peening shall be done after the weld has cooled to a temperature warm to the hand. Care shall be exercised to prevent scaling, or flaking of weld and base metal from overpeening.

² Welding with properly dried ASTM A233 EXX15, 16, 18 or 28 electrodes or submerged arc welding with properly dried flux.

³ Preheating for weldable A242 steel may need to be either higher or lower than these requirements, depending on composition of steel.

⁴ Except when base metal temperature is below 32°F.

The technique of welding employed, the appearance and quality of welds made, and the methods used in correcting defective work shall conform to Section 4 — Workmanship, of the Standard Code for Arc and Gas Welding in Building Construction of the American Welding Society.

1.23.7. Finishing. — Compression joints depending upon contact bearing shall have the bearing surfaces prepared to a common plane by milling, sawing or other suitable means.

1.23.8. Tolerances.

1.23.8.1. Straightness. — Structural members consisting primarily of a single rolled shape shall, unless otherwise specified, be straight within the appropriate tolerances allowed by ASTM Specification A6 or as prescribed in the following paragraph. Built-up structural members fabricated by riveting or welding, unless otherwise specified, shall be straight within the tolerances allowed for wide flange shapes by ASTM Specification A6 or by the requirements of the following paragraph.

Compression members shall not deviate from straightness by more than 1/1000 of the axial length between points which are to be laterally supported.

Completed members shall be free from twists, bends and open joints. Sharp kinks or bends shall be cause for rejection of material.

1.23.8.2. Length. — A variation of 1/32 inch is permissible in the overall length of members with both ends finished for contact bearing as in Sect. 1.23.7.

Members without ends finished for contact bearing, which are to be framed to other steel parts of the structure, may have a variation from the detailed length not greater than 1/16 inch for members 30 feet or less in length, and not greater than 1/8 inch for members over 30 feet in length.

Sect. 28-1.24A. Protection and Painting.

1.24.1. General Requirements. — Unless otherwise specified, steel work which will be concealed by interior building finish need not be painted; steelwork to be encased in concrete shall not be painted. Unless specifically exempted, all other steelwork shall be given one coat of shop paint, applied thoroughly and evenly to dry surfaces which have been cleaned in accordance with the following paragraph, by brush, spray, roller coating, flow coating, or dipping, at the election of the fabricator.

After inspection and approval and before leaving the shop, all steelwork specified to be painted shall be cleaned by hand-wire brushing, or by other methods elected by the fabricator, of loose mill scale, loose rust, weld slag or flux deposit, dirt and other foreign matter. Oil and grease deposits shall be removed by solvent. Steelwork specified to have no shop paint shall, after fabrication, be cleaned of oil or grease by solvent cleaners and be cleaned of dirt and other foreign material by thorough sweeping with a fiber brush.

The shop coat of paint is intended to protect the steel for only a short period of exposure, even it is a primer for subsequent painting to be performed in the field by others.

1.24.3. Contact Surfaces. — Contact surfaces shall be cleaned in accordance with Sect. 28-1.24.1 before assembly but shall not be painted.

1.24.4. Finished Surfaces. — Machine finished surfaces shall be protected against corrosion by a rust-inhibiting coating that can be easily removed prior to erection or which has characteristics that make removal unnecessary prior to erection.

1.24.5. Surfaces Adjacent to Field Welds. — Unless otherwise provided, surfaces within two inches of any field weld location shall be free of materials that would prevent proper welding or produce objectionable fumes while welding is being done.

1.24.6A. — After erection and after touch-up of shop coat, steel, unless specifically exempted in this Section 28-1.24A, shall be given a field coat of approved metal protection of another color.

or of steel having a corrosion-resistive metallic or other approved coating, shall be protected against corrosion with an acceptable shop coat of paint, enamel, or other approved protection.

After erection where directly exposed to the weather, except when encased in concrete made of non-corrosive aggregates, or where fabricated of approved corrosion-resistive steel, or of galvanized or otherwise adequately protected steel, individual structural members and assembled panels of light gage cold-formed steel construction shall be given an additional coat of acceptable protection.

Exposed siding or sheathing shall be fabricated of approved corrosion-resistive steel or otherwise protected at the ground level for sufficient height above grade as determined by the depth of average snowfall (40 inches).

Floor or roof construction which extends into an exterior wall shall be adequately waterproofed and protected from the weather to prevent corrosion.

Sect. 28-1.25. Erection.

1.25.1. Bracing. — The frame of steel skeleton buildings shall be carried up true and plumb, and temporary bracing shall be introduced wherever necessary to take care of all loads to which the structure may be subjected, including equipment and the operation of same. Such bracing shall be left in place as long as may be required for safety.

Wherever piles of material, erection equipment or other loads are carried during erection, proper provision shall be made to take care of stresses resulting from such loads.

1.25.2. Adequacy of Temporary Connections. — As erection progresses, the work shall be securely bolted, or welded, to take care of all dead load, wind and erection stresses.

1.25.3. Alignment. — No riveting, permanent bolting or welding shall be done until as much of the structure as will be stiffened thereby has been properly aligned.

1.25.4. Field Welding. — Any shop paint on surfaces adjacent to joints to be field welded shall be wire brushed to reduce the paint film to a minimum.

Sect. 28-1.26A. Inspection.

1.26.1. General. — Material and workmanship at all times shall be subject to the inspection of experienced engineers representing the purchaser.

1.26.2. Cooperation. — All inspection as far as possible shall be made at the place of manufacture, and the contractor or manufacturer shall cooperate with the inspector, permitting access for inspection to all places where work is being done.

1.26.3A. Rejections. — Material or workmanship not conforming to the provisions of this Code may be rejected at any time defects are found during the progress of the work.

1.26.4. Inspection of Welding. — The inspection of welding shall be performed in accordance with the provisions of Section 5 of the Standard Code for Arc and Gas Welding in Building Construction of the American Welding Society.

1.26.5. Identification of High Strength Steels. — Steel which is used for main components and which is required to have a yield point greater than 36,000 psi shall, at all times in the fabricator's plant, be marked to identify its ASTM specification. Identification of such steel in completed members or assemblies shall be marked by painting the ASTM specification designation on the piece, over any shop coat of paint, prior to shipment from the fabricator's plant.

Sect. 28-1.27. Open Web Steel Joists.

1.27.1. General. — Open Web Steel joists shall mean any open-webbed beam or truss, twenty-four inches or less in depth, produced directly by rolling, cold-forming or pressing. Joists may be fabricated from rolled, cold-formed or pressed shapes by welding, riveting or expanding.

Steel joists shall not be used in the first floor of a building where there is not a basement or cellar below, unless it has clearance above the ground of at least twenty-four inches, and the space below is ventilated either to a heated basement or to the outside air. Ventilation of such space to a heated basement shall consist of at least two remote openings in the basement wall having a total area of at least two square feet for each twenty-five linear feet of wall. Ventilation of such space to outside air shall consist of one or more openings in each exterior wall thereof, well distributed, except that openings need not be provided in the front wall when the space is ventilated in the rear and both side walls. The aggregate area of openings shall be not less than two square feet for each twenty-five linear feet of wall. Openings in exterior walls shall be protected by non-corrodible wire mesh with openings not greater than one-half inch.

1.27.2. Design. — The provisions of this Part for design and materials shall apply to Open Web Steel Joists. Steel members hot-rolled to shape shall be designed in accordance with the provisions of Sections 28-1.0 through 28-1.27A; steel members cold-formed to shape shall be designed in accordance with the provisions of Section 28-1.28A.

Where Open Web Steel Joists are used for other than simple spans under uniformly distributed loading their stresses shall be investigated and be limited to those allowed by this Part. Adequate top flange and lateral bracing shall be provided to support the joist in proper alignment under such loads.

The clear span of joists shall not exceed 24 times their depth in roof construction and shall not exceed 20 times their depth in floor construction.

The deflection due to design live load shall not exceed $1/360$ of the clear span for all floors and roofs where a plaster ceiling is attached or suspended, and $1/240$ of the clear span in all other cases.

1.27.3. End Bearing. — The ends of steel joists shall extend a distance of not less than 4 inches over masonry or concrete supports and not less than $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches over steel supports, except where opposite joists butt over a narrow steel support and positive attachment is made by welding or bolting. A shorter end bearing length may be used when the bearing stresses are within the allowable working stresses permitted in this Part.

1.27.4. Anchorage. — Joists resting on masonry or concrete supports shall be bedded in mortar and anchored thereto with an anchor equivalent to a $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch round steel bar not less than 8 inches long. Every joist in floors and roofs shall be anchored.

The ends of all steel joists resting on steel supports shall be positively attached thereto by either a minimum of two welds 1 inch long or one bolt $\frac{1}{2}$ inch diameter. If uplift forces are a consideration, the anchorage shall be capable of resisting such uplift forces.

1.27.5. Bridging. — Bridging shall be provided for steel joists to afford lateral support during and after erection and to distribute concentrations of live load among adjacent joists. Bridging shall be of approved rigid type. Attachment shall be by welding or mechanical means and shall be capable of resisting a horizontal force of not less than 500 pounds. The ratio of unbraced length to least radius of gyration (l/r) of the bridging member shall not exceed 300. Bridging shall be provided at intervals of not more than 7 feet for spans up to 21 feet, nor more than 8 feet for spans over 21 feet. The ends of all bridging terminating at walls or beams shall be anchored thereto at both top and bottom chords.

Sect. 28-1.28. Light Gage Steel Construction.

1.28.1. Design. — All computations for safe load, stress, deflection and the like shall be in accordance with conventional methods of structural design except as otherwise specified herein.

Properties of sections shall be based on the full cross-section of the members (or net section where the use of a net section is customary) except where the use of a reduced cross-section, or "effective design width," is required.

1.28.1.1. — Maximum allowable overall flat-width ratios, w/t , disregarding intermediate stiffeners and taking as " t " the actual thickness of the element, shall be as follows:

Stiffened compression element having one longitudinal edge connected to a web or flange element, the other stiffened by:

Simple lip.....	60
Any other kind of stiffener.....	90
Stiffened compression element with both longitudinal edges connected to a web or flange element (U-type or box-type sections).....	500
Unstiffened compression element.....	60

1.28.1.2. — The ratio h/t of the webs of flexural members shall not exceed 150

where

h = clear distance between flanges, inches

t = thickness of web, inches

Where a web consists of two or more sheets, the h/t ratio of the individual sheets shall not exceed..... 150

1.28.2. Allowable Design Stresses. — The maximum allowable unit stresses to be used in design shall be as follows:

$$f_b = 0.6F_y$$

1.28.2.2. — Except as permitted by this section, allowable stresses shall be based upon the specified minimum properties of the plain material. Utilization, for design purposes, of any increase in material strength that results from a cold-forming operation is permissible provided the increase in strength obtains for the kind of stress, tension or compression, that is to be imposed on the final product in service; and under the limitations prescribed in this section.

1.28.2.3. — The provisions of Section 28-1.28.2.2 shall apply only to the following, regardless of whether the stress to be imposed on the member in service is tension or compression:

1. Axially loaded members, and flanges of flexural members, whose proportions are such that when treated as compression members the quantity Q , determined in accordance with the provisions of Section 28-1.28-2.10 is unity. This includes tubular members composed of flat elements.

2. Cylindrical tubular members in which the ratio D/t of mean diameter to wall thickness does not exceed $3,300,000/F_y$.

1.28.2.4. — Application of the provisions of Section 28-1.28.2.2 shall be on the following basis:

1. Application of the provisions of Section 28-1.28.2.2 shall be confined to the following:

- Basic Design Stress
- Compression on Unstiffened Elements, Paragraph (1) only
- Laterally unbraced Single Web Beams
- Axially Loaded Compression Members
- Combined Axial and Bending Stresses
- Wind or Earthquake Stresses
- Cylindrical Tubular Members

Application of all other provisions shall be based upon the properties of the plain material before forming.

2. The effect, on mechanical properties, of any welding that is to be applied to the member shall be determined on the basis of tests of full section specimens containing, within the gage length, such welding as the manufacturer intends to use. Any necessary allowance for such effect shall be made in the structural use of the member.

1.28.2.5. — Compression, f_c , in pounds per square inch, on a flat element stiffened at only one edge parallel to the direction of stress:

1. For w/t not greater than 10:

$$f_c = f_b$$

except when f_b exceeds 30,000 psi the maximum w/t ratio for which f_c may be taken equal to f_b shall not exceed

$$\frac{300,000}{f_b}$$

In the case of such higher values of f_b the allowable value of f_c for w/t ratio less than 10 but greater than the ratio established by this section shall be obtained by straightline interpolation is to be made between (1) the value of f_b at w/t as specified in this section and (2) $f_c = 30,000$ psi at w/t equal to 10.

2. For w/t greater than 10, but not greater than 25:

$$f_c = (1.667f_b - 8640) - (1/15)(f_b - 12,950)w/t$$

For steels with yield point in excess of 50,000 psi the value of f_b to be used for the determination of f_c when w/t exceeds 10 shall be 30,000 psi.

3. For w/t from 25 to 60:

$$\text{For Angle Struts: } f_c = 8,090,000/(w/t)^2$$

$$\text{For all Other Sections: } f_c = 20,000 - 282(w/t)$$

1.28.2.6. — To prevent lateral buckling, the maximum compression stress f'_c , in pounds per square inch, on extreme fibers of compression flanges or laterally unsupported straight I-, Z- or channel-shaped flexural members (not including multiple-web deck, U- and closed box-type members and curved of arch members), shall not exceed the allowable stress as specified in Sections 28-1.28.2 or 28-1.28.2.5 nor the following maximum stresses:

1. For I- or channel-shaped sections:

When l/r is greater than $10,050/\sqrt{f_b}$ but less than $22,400/f_b$:

$$f'_c = \frac{10}{9} f_b - \frac{f_b^2}{907 \times 10^6} \left(\frac{l}{r_y} \right)^2$$

When l/r_y is equal to or greater than $22,400/\sqrt{f_b}$:

$$f'_c = 280,000,000 / (l/r_y)^2$$

2. For Z-shaped sections:

When l/r_y is greater than $7,100/\sqrt{f_b}$ but less than $15,900/f_b$:

$$f'_c = \frac{10}{9} f_b - \frac{f_b^2}{453 \times 10^6} \frac{l^2}{r_y}$$

When l/r_y is equal to or greater than $15,900/\sqrt{f_b}$:

$$f_c = 140,000,000 / (l/r_y)^2$$

where

l = the unbraced length of the member, inches.

r_y = the radius of gyration of the entire section of the member about its gravity axis parallel to the web, inches.

1.28.2.7. — The maximum average shear stress, v , in pounds per square inch, on the gross area of the flat web of a beam shall not exceed:

$$v = \frac{64,000,000}{(h/t)^2} \quad \text{with a maximum of } \frac{2}{3} f_b$$

Where the web consists of two or more sheets, each sheet shall be considered as a separate member carrying its share of the shear.

1.28.2.8. — The compressive stress f_w in pounds per square inch in the flat web of a beam due to bending in its plane, shall not exceed f_b nor shall it exceed:

$$f_w = \frac{520,000,000}{(h/t)^2}$$

1.28.2.9. — For webs of beams subject to both bending and shear stresses, the member shall be so proportioned that such stresses do not exceed the allowable values specified in Sections 28-1.28.2.7 and 28-1.28.2.8 and that the quantity

$$(f'_b/f_w)^2 + (v'/v)^2 \text{ does not exceed unity}$$

where

$$f_w = \frac{520,000,000}{(h/t)^2}$$

$$v = \frac{64,000,000}{(h/t)^2}$$

f'_b = actual compressive stress at junction of flange and web, psi.

v' = actual average shear stress, i.e., shear force per web divided by web area, psi.

1.28.2.10. — The average axial stress, P/A , in compression members shall not exceed the values of F_a , as follows:

$$l/r \text{ equal to or greater than } \frac{24,200}{\sqrt{F_y} \sqrt{Q}} : F_a = \frac{149,000,000}{(l/r)^2}$$

In the above formulas,

P = total load, lbs.;

A = full, unreduced cross-sectional area of the member, sq. inches;

F_a = maximum allowable average axial stress in compression, psi;

l = unbraced length of member, inches;

r = radius of gyration of full, unreduced cross-section, inches;

F_y = yield point of steel, psi;

Q = a factor determined as follows:

1. For members composed entirely of stiffened elements, " Q " is the ratio between the effective design area, as determined from the effective design widths of such elements, and the full or gross area of the cross-section. The effective design area used in determining Q is to be based upon the basis design stress f_b as defined in Section 28-1.28.2.1.

2. For members composed entirely of unstiffened elements, " Q " is the ratio between the allowable compression stress f_c for the weakest element of the cross-section (the element having the largest flat-width ratio) and the basic design stress f_b ; where f_c is as defined in Section 1.28.2.5.

3. For members composed of both stiffened and unstiffened elements the factor " Q " is the product of a stress factor Q_s computed as outlined in paragraph (b) above and an area factor Q_a computed as outlined in paragraph (a) above, except that the stress upon which Q_a is to be based shall be that value of the unit stress f_c which is used in computing Q_s ; and the effective area to be used in computing Q_a shall include the full area of all unstiffened elements.

4. The maximum allowable ratio l/r of unbraced length, l , to radius of gyration, r , of compression members shall not exceed 200, except that during construction only l/r shall not exceed 300.

1.28.2.11. — Members subject to both axial compression and bending stresses shall be proportioned to meet the requirements of Section 28-1.6A with the exception that formula (7) is to be used as shown here:

$$\frac{f_a}{0.515 Q F_y} + \frac{f'_b}{F_b}$$ shall not exceed unity (applicable only at braced points).

where

1.28.2.12. — The ratio, D/t , of mean diameter to wall thickness of a cylindrical tubular member in compression or bending shall not exceed $3,300,000/F_y$. For compression members, the allowable unit stress, P/A , under axial load shall be prescribed by Section 28-1.28.2.10 with $Q = 1$.

Sect. 28-1.28.3. Connections.

1.28.3.1. — The following requirements govern bolted connections of light gage steel structural members:

1. The clear distance between bolts which are arranged in rows parallel to the direction of force, also the distance from the center of any bolt to that end or other boundary of the connecting member towards which the pressure of the bolt is directed, shall not be less than $1\frac{1}{2}d$ nor less than $P/f_b t$.

where

d = diameter of bolt, inches

P = force transmitted by bolt, lb.

t = thickness of thinnest connected sheet, inches

f_b = basic design stress, as defined elsewhere, psi.

If the ratio of tensile strength to yield point is less than 1.35, a stress equal to the specified minimum tensile strength of the material divided by 2.2 shall be used instead of f_b in applying the provisions of this section.

2. The tension stress on the net section of a bolted connection shall not exceed f_b nor shall it exceed

$$(0.1 + 3d/s)f_b$$

where

s = spacing of bolts perpendicular to line of stress, inches. In the case of a single bolt, s = width of sheet.

d and f_b are as previously defined.

3. The bearing stress on the area ($d \times t$) shall not exceed $3.5f_b$.

4. Shear on bolts, under dead and live load, shall not exceed the values given in Section 28-1.5.2A.

1.28.3.2. — For all grades of steel, fusion welds shall be proportioned so that the unit stresses therein do not exceed 13,600 psi in shear on the throat of fillet or plug welds. The allowable unit stress in tension or compression on butt welds shall be the same as prescribed for the base metal being joined, provided the weld penetrates 100 percent of the section. Stresses due to eccentricity of loading, if any, shall be combined with the primary stresses; and the combined unit stresses shall not exceed the values given above.

1.28.3.3. — In sheets joined by spot welding (including projection welding) the allowable shear per spot shall be as follows:

Thickness of Thinnest Out- side Sheet, In.	Allowable Shear Strength per Spot, lb.	Thickness of Thinnest Out- side Sheet, In.	Allowable Shear Strength per Spot, lb.
.010	50	.080	1075
.020	125	.094	1375
.030	225	.109	1650
.040	350	.125	2000
.050	525	.155	3000
.060	725	.185	4000

1.28.3.4. Protection. — Refer to Sect. 28-1.24.7A.

Sect. 28-1.29. Concrete-Filled Pipe Columns.

1.29.1. Material. — Pipe for such columns may have round, square, or rectangular cross sections.

Steel equal in quality to that described in Section 28-1.4.2A shall be used for pipe. Pipe shall be new and full size, shall be made by the seamless process or fully welded to develop equivalent strength. All pipe shall be mill tested and approved. Round pipe shall be standard weight or heavier. The wall thickness of square and rectangular pipe shall not be less than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch.

Filling shall be standard weight, machine-mixed, stone or gravel concrete and shall have a minimum compressive strength of 3,500 pounds per square inch when proportioned and tested by procedures described in Part 26. Concrete while being placed shall be compacted by a mechanical method which will ensure complete filling of the pipe with dense concrete of homogeneous quality.

Bases, caps, web ties, brackets and shear heads shall be of steel meeting the requirements of ASTM Standards A373-58T, A7-61T or A36-62T. Such fixtures and their attachments to the pipe and reinforcement shall be such as to ensure that the allowable stresses, under the maximum conditions of loading, are not exceeded.

Longitudinal steel having a yield point approximating that of the pipe (ASTM-A15-62T) may be used to increase the strength of the columns. Such steel shall be new, straight and continuous for the entire length of the column with ends milled for bearing unless it is subjected to tensile stress in which case the ends shall be anchored. The ends of such steel shall be arranged for even bearing with the pipe and milled after filling if necessary to obtain uniform bearing. The strength of this reinforcement shall be calculated by adding its area to the area of the steel pipe and including it in the calculations.

Material surrounding a filled pipe column for fire protection shall not be considered as either load-bearing or as increasing the stiffness.

1.29.2. Design.

1.29.2.1. — The axial load P_a shall not exceed that obtained from Formulas (1) and (2), Section 28-1.5.1.3A multiplied by the effective transformed area A_t and with P_a substituted for F_a and r_t^2 substituted for r^2 . The values of A_t and r_t^2 shall be evaluated by

$$A_t = A_s + \frac{A_c}{2n} \quad r_t^2 = \frac{I_s + \frac{I_c}{2n}}{A_t}$$ in which

A_s = area of the pipe and reinforcing steel

A_c = area of the concrete filling

I_c = moment of inertia of the concrete filling

I_s = moment of inertia of steel pipe and reinforcing

$$n = \frac{E}{E_c} = \frac{E}{60,000\sqrt{f'_c}} = \frac{483}{\sqrt{f'_c}}$$ f'_c = concrete compressive strength, psi

1.29.2.2. — The computed bending moment in columns shall take account of the effect of the axial load on the deflection including the deflection induced by the axial load itself. This moment M_r may be approximated by

$$M_r = \frac{C_m M}{1 - \frac{P_c(l/r_t)^2}{149,000,000 A_c}} \quad \text{Formula (27)}$$

in which C_m shall be evaluated in accordance with Section 28-1.6.1A with P_c substituted for f_a and P_a substituted for F_a .

M = bending moment neglecting the effect of the axial load on the deflection.

P_c = applied axial load.

At braced points M_r may be taken equal to M .

1.29.2.3. — Provided that no part of the concrete filling is stressed in tension, columns subjected to bending as well as axial load shall be so proportioned that in which f_b is the compressive bending stress based on the moment given by Formula at the point under consideration. The above expression applies directly to columns flexed about one principal axis and to round columns. In the latter case moments acting about several axes shall be added vectorily and f_b obtained from the resultant moment. For square and rectangular columns the second (bending) term shall be treated as

$$\frac{P_c}{P_a} + \frac{f_b}{21,000} \leq 1$$

$$\frac{f_{bx} + f_{by}}{21,000}$$

At braced points P_a in the above formula may be computed for $l/r_t = 0$ and $C_m = 1$.

1.29.2.4. — If bending is sufficient to cause net tension at some point in the concrete fill the column shall be so proportioned that

$$P_b = \frac{1}{\frac{1}{P_a} + \frac{1}{21,000 A_t}}$$ s = Kern distance for the uncracked section = $\frac{r_t^2}{c}$

c = distance from centroid to extreme fiber

M_o = allowable moment with $P_c = 0$ which can be approximated as $21,000S$ in which S is the section modulus of the pipe and reinforcing steel alone.

The above expression applies to columns flexed about one principal axis and to round columns. In the latter case moments acting about several axes shall be added vectorially to obtain the resultant moment.

For square or rectangular columns with bending about both principal axes, the section shall be so proportioned that where the subscripts x and y indicate that the quantity is computed with respect to the x or y axis independently and $P_{bmin.}$ is the smaller of P_{bx} and P_{by} .

$$\frac{P_c}{P_{bmin.}} + \frac{M_{rx} - s_x P_c}{M_{ox}} + \frac{M_{ry} - s_y P_c}{M_{oy}} \leq 1$$

1.29.3. Tests. — Copies of sanction tests of filled pipe columns subjected to axial loads made in accordance with this section shall be filed with the Commissioner for each size of column produced by a manufacturer. These tests shall be made on specimens the length of which approximates 24 times the smallest outside dimension of the pipe. Tests shall be made in an approved laboratory. For acceptance the ratio of the test strength to P_a shall not be less than the factor of safety in Formulas (1) and (2), modified as in 1.29.2.1 above excepting that in computing P_a for sanction tests n rather than $2n$ shall be used.

1.29.4. Identification. — Columns shall be labeled with manufacturer's name and date of manufacture.

Sect. 28-1.30. Cast-Iron Columns.

1.30.1. — Cast-iron columns shall not be used in the primary structural frames of buildings the height of which exceeds one hundred feet or twice the width at the ground level. Cast iron shall not be used for columns required to have four-hour fire-resistive protection.

1.30.2. — The ends of cast-iron columns shall be machined to a smooth plane surface perpendicular to the axis to provide full bearing for the entire cross section of the column.

1.30.3. — Hollow cast-iron columns, except when open at both ends and without flanges, shall have two three-eighths inch holes drilled in the shell to exhibit the thickness thereof. If the columns are cast on the side, both holes shall be at mid-height at ninety degrees from one another about the axis of the column. Additional holes shall be drilled when required by the Commissioner. If the core of a cast-iron column is found to have shifted more than one-quarter the thickness of the shell, the strength shall be computed assuming the thickness all around to be that of the thinnest part.

1.30.4. — Cast-iron columns shall not be smaller than six inches in outside diameter or side, and the thickness of metal shall not be less than three-fourths inch or less than one-twelfth the outside diameter or widest side.

1.30.5. — Cast-iron columns supporting a floor shall not be longer than seventy times the least radius of gyration or twenty-four times the outside diameter or least side. Cast-iron columns supporting roof loads only shall not be longer than ninety-six times the least radius of gyration or thirty times the outside diameter or least side.

1.30.6. — Cast-iron columns shall not be used where the loading is so eccentric as to cause tension, nor shall they be used in garages or other structures where they may be subject to impact from vehicles.

Sect. 28-2.1A. Scope. — Subject to the limitations contained herein, simple or continuous beams, one and two-story rigid frames classified as Class A construction in Sect. 28-1.2A and similar portions of structures rigidly constructed so as to be continuous over at least one interior support,* may be proportioned on the basis of plastic design, i.e., of their maximum strength. This strength, as determined by rational analysis, shall not be less than that required to support 1.70 times the given live load and dead load for simple and continuous beams. For continuous frames it shall not be less than 1.85 times the given live load and dead load, nor 1.40 times these loads acting in conjunction with 1.40 times any specified wind or earthquake forces.

Connections joining a portion of a structure designed on the basis of plastic behavior with a portion not so designed need be no more rigid than ordinary seat-and-cap angle or standard web connections.

Where plastic design is used as the basis for proportioning continuous beams and structural frames, the provisions relating to allowable working stress, contained in Sects. 28-1.0 through 28.1.26.5 are waived. Except as modified by these rules, however, all other pertinent provisions of these Sections shall govern.

Crane runways shall not be designed continuous over interior vertical supports on the basis of maximum strength. However, rigid frame bents supporting crane runways may be considered as coming within the scope of the rules.

Sect. 28-2.2A. Structural Steel. — Structural steel shall conform to one of the following specifications.

Steel for Bridges and Buildings, ASTM A7-61T

Structural Steel for Welding, ASTM A373-58T

Structural Steel, ASTM A36-62T

Sect. 28-2.3. Columns. — In the plane of bending of columns which would develop a plastic hinge at ultimate loading, the slenderness ratio l/r shall not exceed 120, l being taken as the distance center-to-center of adjacent members connecting to the column or the distance from such a member to the base of the column. The slenderness ratio of columns covered by Formula (21) shall not exceed 100. The maximum axial load P at ultimate loading shall not exceed $0.6P_y$, where P_y is the product of yield point stress times column area.

Columns in continuous frames, where sidesway is not prevented (a) by diagonal bracing, (b) by attachment to an adjacent structure having ample lateral stability or (c) by floor slabs or roof decks secured horizontally by walls or bracing systems parallel to the plane of the continuous frames, shall be so proportioned that

Except as otherwise provided in this section, M_o/M_p , the ratio of allowable end moment to the full plastic bending strength of columns and other axially loaded members, shall not exceed the value given by the following formulas, where they are applicable:

Case I. — For columns bent in double curvature by moments producing plastic hinges at both ends of the columns

$$M_o = M_p \quad \text{when } P/P_y \leq 0.15$$

Case II. — For pin-based columns required to develop a hinge at one end only, and double curvature columns required to develop a hinge at one end when the moment at the other end would be less than the hinge value the numerical values for B and G , for any given slenderness ratio in the plane of bending l/r , being those listed in Tables 4-33 and 4-36. Where l/r in the plane of bending is less than 60, and P/P_y does not exceed 0.15, the full plastic strength of the member may be used ($M_o = M_p$).

Case III. — For columns bent in single curvature

the numerical values for H and J being those given in Tables 5-33 and 5-36.

In no case shall the ratio of axial load to plastic load exceed that given by the following expression:

where l and r are the unbraced length and radius of gyration of the column in the plane normal to that of the continuous frame under consideration,

Sect. 28-2.4. Shear. — Unless reinforced by diagonal stiffeners or a doubler plate, the webs of columns, beams, and girders shall be so proportioned that where V_u is the shear, in kips, that would be produced by the required ultimate loading, d is the depth of the member, and w is its web thickness.

(Shear stresses are generally high within the boundaries of the connection of two or more members whose webs lie in a common plane. The foregoing provisions will be satisfied, without reinforcing the web within the connection, when its thickness w , in inches, is greater than $23,000M/A_{bc}F_y$, M being the algebraic sum of clockwise and counter-clockwise moment (in kip-feet) applied on opposite sides of the connection web boundary, and A_{bc} the planar area of the connection web, expressed in square inches, and F_y is given in pounds per square inch. When the thickness of this web is less than that given by the above formula the deficiency may be compensated by a pair of diagonal stiffeners or by a reinforcing plate in contact with the web over the connection area.)

Sect. 28-2.5. Web Crippling. — Web stiffeners are required on a member at a point of load application where a plastic hinge would form.

At points on a member where the concentrated load delivered by the flanges of a member framing into it would produce web crippling opposite the compression flange or high tensile stress in the connection of the tension flange, web stiffeners are required opposite the compression flange when $w < \frac{A_f}{t_b + 5k}$ opposite the tension flange when $t_f < 0.4\sqrt{A_f}$

where

w = thickness of web to be stiffened

k = distance from outer face of flange to web toe of fillet of member to be stiffened t_f = thickness of flange of member to be stiffened

t_b = thickness of flange delivering concentrated load

A_f = area of flange delivering concentrated load

The area of such stiffeners, A_{st} , shall be such that $$A_{st} \geq A_f - w(t_b + 5k)$$

Their ends shall be fully welded to the inside face of the flange opposite the concentrated tensile load. They may be fitted against the inside face of the flange opposite the concentrated compression load. When the concentrated load delivered by a beam occurs on one side only, the web stiffener need not exceed one-half the depth of the member, but the welding connecting it to the web shall be sufficient to develop $F_y A_{st}$.

Sect. 28-2.6. Minimum Thickness (Width-Thickness Ratios). — Projecting elements that would be subjected to compression involving plastic hinge rotation under ultimate loading, shall have width-thickness ratios no greater than the following:

Flanges of rolled shapes and flange plates of similar built-up shapes: $8\frac{1}{2}$, except that for rolled shapes an upward variation of 3 percent may be tolerated. The thickness of sloping flanges may be taken as their average thickness. Stiffeners and that portion of flange plates in box sections and cover plates included between the free edge and the first longitudinal row of fasteners or connecting welds: $8\frac{1}{2}$.

The width-thickness ratio of flange plates in box sections and flange cover plates included between longitudinal lines of connecting rivets, high strength bolts or welds, shall not exceed 32.

The depth-thickness ratio of beam and girder webs subjected to plastic bending without axial loading shall not exceed 70 and, when subjected to combined axial force and plastic bending moment at ultimate loading, the value given by the formula with a minimum value of 43.

Sect. 28-2.7. Connections. — All connections, the rigidity of which is essential to the continuity assumed as the basis of the design analysis, shall be capable of resisting the moments, shears and axial loads to which they would be subjected by the ultimate loading.

Corner connections (haunches), tapered or curved for architectural reasons, shall be so proportioned that the full plastic bending strength of the section adjacent to the connection can be developed, if required.

Stiffeners shall be used, as required, to preserve the flange continuity of interrupted members at their junction with other members in a continuous frame. Such stiffeners shall be placed in pairs on opposite sides of the web of the member which extends continuously through the joint.

Rivets, welds and A307 bolts shall be proportioned to resist the forces produced at ultimate load using unit stresses equal to 1.67 times those given in 28 — Part 1.

In general, groove welds are preferable to fillet welds, but their use is not mandatory when the strength of the latter at 1.67 times the stress given in Part 1 is sufficient to resist the ultimate load imposed upon a joint.

High strength bolts may be proportioned, on the basis of their minimum guaranteed proof load, to resist the tension produced by the ultimate loading. When used to transmit shear produced by the ultimate loading, one bolt may be substituted for a rivet of the same nominal diameter. High strength bolts may be used in joints having painted contact surfaces when these joints are of such size that the slip required to produce bearing would not interfere with the formation, at ultimate loading, of the plastic hinges assumed in the design.

Sect. 28-2.8A. Lateral Bracing. — Members designed on the basis of ultimate load shall be adequately braced to resist lateral and torsional displacements at the plastic hinge locations associated with the failure mechanism. The laterally unsupported distance, l_{cr} , from such braced hinge locations to similarly braced adjacent points on the member or frame shall not exceed except that it need not be less than $35r_y$

where

r_y = the radius of gyration of the member about its weak axis

M = the lesser of the moments at the ends of the unbraced segment
and

M/M_p , the end moment ratio, is positive when the segment is bent in single curvature and negative when bent in double curvature.

Any greater laterally unbraced length for these segments must be justified by an analysis based upon the predictable amount of restraint present at the ends of the segment in the plane of the computed bending moments.

The foregoing provisions need not apply in the region of the last hinge to form in the failure mechanism assumed as the basis for proportioning a given member, nor in members oriented with their weak axis normal to the plane of bending. However, in the region of the last hinge to form, and in regions not adjacent to a plastic hinge, the maximum distance between points of lateral support shall be such as to satisfy the requirements of Formulas (4), (5A), (5B) and (6) in Sections 28-1.0 through 28-1.26.5 of this Specification. For this case the value of f_a and f_b shall be computed from the moment and axial force at ultimate loading, divided by the applicable load factor.

Members built into a masonry wall and having their web perpendicular to this wall can be assumed to be laterally supported with respect to their weak axis of bending.

Sect. 28-2.9. Fabrication. — The provisions of Sects. 1.7.5 through 1.26.5 with respect to workmanship shall govern the fabrication of structures, or portions of structures, designed on the basis of maximum strength, subject to the following limitations:

The use of sheared edges shall be avoided in locations subject to plastic hinge rotation at ultimate loading. If used, they shall be finished smooth by grinding, chipping or planing.

In locations subject to plastic hinge rotation at ultimate loading, holes for rivets or bolts in the tension area shall be subpunched and reamed or drilled full size.

55 Bath Tubs Already Set at Hotel America

At Hotel America, under construction by the Turner Construction Company, on the west side of the Prudential Center, workers have reached the tenth floor of the 29-story Hotel America project.

In the basement area, many of the utility room walls have been erected. The Hotel America will need many of these special purpose rooms to supply the needs of the 1,000-room hotel, including the five-story separate function wing. These basement rooms include meat refrigerators, linen closets, bottle storage, kitchens, and a laundry, in addition to the large parking garage for hotel guests.

Two interesting items: Although the hotel is still considered to be in a "heavy construction" stage, over 55 bath tubs have already been placed on the upper floors. Due to the size of the tubs, construction engineers decided delivery of the bath tubs is easier at this stage of construction. Also, the aluminum swimming pool will be installed shortly on the top level of the five-story function wing. The aluminum pool has been shipped to the site of the Hotel America in some 30 sections and will be welded in place on the steel framework in about two weeks. The pool, the highest of its kind in Boston, will provide a warm-weather attraction for hotel guests.

THIS THING CALLED FIRE PREVENTION

(In the October issue of "Realtor," official publication of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards, the following article appeared):

By THOMAS J. GRIFFIN
(City of Boston Fire Commissioner)

Reaction of a building owner, manager or tenant to fire-prevention techniques is generally colored by their impact on the individual.

Fire prevention is an integral part of the fire safety program of any large, well-run municipal fire department, and the City of Boston is exceptionally fortunate in having its fire prevention activity guided by Assistant Fire Chief John E. Clougherty, an acknowledged authority on fire prevention and fire safety codes.

To more easily correct the city's fire problems, the Boston Fire Department succeeded in having legislation passed which validated its proposed fire prevention code. This furnished those responsible for its enforcement with the legal devices necessary to make enforcement effective.

Liaison Established

Effective liaison has been established between city departments charged with relevant phases of municipal regulation, as recommended by the Boston Fire Department. An example of this cooperation of the building department in submitting requests for building permits to the Fire Department planning section, before the permit is issued for their recommendations for fire safety.

Boston Stores Seeking Plenty of Holiday Help

More than 11,000 holiday job openings in downtown Boston stores must be filled during the next month in order to meet the need for Christmas workers according to Antonio England, Director of the Division of Employment Security.

There are job openings for both men and women in a variety of occupations, including sales, secretarial, general office work and biling.

A second example pertains to fires in establishments handling food, both wholesale and retail. The city food inspectors from the Health Department are summoned when the fire is controlled, to note the current quality of the food products, and whether or not they are still fit for human consumption. These are clear examples of liaison between city departments. What is not recognized readily is the around-the-clock inspection service engaged in by the Boston Fire Department. Fire protection is a never-ending job and the task of fire prevention is no less constant.

To the layman employed in business or industry, the everyday surroundings at his place of employment may include fire hazards which are masked from his sight because they are so much a part of the commonplace. Until their existence is pointed out by a visiting fire inspector, he may not realize that such conditions constitute a danger and also violate a safety law.

Enforcement of the law, while directly a legal responsibility, has as its primary purpose the safety and well-being of the public. The public should not feel that its application is a personal matter, although the dedicated attitude of fire officials assigned this duty may cause such feelings to arise.

Needless Danger

Ignorance and complacency by many people cause fires which need never occur. Take this as an example: A welding gang started work on a pier which had recently been repaired for the sum of nearly a million dollars. While they used a welding torch on the creosoted pier, a 40 mile per hour wind whistled through the substructure. They depended upon a carbon dioxide extinguisher in case of fire.

Picture the combination: creosoted wood, a torch capable of high temperature flames, a brisk wind, an unacceptable fire extinguisher, all tied together with lack of knowledge of what should be done in case of fire. No wonder the Fire Department needed three days to extinguish the fire which resulted.

Rubbish, the woe of all businesses, forms a good part of the Fire Department's inspecting problem. The Charlestown shed fires caused some interesting moments when a good part of what was described as the "Northern Fire District" of yesteryear went up in flames. Though it was shaping up as part of the "New Boston," a combination of accumulated rubbish under loading platforms, a hot dry summer, brisk hot wind, combustible structures of ancient vintage, and a cigarette, caused demolition at a speed that the redevelopment authorities had never dared hope for. Then the Fire Department had to step in.

The Boston Fire Department staff is continually searching for fire-prone situations, and devotes its constant attention to correcting them. The department is directly charged with the responsibility of keeping exits unobstructed and readily usable in all buildings covered by legislation. Unfortunately, persons who habitually use the same entrance and exit in public buildings or in places of employment automatically use the same way in a moment of stress, such as a fire. As that way may be blocked in an emergency, it is important to make certain in advance that occupants of a building are not trapped or panicked and are fully aware of alternate exits. The frequent practice of a fire drill helps to uproot everyday habits and builds in paths that will funnel occupants to an alternate route and a place of safety.

The Boston Fire Department is involved in research to make building materials, structures, equipment, and operating procedures safe from fire. It is ready to assist in solving problems of operations which may invite hazard to the businessman, apartment house owner, manager or tenant, all as a part of its fire prevention activities. Its business is not only to put out fires, but to prevent them from starting.

Prudential Heating Plant Ready Soon

Three key construction stages have been reached by workers of the general contractor for the Center section, Perini-Walsh, in the 52-story Prudential tower building, now Boston's predominating landmark.

Steam supplied from the Boston Edison Company has been piped into the subbasement of the tower building and soon will be heating the building under a modified plan utilizing the building's interior and perimeter heating systems. This will furnish construction workers temporary heat enabling them to continue to work during the cold winter months.

Heavy electric power is also ready to be turned on. Using cables as thick as a man's forearm, a 13,800-volt, primary-power line, has been wired into the large transformer vaults in the tower's basement. Segments of the tower will be shifted from temporary to permanent power as electricians continue their progress up through the building.

The next heavy equipment to be installed in the 750-foot tower building in the next several weeks will be two large cooling towers near the top of the building. The cooling towers will aid in cooling air-conditioning water used throughout the building. The two units, capable of handling 720,000 gallons of water an hour, will be built within the framework of the top three floors of the tower and will weigh 55 tons each.

Winter Parking Rules In Effect 'til March 31

Boston's winter parking regulations become effective November 1 and continue through to March 31.

All-night parking in residential areas will be allowed only on the side of the street with odd-numbered addresses, unless odd-numbered addresses signs state otherwise.

A fine of $1 is levied on violators, and in case of snow, the offending car will be towed away at the owner's expense.

Credit Union Election To Be Held Nov. 19

The annual election of directors for the City of Boston Credit Union will be held Tuesday, November 19, at the City Council Chambers at City Hall. Voting hours are noon to 6 P.M.

Administrative Services Director Henry A. Scagnoli has authorized all department heads to afford all employees an opportunity to vote.

Qualified candidates are:

Candidates for the three-year terms as director, seven to be elected, are, George R. Byrne, Administrative Services (present director); Paul L. Carty, Retirement (present director); William J. Coughlin, Auditing; Michael Donovan, Sanatorium (present director); Joseph Fellows, School (present director); Francis E. Guiney, Long Island Hospital; James F. Johnson, Public Works; Gilbert F. Joyce, Public Works; Patrick Loftus, Real Property (present director); Catherine O'Hara, Welfare; Albert G. Sullivan, City Hospital.

Candidate for one-year term as Director is Harold T. Kenney, Auditing (past director).

William Prendergast

Former State Representative William P. Prendergast, 87, of 37 Suncrest road, Hyde Park, who served the Bunker Hill district in the Massachusetts House of Representatives from 1925 to 1933, died October 31 after a long illness.

As a member of the Legislature he sponsored and helped establish the first cancer hospital in Massachusetts at Pondville.

He was a 50-year member of Bunker Hill Council, K. of C., and during World War I headed an overseas K. of C. canteen group that aided the American Red Cross in France.

A former member of the Massachusetts Port Authority, he retired from state service in 1946.

He was a member of St. Angela's Holy Name Society, Mattapan, Massachusetts Legislature Association, and Local 166 of the Steamship Clerks, I.L.A.

He leaves two sons, William E., of Miami, Florida, and Vincent J., of Revere; a daughter, Catherine McDonough, of West Roxbury, and a brother, Edward, of Medway.

A solemn Mass of requiem was sung November 4 at 10 A.M. in St. Angela's Church, followed by burial in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

'Tis a Bit Confusing When You Think of It

If Harvard and M.I.T. don't stand up for their rights as major academic institutions, the A.L.A. said today it will do it for them.

It seems that tourists visiting the A.L.A. travel offices get mighty confused when being told to cross the Harvard Bridge to get to M.I.T. but to cross the Larz Anderson Bridge to get to Harvard.

"If tourists can get to Boston University by crossing the Boston University Bridge they should also be able to get to M.I.T. by crossing the M.I.T. Bridge and to Harvard by crossing the Harvard Bridge," said A.L.A. travel manager Earl Marryat.

The A.L.A. is contemplating the filing of legislation to remedy the situation.

PLAN MOUTH CANCER CHECK—President William H. Ellis, Jr., of the City Hospital Board of Trustees, with Dr. Richard G. Taylor, head of the hospital's Oral Surgery Department, discuss plans with Mayor Collins for a check for mouth cancer in a program open to all city and county workers, November 15.

BCH Aid's Idea Helps Teenaged Mothers

An idea conceived by Mrs. Julia Stern, medical social worker on the maternity service of the Boston City Hospital, and worked out by representatives of public and civic-minded agencies bids fair to solve a growing social problem which has resisted solution for years.

Under way under the name CENTAUM is a program called the Committee on Educational Needs of Teenaged Unwed Mothers. Its purpose is to provide continued education for girls forced to leave school because of tragic indiscretion.

CENTAUM operates through the cooperation of the Social Service Department of Boston City Hospital, the Boston public school system, and the South End Inter-Agency Association. It does not cost the taxpayers of Boston a single penny.

It was started last September as a pilot program with high school classes made available in a settlement house for girls who had gotten into trouble.

A 14-year-old girl, whose problems were made the attention of Mrs. Stern in a routine interview, two years ago, remarked, "If only I could go back to school."

Let Jean Dietz, Boston Globe writer, tell the story from there.

"At that time," writes Miss Dietz, "continuing education while awaiting the birth of a child was entirely out of the question. Returning to school afterward was almost as difficult."

"It was to Miss Marguerite G. Sullivan, assistant superintendent of the Boston schools, that Mrs. Stern would turn most often for encouragement in the face of all the difficulties in the program.

"It took two years and many meetings with representatives of private and public agencies to bring the class about.

"What the girls now enrolled do with their opportunity to continue high school will determine the program's future.

"More than 50 girls, aged 14 to 17, were interviewed by Mrs. Stern this past summer in an effort to find ten whom the program might genuinely benefit.

"Aid to Dependent Children, the agency which must support youngsters of unmarried mothers if no one else can, is encouraging girls to learn about the program.

"Their own parents must be sufficiently interested in their daughters' welfare to encourage the future young mothers' participation in the program.

"The girls now attending the special school are all living in their family homes. They are determined to finish their educations so they can support their own children.

"Their own mothers have agreed to care for the babies until their daughters' future is settled.

"Classes in regular high school subjects are taught by Miss Nevart Najarian, a special teacher in the Boston school system who holds a Ph.D. degree.

"To save embarrassment going back and forth to school, the girls have been provided with two sets of books. One is kept at school and the other at home.

"A Visiting Nurse comes to the class each week to explain health problems and teach child care.

"A schedule for a typical day includes English, U. S. history, civics, business subjects, general science, geometry, and biology.

"So far, the students are rapidly moving ahead with their studies.

"They seem to be grasping at the chance to continue in school with the same enthusiasm an infant shows in grabbing for a glittering toy," says the social worker who knows them best.

"If successful, the program could set a national pattern to prevent further economic and emotional tragedy for the teenage girl who has made one mistake."

Human Factor Paramount in Family Relocations

BY PATRICK A. TOMPKINS

Director of Family Relocation

Boston Redevelopment Authority

Planned, considerate relocation of families and individuals to improved housing is the heart of an urban renewal program. The physical magnitude of an urban renewal program, such as Boston's, holds attractions for and commends itself to developers, contractors, unions, banks, realtors, and many other groups. Urban renewal must, however, hold a similar attraction for those who hold the greatest investment in the program: the families and children plus the lonely aged who are to be displaced, and who have lived so long and have such strong attachments to their present homes.

Mayor John F. Collins, through his Boston Development Program, has brought national attention to his "planning with people" approach. This is the actual personal effort of the people in the neighborhood and the planners of the Boston Redevelopment Authority to cooperatively develop a feasible plan for the future of the neighborhood.

Families Most Important

No one can afford to minimize the importance of the family and the family home in the broad program of renewing the face of the city. For families constitute neighborhoods and neighborhoods constitute cities. The total city is only as happy as the composite of all the neighborhoods which in turn represent the strength, the health, the morale, and the happiness of the families who make up the neighborhood.

The entire history of urban renewal has its origins in the first Housing Acts of Congress. As early as 1949 the human side of redevelopment was accorded official recognition by the National Housing Act Amendments of that year. Authorization was provided for the expense of moving a family displaced by the Urban Renewal Act and for the development of a skilled, understanding family relocation procedure as an integral part of urban renewal activity.

The fact that over the years urban renewal and redevelopment of cities and counties has been quite properly interpreted to include non-residential activities (industrial, commercial, cultural) has in no sense changed or diluted the original and still significant primary purpose: improved homes for families and improved neighborhoods to create improved cities and counties. That urban renewal program which fails to provide decent, safe, and sanitary homes for displaced families and the displaced elderly will fail.

Loose talk, rumor, lack of adequate interpretation, plus the fear of the unknown, has created too much misinformation about the human side of urban renewal, both for families and individuals who may be displaced, and for the community-at-large as to the characteristics of the families concerned. It is true, with some exceptions, that residential dwellings acquired for renewal are blighted. It does not follow that the families themselves are blighted. Quite to the contrary, a very substantial number of the families and elderly individuals involved are home owners either with free and clear title or with major equity in their property.

Site occupant surveys in Boston are ample proof of the basic strength of the majority of families in neighborhoods scheduled for renewal. The minority of the families, who present problems and need support, guidance and counsel, are receiving that support. Many community resources are already available from our great medical centers, our schools and employment offices, etc., and these are now supplemented by special programs, including imaginative, realistic projects for children and elderly developed by Action for Boston Community Development.

Relocation Involves Many

In addition to urban renewal, many sister agencies are by statute directed to assist displaced families in relocation to a decent, safe, and sanitary home. All have demonstrated both a capacity and a desire

Tower Now Passing Heavy Machine Stage

Many pieces of special heavy construction equipment are being discontinued at the Prudential Tower site as major construction phases are completed. For example, the concrete elevator located on the south wall (Huntington avenue) of the tower was dismantled at the end of October. Workmen are now enclosing all remaining areas in the glass wall except for openings reserved for the two outside material hoists on the west side of the tower.

Gradually, these outside hoists, too, will be discontinued, as materials will be raised by permanent freight elevators now nearing completion inside the building.

Construction materials arriving at the center section on the project site are now channeled to the newly activated and permanent freight handling area located below the west plaza area. Using a common service driveway (also serving the Hotel America and Municipal Auditorium) trucks are now using the same unloading bays and truck docks that will be used when the project is completed.

The "Chicago" boom, used for hoisting materials on the outside of the tower, has been relocated to the west side of the building. It will continue in operation for several more months.

to provide such assistance to the Family Relocation Department of the BRA.

Developers, contractors, unions, and realtors are intimately involved in the family relocation process. Their full devotion to the principal purpose of urban renewal—a better home and an improved family plus an improved city—is essential to any measure of success in the urban renewal effort.

Capital and labor are presented with the opportunity to acquire land and to construct low-cost and middle-income housing. Realtors receive a new and continuing opportunity to sell or to rent available homes to displaced families. A working plan with realtors, to rehouse families who must inevitably move, must be developed and operated, based upon fact rather than upon rumor.

This relationship in no way disturbs the normal financial interest of the realtor. His income from commissions is enhanced rather than threatened. The opportunity is presented to assist the low-income family to purchase new housing under the liberalized provisions of Section 221 (d) (2) of the National Housing Act. Staff of the Family Relocation Department includes workers who are licensed real estate brokers and are oriented on market values, home improvement needs and costs. Family workers are trained to assess the financial potential of the individual family and their ability to finance either home buying or rentals.

The prime criterion of the Family Relocation Department is the personal choice of a family as to neighborhood location. There has not been, there will not be, either coercion or false representation to families or individuals in offering a home. Each family based on financial ability, has opportunity to locate in the neighborhood of his choice. Although this has been a requirement of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, all realtors are familiar with the Massachusetts Statue on equal opportunity which became effective July 1, 1963. On no grounds may there be discrimination in the selection of tenants or in the sale of property except as provided by law. There is no discrimination in the offering of homes by the BRA. Common decency and morality, as well as good business, dictate that no discrimination shall be practiced by realtors or by the community.

Data developed on relocated families in the two projects operating actively since December, 1962, indicate that families have a wide variety of neighborhood choices which they have been able to fulfill. Approximately 25 per cent of all families and individuals were relocated outside Boston Proper. These suburban or Greater Boston homes have been the selection of the family, not an imposed plan by the family relocation worker.

The five large neighborhoods of Boston Proper not included in the high priority renewal areas represent the choice of more than 10 per cent of displaced families. The Public Housing Authority has invested a major effort in implanting its first preference priority for public housing vacancies for low-income eligible families and elderly individuals displaced by urban renewal.

Realtors and brokers in the active urban renewal project areas have not only been cooperative, but in fact have profited through urban renewal action. Resource agencies, such as the Boston Welfare Department, member agencies of the United Community Services, Action for Boston Community Development, the multiplicity of medical and health agencies and professions, have demonstrated an unusual awareness and desire to assist in the challenging problem of rehousing these people.

Without families, without neighborhoods, Boston would not need an urban renewal program. Urban renewal cannot continue as the live, vibrant influence on old Boston unless and until neighborhoods improve, families are enriched, both personally and culturally, and children are permitted to live as children without regard to race, creed, or ethnic origin. One happy family, productive and responsible, gainfully employed, with equal opportunity for both education and housing, enriched by Boston's many cultures with freedom to work and to live, is the pride, prize, and privilege of a wise city.

Old Boylston Street Bridge Had History

The old iron bridge on Boylston street is coming down. The bridge is being dismantled to make way for a new and longer bridge over the Massachusetts Turnpike extension into Boston. The Turnpike right-of-way extends beneath the Prudential Center, adjacent to the old bridge.

The bridge has an unusual history. Built in 1888 by the City of Boston, over the Boston & Albany Railroad mainline tracks, it was the longest iron span bridge of its day. Although made of iron, some steel members were used in the Boylston Street Bridge construction for the first time in Boston's history.

In 1906 the Boston Elevated Railway, forerunner of the Metropolitan Transit Authority, commissioned the famous MIT Professor, Charles M. Spofford, to redesign the old iron bridge for the added weight of 50-ton streetcars.

Professor Spofford's unique solution was to build another, almost hidden, bridge structure inside the Old Boylston Street spans thus creating two bridges in one. The new spans supported the streetcars and the old spans continued to support the Boylston Street traffic, each independent of the other. Access to the city's $12 million auditorium and the northwest corner of the Prudential Center will be improved by the new bridge.

Many Top Music Outfits Signing For Boston's Christmas Festival

Several hundred members of the Massachusetts State Employees Association will present a concert of old world Christmas music at the State House steps, overlooking famed Boston Common, on the opening night of the fourteenth annual City of Boston Christmas Festival, Friday night, November 22, at seven o'clock. The concert will start simultaneously with the unveiling by Mayor John F. Collins of the city's heroic-sized crèche on the Common, opposite the State House.

Organizing the group is Paul Walsh of the State Food and Drug Division. Miss Esther Allen of the Metropolitan District Commission is president of the association. The concert will be augmented by the full Medford High School Band and the Catholic Guild of the Blind.

Chairman Richard P. Chapman of the Festival's Finance Committee has reported to the Mayor that he is organizing a committee of about 50 leading businessmen to raise the $25,000 needed to finance this year's festival operations.

Although the active organization of the musical program to be presented at the Christmas chapel, Boston Common, has hardly started, there is such wide spread interest this year in the festival concerts that already more than a score of Boston public school choral and instrumental groups and others have notified Festival Director Paul Hines of their intention of participating in this event.

Some of the other groups that have already enlisted are the Milton Girl Scouts, the Boston Edison Feminine Glee Club, the Boston Postal District Glee Club, and the far famed St. Ann's Boys Choir of Gloucester. The latter group will also participate in the grand opening of the festival in front of City Hall on Friday afternoon, November 22, at four o'clock.

During the coming week Mayor Collins will send out an invitation to all of the Greater Boston Church choirs to participate in this year's musical program. It is expected that an even larger number of units will take part this year than last when 102 units took part.

In anticipation of an early winter, the Park Department employees, city electricians, and the electrical contractors have started to set up the props at the Common for the opening of the festival. The reason for the early start is that if freezing weather should set in the work slows up materially.

Some idea of the magnitude of the work may be gained from the fact that this year more than 12 miles of cable and stringers will be used to feed the more than 30,000 multi-colored lights that will illuminate the festival displays at the Common. Every one of the stringers and sockets are now being carefully inspected.

Conventions Galore Eye Our New Boston

The 1965 convention of the International Union of Hod Carriers and Common Laborers, AFL-CIO, one of the largest of the building trade labor organizations, is coming to Boston.

The union is only one of many casting eyes on the Hub for their future conclaves. Indeed, it is only one of many organizations booking here for the use of the new municipal auditorium and the city's hotel accommodations.

The auditorium and the many projects going into the making of a New Boston—from the Prudential Complex to the Government Center and the many other public and private constructions now beginning to take form—are proving a tremendous magnet for the all-important convention business. In recent years this lucrative business has been by-passing Boston. The city just didn't have the facilities.

The Hod Carriers and Laborers Union is only one of many outfits choosing Boston for their future meetings. However, it offers a pretty good example why this business is today one of the most eagerly sought by cities and states through the nation.

Worth Millions

The national convention of the Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union here in two years will alone bring more than $2 million in new revenue into the city. Altogether, some 2,500 delegates from throughout the United States and Canada will attend the conclave in the Hotel America being built in the Prudential Center.

However, in order to accommodate the delegates, plus an equal number of wives and friends who'll also converge on the city, the union has already made plans to take over renting nearly all available rooms in five hotels in the city over the period of a week.

"We're too small for Soldiers Field in Chicago and too large for most hotels," explained one official helping with the arrangements.

It's told the decision of the Hod Carriers-Laborers will particularly have an effect on the whereabouts of future conventions of other big building trades unions which are sharing in the billion dollar construction boom here.

'Member Scollay Sq.?

Old Scollay square is all but leveled. Now the last reminder of the name is gone, replaced in the new subway station by "Government Center" signs. Sentimentalists will sigh and former sailors and other gay blades will recall Boston's former Barbary Coast.

Gleaming office towers and spacious plazas will be a reality soon. Only the ghosts of the crews ashore for a night on the town will loiter. But for those getting gray and paunchy the name will probably long remain Scollay square.

Didn't New York city rename it, grandly and hopefully, "Avenue of the Americas," and don't most New Yorkers still call it just plain Sixth Avenue? Traditional associations have a way of lingering fondly, long after a new generation takes over the reins.

Famed Dorchester Heights To Get Extensive Face Lifting

Mayor John F. Collins announced this week that the U. S. Government, through its National Park Service, had agreed to rehabilitate and beautify the famed Dorchester Heights national monument and shrine in South Boston, where George Washington watched the evacuation of the British on March 17, 1776.

Work was started immediately. It will consist of pointing and rehabilitation of the entire monument structure, the stairs, the fence, and the immediate area surrounding the monument. This is the first phase of what is contemplated as a major improvement of the entire area to be completed in the future.

Major improvements on this historic site have been a matter which has had the considered and constant interest of Mayor John F. Collins over the past two years. The Mayor has been in constant touch with House Speaker John W. McCormack. Through the efforts of Speaker McCormack, the Program Division of the National Park Service has appropriated the sum of $35,000 for improvements at this national shrine. Mayor Collins and Speaker McCormack have been most pleased to cooperate with the South Boston civic, veterans, and fraternal organizations and groups who have expressed an interest in having major improvements made at Dorchester Heights.

Dorchester Heights was purchased by the City of Boston in 1846 at a cost of $112,000. It is one of the earliest sites purchased by the city government in the development of the park system.

Mayor Collins praised House Speaker John W. McCormack, resident of nearby Dorchester, for spearheading the effort in Washington.

The site was designated a national shrine by the U. S. Government on March 17, 1951. But no funds were provided to maintain the site.

General Washington, under cover of night, on March 16, 1776, had installed cannon brought from Fort Ticonderoga on the high ground overlooking Boston Harbor. The evacuation of British troops enabled Washington to bring a successful end to the Revolutionary War in New England.

The evacuation is depicted in a prized painting by the German artist, Emanuel Leutze, which now is the possession of the Boston Public Library. The painting shows Washington standing by one of the Ticonderoga cannon on Dorchester Heights.

Police Superior Officer Club Granted Charter

The club, made up of sergeants and above, will concern itself with the general welfare of the men who make up the Police Force.

Officers include Deputy Superintendent Joseph V. Saia of Hyde Park, president; Sergt. Theodor Lukosi of Dorchester, vice-president; Sergt. Patrick Leonard, of Roslindale, secretary; and Lieut. Edward O'Neil of West Roxbury, treasurer.

The executive board includes Deputy Superintendent Arthur E. Cadigan of South Boston, Capt. William J. Hogan of Roslindale, Lieut. Daniel Moynihan of Mattapan, and Sergt. Francis B. Shroeder of Allston.

Lee Playground to Get New Field House

Mayor John F. Collins announced approval of plans for the complete modernization of the field house of the Major Christopher F. Lee Playground in South Boston. The work will complete the task of making the facility one of the finest municipally-owned playgrounds in New England.

The Mayor ordered work started as soon as possible.

Mayor Collins two years ago accepted an offer of the Gillette Safety Razor Company to undertake improvement of the old playground. The nationally famous firm expended $70,000 to establish it as an up-to-date, fenced-in facility, completely landscaped with a children's playground and athletic field adjacent to the main baseball and football areas. In addition the firm installed a small-tot play area on the crest of nearby Independence Park.

The field house ordered by the Mayor will include activity and game rooms and provide facilities for meetings during any season of the year for civic meetings, etc.

200 New Members Sought by "100 Club"

The One Hundred Club, the organization of businessmen who assist widows of firemen and policemen killed in the line of duty, is out to sign up 200 more members.

If the goal is reached it will raise the membership to 400 and will allow the club to cover every fire and police department in the state, including unpaid volunteer public safety units.

Middlesex County Sheriff Howard Fitzpatrick and President George Swartz went to western Massachusetts, the North Shore and Cape Cod recently enlisting the aid of police and fire chiefs in the drive.

The club now covers most of Greater Boston and some North and South Shore communities, Registry of Motor Vehicle inspectors and state troopers.

To join, a man must guarantee to provide a stipulated sum of money each year. This is invested by the club. When a fireman or policeman is killed, the club gives the widow $1,000 in cash immediately. Later they pay off any mortgage, up to $10,000, and pay all back bills for the family.

So far, the club has helped the families of 10 men killed in the line of duty, paying out $35,133.

Massachusetts exceeds last year's high total of highway fatalities, the worst in 25 years," Registrar of Motor Vehicles James R. Lawton said today.

In an appeal to the more than 2 million Massachusetts motorists, the Registrar cautioned that November and December traditionally are the two worst months of the year for highway fatalities. In 1962, a total of 160 men, women and children—81 in November and 79 in December—lost their lives in this period. This represented more than 20 per cent of 1962's 701 fatalities, the worst year since 1937 in Massachusetts.

As of midnight, Tuesday, October 29, Massachusetts had experienced 564 fatalities, 27 more than the 537 figure for that date in 1962.

In 1961, 126 persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents in this two-month period. Again this represented more than 20 per cent of the 575 fatality figure for 1961.

"The 1962 rise in fatalities was 21 per cent over 1961," the Registrar added, "and at least it appears that we have halted this type of yearly increase. Our problem is naturally made more difficult by the yearly increase in registrations, 60,000, and in licensed operators, 85,000.

"However, none of us in highway safety can consider our work completed so long as the life of any one child or adult is lost."

City Auditorium Work Proceeds at Fast Pace

Construction workers for the general contractor S. Volpe & Co., on the City of Boston's $12 million War Memorial Auditorium, halted work momentarily as ceremonies were held on October 23 for the laying of the building's cornerstone. Mayor Collins, city officials, civic dignitaries, and representatives of the Prudential Insurance Company took part in the ceremony.

Due to relocation of the railroad line into the permanent tunnel beneath the auditorium, the front portion of the building, over the Massachusetts Turnpike, can now be completed facing Boylston street. Huge steel girders may now be seen spanning the last segment of the Toll Road-Railroad right of way. The auditorium is almost completely enclosed except for a small portion in the theater section and the above-mentioned front section, facing Boylston street.

Prudential Neighbors Getting New Look

Older buildings in the Prudential Center area are taking on a new look. Among the first to start a renovation program is the Hotel Lenox, located at the northeast corner of the Prudential Center, near the rapidly rising Boston War Memorial Auditorium Convention Hall.

Theodore W. Berenson interests and Irving M. Saunders & Associates have recently acquired ownership of the Hotel Lenox as an equal partnership. Hotel Management Associates, a wholly owned subsidiary of Saunders Associates, has been established as the operating company. Donald L. Saunders, C.P.M., has been named vice-president of the hotel. A two-year improvement program at the Lenox, scheduled to begin at once, will be under his direction. Changes will be consistent with the traditional architecture and design of the facilities, and renovations will be made on both the exterior and the interior of the hotel.

An editor once assigned Michael Arlen, the fastidious author of The Green Hat, to cover the Carpentier-Joe Beckett fight. Arlen, who had never seen a fight before, came dressed in bowler, stiff collar and cuffs, carrying a cane and, of course, wearing a flower in his lapel. When the fight was over he sent in his report:

"Mr. Beckett reached the center of the ring. He bowed to me and I bowed back. But then I discovered that Mr. Beckett's bow was not due to any recognition of me, but was the result of a severe blow to the stomach rendered by Mr. Carpentier."—Leonard Lyons

About 10.22 A.M., Thursday, September 12, 1963, a 1½-ton green panel delivery truck owned by the McSweeney Express, agents for the Gillette Safety Razor Company, was stolen from the corner of Hawley and Summer streets, Boston, containing merchandise the value of which was estimated and radioed at 40 to 50 thousand dollars.

Upon receiving the radio broadcast, Detective Driscoll and Patrolmen McGuirk and Murray immediately started their search of places suspected as good storage or exchange spots. At their first stop in the rear of 10 Bellevue street, Dorchester, which is concealed from the street and contains 25 garages, the officers observed the doors of garage No. 21 not quite closed and held together with a piece of clothesline. On entering this garage, they found the stolen truck with the motor still warm and the load apparently intact. The two patrolmen took up advantageous positions keeping the garage under surveillance, while Detective Driscoll went to a private telephone to alert Capt. Thomas M. Corbett, commanding, District 11. He then returned to the garage and continued the watch with the other two officers.

After a three-hour wait, an unknown man entered the premises, carefully scrutinized the area and went directly to garage No. 21, untied the doors and entered. Detective Driscoll approached the garage, identified himself and ordered the man to come out with his hands up. When he failed to respond immediately, Detective Driscoll fired a warning shot from his service revolver into the air and the man appeared and was placed under arrest. A search of the prisoner's person at the scene revealed a chain of G.M.C. truck keys, one of which fitted the recovered truck.

The prisoner identified himself as one Daniel A. Murphy, 33 years, of 112 Hampden street, Roxbury, a known tail-board thief, and he was delivered to officers of District 2 for further questioning and subsequent prosecution. He was arraigned in Boston Municipal Court on September 13, 1963, on charges of larceny of the truck and its contents. The case was continued to October 13, 1963, with bail set at $10,000. On that date, Murphy was brought before Judge Roberts who continued the case to October 23, 1963, in the same bail of $10,000.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the excellent police work performed by Detective Driscoll and Patrolmen McGuirk and Murray in the particular case, as well as their clearance of other cases during the past two months through the apprehension of persons responsible for the commission of serious crimes in and about the Greater Boston area. The devotion to duty and alertness displayed by these officers is worthy of recognition.

Personnel Order No. 274.

Patrolman George F. Moore and Patrolman Thomas E. Kelly of District 11 are hereby commended for meritorious police duty and each is granted three days' additional vacation.

About 5.02 P.M., Saturday, September 28, 1963, the 11-T car responded to a radio call to the Centre Street Market at 5 Clementine park, Dorchester. Upon arrival, Morris Gidez, the owner, reported to the officers that about 5 P.M., an unknown man entered his store, ordered a package of cigarettes and when Gidez's back was turned, the man said, "Give me the money out of the register." Mr. Gidez thought he was fooling and when the demand was again made, he said, "Nothing doing." The holdup man then pulled a gun out of his pocket and struck Mr. Gidez on the left cheek. Benjamin Gidez, the brother of Morris, was in the back room at the time and came out with a cleaver in his hand and yelled to the man to get out of the store. The gunman fired one shot which went over the head of Benjamin Gidez, ran out of the store and entered a green Chrysler sedan. The holdup man was described as 21 years, 5 feet 9 inches, 160 pounds, brown wavy hair, and was good looking.

About 12.20 A.M., Sunday, September 29, 1963, Patrolmen George F. Moore and Thomas E. Kelly, when at the intersection of Columbia road and Dorchester avenue heard the attendant of the Gulf Gas Station at 888 Columbia road, Dorchester, hollering, "Holdup, Robbery!" The officers observed a green Dodge sedan, Mass. Reg. 232-333, similar to the description of the car used in the attempted holdup a few hours previous, leave the gas station and speed down Dorchester avenue. The officers gave chase and apprehended the two men in the car, one, the owner and operator, Charles J. Earle, Jr., 24 years, single, of 29 Larchmont street, Dorchester, and the other a passenger, William S. Maimaron, 24 years, married, of 28 Downer avenue, Dorchester. At the time of arrest, Earle had in his possession a black .38 caliber Magnum automatic pistol.

The Gulf Station attendant, Herbert Holland, 35 years, married, identified Earle as the man who drove into the station, showed him a gun and took $104 in U.S. currency from him. Upon interrogation, Earle and Maimaron denied any knowledge of the attempted holdup at the Centre Street Market, located at 5 Clementine park, Dorchester, but Morris Gidez, the victim, made positive identification of Earle as the man who made the attempt.

Both men were arraigned in Dorchester Court on Monday, September 30, 1963, and the case was continued to October 4. Charles J. Earle, Jr., was held in $50,000 bail and William J. Maimaron in $25,000. The case was again continued from October 4 to October 13, and on that date appeared before Judge Sadie Shulman and both were held for the grand jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the devotion to duty displayed by Patrolmen Moore and Kelly in this case who by their alertness and prompt action took into custody two dangerous felons, one of whom was armed with an automatic pistol, thereby preventing a continuance, for the time being at least, of their criminal activities and the possible serious injury to one of their victims.

October 16.

On July 12, 1963, the Humboldt Drug Company, 63 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, was held up by a man who escaped with $40. On July 25, 1963, the United States Trust Company, 475 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, was held up by a man who escaped with $1100. On August 1, 1963, the D & W Real Estate Company, 534A Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, was held up by two armed men who escaped with $400. On August 7, 1963, the United States Trust Company, 475 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, was again held up by a man who escaped with $4,200 in a car with four other occupants.

As a result of these armed robberies, the above officers conducted a continuous investigation for three consecutive days and nights in the Humboldt avenue, Roxbury area, because of their knowledge of individuals who frequented that vicinity. On August 9, 1963, the above officers arrested nine men as suspicious persons of the armed robbery of the United States Trust Company, and among those taken into custody was one William Carrington, 19 years, single, of 29 Wyoming street, Roxbury, who vehemently denied any knowledge of the holdup. Upon being searched at District 9, Patrolmen McConkey and Kasionowicz observed a bulge under the suspect's shirt which contained $126 in assorted bills. Carrington was questioned and he maintained it was money won by him at the horse track and later said he won it at Wonderland Dog Track.

Carrington's home was searched and $536 in U.S. currency was found which was identified by the teller of the United States Trust Company, from pencil markings, as money taken from the bank. It was learned that Carrington was friendly with the following persons—Robert Arnold, Charles Wolcott, Henry Winbush, and a juvenile. Warrants were obtained and a number of locations were searched in an effort to locate these subjects and various evidences of crime were found. When confronted with this evidence, Carrington admitted participation with these subjects in the bank holdups on July 25 and August 7, 1963.

On August 10, 1963, at about 4 A.M., Charles Wolcott, 28 years, single, of 108 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, was arrested on suspicion of armed robbery of the U.S. Trust Company, on August 7, 1963; he was subdued after a struggle. He admitted his part in the holdups of the United States Trust Company, and the D & W Real Estate Company. On August 12, 1963, at about 4 A.M., Robert Arnold was arrested in his home at 16 Dalin place, Roxbury, while concealed in a refrigerator. He admitted taking part in the above holdups. About 5 A.M., August 17, 1963, Henry Winbush, 22 years, single, was arrested at his home at 21 Creston street, Roxbury, by the same officers and he admitted to the above holdups.

Carrington, Wolcott, Winbush, and Arnold admitted they had taken part in four armed robberies, twelve breaking and enterings and ten offenses of using motor vehicles without authority, all crimes taking place in District 9.

These subjects were brought before the Roxbury Court and each was held in $50,000 bail for the grand jury. True bills were returned against each defendant.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the tireless energy, the devotion to duty and excellent police work performed by these officers who worked many hours beyond their regular tours of duty and days of relief to bring about the apprehension of dangerous felons who would have continued in their life of crime if they had not been taken into custody and removed from the community.

October 18.

Personnel Order No. 276.

The following-named sergeants detailed to District 18 in accordance with Personnel Order No. 258, dated October 4, 1963, are hereby ordered to report to the commanding officers of their respective districts as of 7.45 o'clock A.M., Monday, October 21, 1963:

Sergt. James F. Doherty, District 1.
Sergt. James J. Sweeney, District 13.
Sergt. Arthur E. Horick, District 17.

October 21.

Personnel Order No. 277.

Sergeant-Detective Salvatore J. Ingene, Detective Stephen E. Flaherty, Patrolmen William T. Currier, Jr., Lewis G. McConkey, Stephen C. Delosh, Edmund H. Kasianowicz, and Arthur N. Cardarelli of District 9 are hereby commended for meritorious police duty and each is granted three days' additional vacation.

About 10.15 P.M., Tuesday, September 24, 1963, two men were observed in Dennis street, Roxbury, carrying two typewriters and acting in a suspicious manner. Upon the approach of the officers, the suspects fled into the first floor apartment at 30 Dennis street. The officers followed and forced the door and upon entering observed a man, later identified as one Kenneth Clark, 19 years, single, of 188 Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, pointing an automatic pistol at them. As the officers approached, Clark dove through a closed window as Sergeant-Detective Ingene and Patrolman Currier fired their service revolvers in an attempt to prevent his escape. On the ground outside the demolished window, the officers found a loaded .32 calibre German Dreyse automatic pistol.

Recovered in the apartment were 7 typewriters, stolen at the Dorchester High School on September 23, 1963, property stolen on District 9, and other stolen property and burglarious tools. Arrested in the apartment on suspicion of receiving stolen property were Catherine H. Shields, 30 Dennis street, Paul Carita, 185 Magnolia street, Charles Hartman, 2 Miller park, and Donald Hazelton, 13 Dennis street, all residents of Roxbury, and Joseph M. Carmody, Woodland street, Shelburne, Mass.

On September 25, 1963, as a result of questioning the above suspects, the same officers arrested one Benton Silver, 35 Priscilla Lane, Quincy, on suspicion of receiving stolen property, and recovered 15 typewriters that had been stolen from the Dorchester High School and purchased by Silver from the aforementioned Kenneth Clark. About 11.30 A.M., that same date, Kenneth Clark was taken into custody at a stake out at the Eliot Savings Bank in Roxbury. Upon questioning, Clark stated that on September 21, 1963, he had stolen a Chevrolet sedan on District 19, parked it on Burrell street, Roxbury, and 8 typewriters he had stolen from the Dorchester High School were in the trunk. The car and the typewriters were recovered.

Clark further admitted that between July and September, 1963, he had committed 14 breaks into Boston Schools—7 on District 9, 2 on District 11, 3 on District 6, and 2 on District 19 and had stolen over 50 typewriters, televisions, record players, tape recorders, moving picture projectors and other valuable equipment. He also admitted breaks into Goodman Cleansers, 865 Massachusetts avenue, Roxbury, and the Night Electronic Company, Inc., 360 Norfolk street, Dorchester. Eighty-one dollars was stolen at Goodman Cleansers and electronic and television equipment to the value of $5,000 was taken from the Electronic Company. Clark, after further questioning, admitted the theft of 12 automobiles during the period of July 24, 1963, through September 16, 1963.

Kenneth Clark and his accomplices were arraigned in the Roxbury Court on September 27, 1963, and their cases were continued until October 10, 1963, at which time they were held for the grand jury.

Additional complaints will be presented to the grand jury by District 6, District 11, and District 19.

On September 25, 1963, one David P. Carita, 19 years, single, of 185 Magnolia street, Roxbury, was booked at District 9 on suspicion of receiving stolen property. He was released to the detectives of District 19 and prosecuted in the Dorchester Court on September 26, 1963, for breaking and entering in the nighttime, at the Dorchester High School. His case was continued to October 3, 1963, and then to October 13, 1963, and was held for the grand jury.

The Police Commissioner is pleased to recognize the dedication to duty demonstrated by the above officers in this case which resulted in the apprehension of a group responsible for the systematic burglarizing of City of Boston School buildings and the subsequent recovery of thousands of dollars of equipment stolen therefrom. This type of police work reflects credit on every member of the department.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of City Council.

Monday, September 16, 1963.

Regular meeting of the City Council held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, at 2 P.M., President HINES in the chair, and all the members present.

The Right Reverend Christopher P. Griffin, chaplain of the City Council, was escorted to the rostrum.

INVOCATION BY THE RIGHT REVEREND CHRISTOPHER P. GRIFFIN.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

To Thee, our Father, merciful and mighty, out of the busy voices of life we pause to raise with love and sincerity this breath of fervent prayer. In the benign dispositions of Thy providential guidance Thou hast not dealt more generously, more tenderly with any nation; therefore make us humble and grateful; slow to make judgments and accusations against others; slower still to cause needless injury to anyone.

Today in the shadow of tragic sorrows we see hopes shattered; we see clashes of race against race; citizens against authority; misguided men transgressing the law; bitterness and rivalries in every bit of news. If this country is to be saved it must be upon the spiritual and moral values on which it was founded; based upon the dignity of the human person; the cogency of the moral law; the validity of truth and justice, and the right of God in the domain of all human affairs.

O God on this day let Thy manifold blessings be upon these custodians of this city government, inspire them with the courage to enkindle confidence in the hearts of all our citizens, even the faithless and mistaken among us.

And for the rest of us, O Lord, who do not share the responsibilities of political office, grant us the saving grace when we cannot help a cause that we will not hurt it; if we cannot bind up a few wounds, please God, keep us from opening new ones.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

The meeting was opened with the salute to the Flag.

APPROVAL OF EARLY LAND DISPOSITION OF PARCEL 12 IN GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 16, 1963.
To the Honorable City Council.
Gentlemen:

Now that construction on the Federal Office Building in Government Center is under way, and with construction on the new City Hall about to begin, it is appropriate for us to consider the next stage of development in this important project area.

The Redevelopment Authority has approved the "early land disposition" of Parcel 12, located between Cambridge street and Pemberton square, following the procedures used previously this year in the case of the Federal Office Building and City Hall.

Parcel 12, to be developed by Center Associates, will be used for the construction of a major new private office building, the cost of which is currently estimated at $20,000,000. Development of this parcel for private office uses at this time will complement the public uses already approved for the Federal Building and the City Hall, as well as the adjacent State Office Building presently under construction, since it is expected that this private office building will be tenanted for the most part by individuals and firms who do business with the various Federal, State, and City departments to be housed in the new public buildings.

The developers of Parcel 12 are prepared to proceed immediately with construction of the first phase of this building, upon receipt by the Authority of the necessary approvals and consents to the disposition. Under Chapter 121 of the General Laws, and under the Housing Act of 1949 as amended, such approvals and consents must be given by the Mayor and City Council, as well as by the State Housing Board, the Division of Urban and Industrial Renewal, and the Housing and Home Finance Agency of the Federal Government. Officials of the latter agency have informed me that, despite their reluctance to approve the early land disposition of a site for private reuse, they are willing to give it their full consideration if local and State approvals are first obtained.

Accordingly, the following documents in connection with this proposal are submitted for your consideration:

1. Proposed resolution for consideration and adoption by the City Council. The suggested resolution attached follows the form of the resolution recently adopted by the City Council in connection with its consent to the disposition of the City Hall site.

2. Consent by the City, to be executed by the Mayor after authorization and approval by the City Council.

3. Map of the area showing Parcel 12.

Attached to the proposed resolution for consideration and adoption by the City Council are the Land Use Provision and Building and Other Requirements related to Parcel 12. These provisions and requirements are extracted from the Government Center Urban Renewal Plan, which has been considered by you at some length and were the subject of extended public hearings this past summer.

Since the proposals for this site have already been closely examined by your Honorable Body, and since the public interest would be served by beginning the construction of this major building as soon as possible, I respectfully request that this resolution be adopted so that the other approvals required can be sought immediately.

Respectfully,
JOHN F. COLLINS, Mayor.

GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT CONSENT OF CITY OF BOSTON.

I, John F. Collins, Mayor, acting for and on behalf of the City of Boston, do hereby consent to the disposition by the Boston Redevelopment Authority of Parcel 12 of the Government Center Project Area (as shown in map attached hereto as Exhibit A) in accordance with the Land Use Provisions and Building and Other Requirements set forth in Exhibit B attached hereto, which provisions and requirements will be included in the Urban Renewal Plan for the total Project Area upon its approval and adoption.

Dated this.....day of....., 1963.

JOHN F. COLLINS,
Mayor of the City of Boston.

EXHIBIT B.

LAND USE PROVISIONS, PLANNING
OBJECTIVES, AND BUILDING REQUIREMENTS.

I. PLANNING AND DESIGN OBJECTIVES

A. Introduction

The general planning and design objectives of the Government Center Project are:

1. Revitalization of a key portion of downtown Boston through clearance, redevelopment and rehabilitation, thereby eliminating a decadent and substandard area.
2. Functional integration of new governmental facilities, supported by new private office facilities and ancillary consumer and business service facilities.
3. Introduction of new economic strength in the Government Center Project Area, thereby creating an effective center of activity functionally linked to the Retail Core, the Financial District, the Waterfront, the North Station, the Beacon Hill Governmental District, and the nearby residential areas of Beacon Hill and the West and North Ends.
4. Provision of adequate vehicular access to Government Center in order to emphasize the importance of Government Center to the entire Boston Peninsula, while at the same time improving mass transit and pedestrian access into and movement within the Project Area.
5. Creation of design continuity between the public and private parcels in order to heighten an awareness of the essential interrelation of all the Government Center buildings, open spaces, and pedestrian and vehicular ways.
6. Creation of a symbol of democratic government and its related institutions in the physical context of the surrounding historical districts, thereby continuing and improving the important role this area has played in the political, social and cultural history of Boston and America.

B. Implementation

These general planning and design objectives will be implemented by:

1. The planning and design of public facilities: circulation systems (pedestrian, vehicular, and mass transit); open spaces; public buildings and other public facilities; and
2. Use and design controls on the disposition parcels, the rehabilitation parcels, and the buildings in the Project Area which are not proposed to be acquired.

Moreover, these general planning and design objectives are supplemented by the specific planning and design objectives set forth below. The developer of each disposition parcel and the owner of each rehabilitation parcel, will be required not only to adhere to the particular controls and restrictions imposed upon his parcel, but also to give adequate consideration to the spirit of these objectives and principles in respect to land use, design, and building controls.

C. Circulation System Objectives

1. Pedestrian Movement

- (a) Provide a system of pedestrian paths linking open spaces, private and public buildings, mass transit and other public facilities within Government Center.
- (b) Provide a system of pedestrian paths linking Government Center and the adjacent districts of North Station, Quincy Market and the Waterfront, the North End, Beacon Hill, and the State House, the Retail Core, and the new West End Redevelopment Area.
- (c) Provide a system of pedestrian paths which can be incorporated into an improved system for Boston's historic Freedom Trail.
- (d) Provide a system of pedestrian paths, the principal elements of which are:
 - (1) paralleling systems of building arcades, walkways and open spaces starting at Pemberton square, linking the intersections of Cambridge, Tremont and Court streets, the Scollay Square MTA Station, Government Center Plaza, the Sears Crescent, new City Hall, Dock square, and Faneuil Hall (this varied system of open and sheltered walks will eventually tie into the historic Market and Blackstone-Union Streets area and thence the Waterfront on the east, and the North End Freedom Trail elements on the north)
 - (2) mid-block open walkway at Washington and State streets linking new City Hall to the Retail Core and the Financial District via Washington street;
 - (3) systems of arcaded walkways within the building lines of parcels facing Government Center Plaza, east of New Congress and west of Cambridge-Tremont, thus creating protected pedestrian paths serving these parcels while protecting and defining pedestrian movement where adjacent to important streets, and maximum flexibility for pedestrian desires and to give adequate access to all parcels.

2. Vehicular Circulation

- (a) Provide a rational vehicular circulation pattern which:
 - (1) maximizes re-use of existing rights-of-way;
 - (2) eliminates awkward and dangerous intersections;
 - (3) separates different types of vehicular movement according to function, speed, and destination;
 - (4) creates super-blocks free of vehicular traffic;
 - (5) makes disposition sites more practical in terms of construction, loading, off-street parking, and other service standards; and
 - (6) creates open spaces free of private vehicular traffic;
- (b) Simplify and increase the total carrying capacity of routes by creating a hierarchy of vehicular movement which:
 - (1) discourages through-traffic from using streets within Government Center designed for Government Center private vehicular movement alone; and
 - (2) encourages such movement on the Central Artery and other appropriate through-traffic arteries;
- (c) Increase the efficiency of the vehicular connections serving Government Center so as to provide a greater access to the Project Area by:
 - (1) creating at grade level the one-way connector street-pair formed by New Sudbury and New Chardon streets; and
 - (2) improving the existing State and Court streets as secondary streets;
- (d) Design street width, capacity, pavement and related street equipment, in order to:
 - (1) enhance access to disposition parcels; and
 - (2) relate such designs to the height, massing, facade, treatment and use of disposition parcels;
- (e) Minimize disposition parcel access from Cambridge-Tremont, New Congress-Merrimac, New Sudbury, New Chardon, State, and Court streets. Further improvement of private vehicular access and service systems within the purview of these controls will be accomplished by consultations between the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the disposition parcel developers.

3. Mass Transit

Increase the capacity of the Scollay Square Station to meet the increased numbers of employees in, and visitors to, Government Center by the construction of a loop designed to allow more cars to enter and leave Government Center within any period of time, and design surface entrances to meet the following three criteria:

- (a) that their design harmonize with the design of the immediate area in which they are located;
- (b) that they be so located as to maximize access to the station they serve; and
- (c) that their design reflect the capacity of the station they serve.

D. Objectives for Public Improvements, Open Spaces and Easements for Public Use

1. Provide high standards for the pedestrian's safety, comfort, and access to service elements contained in public spaces and rights-of-way, giving consideration to:
 - (a) plant materials, paving and curb treatments, lighting, signs, and other street and open space equipment and furnishings;
 - (b) safety at pedestrian crossings and within open spaces;
 - (c) street and open space sanitation; and
 - (d) climatic comfort in all seasons to the degree feasible.
2. Provide a functional and attractive system of well-defined open spaces knitted into an integrated whole by equally well-organized streets, walkways, and open spaces, giving consideration to:
 - (a) the circulation and/or noncirculation function for which they were designed; and
 - (b) the unification and functional articulation of the space sequences of the circulation system.
3. Encourage developers of disposition parcels to give consideration to:
 - (a) avoidance of setbacks or breaks in building lines which detract from the definition of enclosure or public open space and street space;
 - (b) exploitation of building mass, screen walls, overhangs, or landscaping as elements contributing to the definition of public open space and street space;
 - (c) enhancement of climatic shelter objectives as they relate to public open space and street space;
 - (d) provision of safe pedestrian and auto visibility minimizing curb cuts in public open space and street space areas;
 - (e) maximum display of lighted or active portions of buildings toward public open space and street space areas in order to improve nighttime safety;
 - (f) placement of primary building entrances and approaches and arrangement of internal functions generating public activity in such a way as to generate and augment the purposes of public open space and street space, whether intended for active or passive uses; and
 - (g) use of architectural materials and scalar treatment of facade and roof lines in modes contributing to unity across and around all sides of the public open space and street space areas.

E. Land Use and Building Controls Objectives

1. Provide a high standard of convenience and mutual interdependence between local, state, and federal government facilities and services, on the one hand, and private offices and business services on the other hand, maximizing convenient pedestrian access between all parcels, and emphasizing private office space that meets the needs of enterprises requiring Government Center proximity.
2. Provide a high degree of convenience, and self-sufficiency, in Government Center in respect to local retail, personal service, and visitor accommodation facilities, maximizing the vertical and horizontal accessibility of such services from the principal public pedestrian walks and open spaces.
3. Control vehicular traffic generation at a level reasonably related to the presence of mass transportation alternatives, the intense degree of pedestrian movement required in this area, and the limited availability of private vehicular movement channels in the area.
4. Provide an adequate standard of light, air, and open space and create a total pattern of buildings which is both expressive of contemporary real estate development and harmonious part of historic Boston. (Land use and building controls and restrictions emphasize the potential for buildings of moderate height and great horizontal continuity, both to ensure accessibility to light and air and to affirm the continuity of enclosure of streets and open spaces by long buildings which is characteristic of this part of Boston. The rationale directing the location of tall buildings is based upon an over-all area effect rather than upon similarities or dissimilarities of locational conditions between adjacent parcels. In the over-all plan as it relates to tall buildings, principal considerations will be minimizing shadowing of lower buildings, major open spaces and transit interchanges, and utilization of the building as an attractive distant landmark for the location and internal structure of Government Center.)

F. Buildings Objectives

1. Realization of these design objectives depends upon the highest possible level of contemporary architectural design. The individual developer's proposal will be reviewed in terms of its contribution to a suitable present-day city environment, its care for the assets and community values of historical Boston, and the permanence of renewal objectives in terms of aesthetic expression, utilitarian arrangement, and structural soundness. This objective will require the developer to conform to the principles of the over-all Project Area design through careful attention to the potentials of the disposition parcel (see especially paragraphs I, D and I, E above), and to the following standards:
 - (a) The best modern architectural standards for natural and artificial lighting, acoustics, and mechanical plant should be utilized, as well as sensitive external expression of these factors in order to avoid premature obsolescence.
 - (b) Experimentation in the arrangement of uses in a single architectural complex should be undertaken in order to improve on current architectural solutions in respect to mixed land-use sites and in respect to preserving the spatial integrity of the street and defined public open spaces, at least for lower floors facing the space.
 - (c) New and rehabilitated buildings, as well as buildings proposed to be retained, should harmonize, not only with others sharing the same streets or open spaces, but with surrounding older parts of downtown Boston. Particular note should be taken of the use of curtain walling materials and architectural rhythm and detail of wall openings, relating to dominant local architectural traditions of masonry materials and complex and careful scales of wall openings and details.
 - (d) All parapets and roof-top structures should be well organized so as to present an attractive appearance from all points of view, including view from higher buildings.
 - (e) New and rehabilitated buildings as well as buildings proposed to be retained should be treated with architectural values on all facades, leaving no facades of inferior material.
2. Two special and fundamental principles with respect to individual architectural considerations are as follows:
 - (a) Maintenance around Government Center Plaza of a dignified building enclosure of simple roofline, similar or harmonious materials, and similar scale of facade treatment, providing an unobtrusive common setting over which the new City Hall will be visually dominant and artistically unique; and
 - (b) Maintenance and strengthening of a clear visual channel and sequence of related architectural appearances extending from Government Center Plaza to the Waterfront (the latter outside the Project Area) expressing the functional ties between these points of tourist interest and the intervening open spaces as well. INVOCATION BY THE REVEREND JOHN RICHARDSON.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Almighty and Eternal God we invoke Thy blessing with hope and with confidence. We recognize and acknowledge that we are human and therefore very imperfect. Always and everywhere we need Thee; in our weakness to sustain us; in our strength to discipline us; in our despondency to encourage us; in our problems to give us vision and insight.

We humbly confess that at times we are overcome and enslaved by a sense of futility and frustration so great are our tasks, so tremendous are our responsibilities.

Throughout this day be our conscience and our guide, controlling and influencing our thoughts, words and actions as we seek the right solution to our many difficult problems.

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

The meeting was opened with the salute to the Flag.

HEARING BY COMMITTEE ON URBAN REDEVELOPMENT, REHABILITATION AND RENEWAL RE PARCEL 12, GOVERNMENT CENTER PROJECT AREA.

The following was received:

Center Associates,
September 30, 1963.

Hon. Patrick F. McDonough,
Chairman of the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal, Boston City Council.

Dear Councillor McDonough:

I am writing you at the suggestion of Edward J. Logue, Development Administrator of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, to report the current status of plans of Center Associates for the $20,000,000 office building on Parcel 12 in the Government Center Project area.

Center Associates has submitted to the Boston Redevelopment Authority in accordance with the time schedule established early this year, preliminary and final working drawings for the first phase of the building. These plans have been approved by the Redevelopment Authority. Center Associates is obligated to commence construction within 15 days following the delivery of the deed, and is in a position to meet that schedule. Arrangements have been made with Beacon Construction Company of Boston to perform the building work, and commitments have been received for construction financing. Substantial equity investment has already been made.

We understand that the site for phase one is now ready for delivery. Approval by the City Council of the Redevelopment Authority's request for an early disposition of the site will enable the redeveloper to complete arrangements with its prospective permanent mortgagee. These arrangements have remained tentative pending approval by the City Council and other agencies involved in the land disposition. We hope for early approval lest these arrangements and lease commitments be jeopardized by undue delay.

Respectfully,
Center Associates,
by NORMAN B. LEVENTHAL.

In connection with the foregoing communication, Councillor McDonough offered the following motion:

Moved, That the communication be referred to the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal, and in conjunction with that letter and the order pertaining to early land disposition of Parcel 12 before the Committee on Urban Redevelopment, Rehabilitation and Renewal, the Chairman wishes to announce there will be a hearing of the committee regarding this Parcel 12 disposition on Thursday next, October 3, 1963, at 2 P.M., here in the City Council Chamber.

The motion was carried.

STATEMENT BY COUNCILLOR PIEMONTE.

Upon receiving unanimous consent to make a statement, Councillor Piemonte requested unanimous consent in connection with the foregoing communication to have whatever rules there are suspended, in order that immediately following this letter in the "City Record" there be published a notation showing the date we received the resolve concerning Parcel 12, which was two weeks ago, September 16, 1963, the date of our last meeting.

Adjourned at 4.06 P.M., on motion of Councillor Sullivan, to meet on Monday, October 7, 1963, at 2 P.M.

Note: All debate of City Council eliminated from proceedings in accordance with Chapter 447, Acts of 1947.

Shriners Now Have 17 Children's Hospitals

Decision of the Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine to establish a new hospital for the treatment of children suffering acute burns, brings to 17 the number of hospitals the Shrine now operates in behalf of children in North America.

Its first venture in this field came in 1922 when a hospital for crippled children was opened in Shreveport, La. Since then more than 300,000 children, regardless of race, creed, or color have been treated at the hospital. Following the policy established then no charge was levied against the children, their parents or any health insurance organization.

At its annual convention a year ago, the Shrine voted $10 million for the establishment of the hospital to be built close to the Massachusetts General Hospital on Blossom street in the West End Redevelopment area. As in the case of other Shrine hospitals it will be completely supported by the Shrine.

A leader in negotiations to bring the latest project to Boston is Judge Robert G. Wilson, Jr., of the Probate Court, who won the enthusiastic and effective support of Mayor Collins.

UNITED FUND

Clutter Throws Two Strikes at Your Office

What kind of an impression does the public get from the appearance of your office? Is it cluttered, untidy, poorly arranged? It is true that many of our offices are not large enough to accommodate the number of people in them.

However, almost any office can be improved in appearance if the executives in charge would make an "appearance inventory" of their working quarters. One improvement which can usually be made is a more systematic arrangement of books, reports, magazines, and other essential literature.

If it "stacks up," the result is not only an untidy appearance, but less efficiency in your own filing system.

Other means of improving the attractiveness of an office are well selected pictures, better arrangement of furniture or perhaps a planter box for greenery.

You may feel that your office is beyond hope, but an occasional inventory of appearance is worth a try. Remember, it's good public relations and good employee relations to have an efficient, well-kept office.

George Foley, Sr.

George F. Foley, Sr., of Pleasant street, Dorchester, died on November 4, the night before election, victim of a heart attack.

He was the father of George F. Foley, Jr., who was elected to the City Council the following day. The elder Mr. Foley was retired from McKesson & Robbins, Inc., where he had been a salesman for 30 years. He was 63.

Widely attended funeral services were held at St. William's Church, Dorchester, with the Rt. Rev. Francis G. Egan serving as celebrant at a Solemn Requiem Mass.

Besides Councillor-Elect Foley he leaves his wife, Kathleen (Green) Foley, and two other sons, Robert L. and William J., all of Dorchester.

— Make the Difference —

The employees of the Sanatorium, 249 River street, Mattapan, have fixed November 18 and 19 as the dates for the year's annual Christmas bazaar.

The bazaar is produced, staged, and staffed by the Sanatorium employees in order to raise funds for the benefit of the Sanatorium patients during Christmas and throughout the year.

Recently, the Sanatorium commemorated 50 years of medical assistance and treatment to citizens and residents of Boston. This year, the employees are staging their tenth annual bazaar. The committee comprises leading industrial, cultural, and political figures. However, it is the "little" employee, the laborer, the worker, the craftsman, who make the annual effort and whose only reward is the patients' gratitude.

The surrounding communities have attended the annual festivities in great numbers. This year more activities, games, arts and crafts—including ceramics, woolen goods, knit wear—will attract even greater crowds.

"Everyone is welcome," said John Curran, one of the enthusiastic employees. "But we advise everybody to come early. You know the early bird gets the pick of everything."

In addition to all the prizes, games, and other attractions, the Sanatorium dining room will be open to the public from 4 to 6 P.M. daily. The dinners are inexpensive—75 cents for a full-course dinner. On Monday, the entree will be broiled chicken. Tuesday, the main course will be roast beef "a-plenty."

Driving past a new development he was building, a contractor saw a group of his men digging in a trench some distance from where they were supposed to be working. He stopped the car and strode over to them.

"What's going on here?" he demanded angrily.

"Trench caved in," one of the men replied, without stopping his digging.

"Does the foreman know about it?"

"Well," said the workman, "if he doesn't, we'll tell him as soon as we dig him out."

Courier-Journal Magazine

Bostonians Are Urged To "Make the Difference" by Mayor Collins and Dr. Charif of the Boston Sanatorium, which will hold its annual Christmas bazaar for the benefit of hospitalized patients November 18 and 19.

Standing, Mrs. McCarthy, John Curran, Miss McGillivray, Jim Thompson, and James Scott—heads of various departments in the Sanatorium.

Full Pay for Slain Detective's Family

The Boston City Council passed an order granting the widow of Detective George J. Holmes a pension equal to his full $6,200 annual salary. In addition, Mrs. Holmes' four children will receive $312 until they reach the age of 18.

In another action at the State House, a bipartisan bill sought to provide full pay for the widows of all police officers and fire fighters killed on duty.

It provides that a widow would be paid, as long as she remains unmarried, the pay "which such police officer or fire fighter would have received, if he had continued to serve in the rank which he had attained at the time of his death."

The bill specifies that at the time the police officer or fire fighter would have reached the maximum retirement age the annuity to the widow would be the amount he would have received had he lived and retired.

Seattle Invests $375 Million on Downtown

Seattle, Washington, after long deliberation, has decided to preserve its downtown shopping area as the core of its entire metropolitan area, against the threat of suburban competition.

Plans are underway to invest over $350 million in the preservation.

Some $80 million in public funds will be spent to revise arterial traffic patterns.

The estimated total cost of private developments under the program by 1985 would be $270 million, swelling the over-all floor space in the office buildings by a third.

The city hopes the plan will persuade potential customers to utilize the downtown district instead of the large number of shopping centers in suburban areas.

The program would entail construction of an inner road circling the mile-square business district.

Motorist, MTA'er, Pedestrian to Get Attention of '63 Conferama Experts

'63 Conferama Director Lawrence W. Costello has issued the following interesting communication to those participating in or planning to attend this year's sessions:

In response to the request contained in my communication of May 8, many worthy suggestions and constructive ideas were submitted for consideration for our 1963 "Conferama" presentation, for which I am deeply and exceedingly grateful.

After a review of the various suggestions and recommendations submitted, it was decided to feature a subject this year that would and should be of vital interest and major importance not only to the municipal employees but to all residents of Boston and the metropolitan Boston area, namely, "The Megalopolis—Traffic and Transportation Problems."

Whether you commute by automobile or rapid transit, whether you own or drive a car, whether you are a daily pedestrian or a pedestrian occasionally, the program planned should be of sufficient importance to attract the attention of all civil servants who have the interest of their city at heart and who are desirous of keeping themselves updated and aware of what is being accomplished and what is being planned in the fields of traffic and transportation which, directly or indirectly, affect our everyday lives and the over-all economic climate of our entire community.

We have reduced the number of speakers from the usual four or five on each panel to three, affording us an opportunity to devote a greater portion of our time to "Question and Answer" periods. I am certain that these periods of discussion will prove most interesting and will stimulate more than ordinary interest in the various aspects of the subjects which are to be featured.

Through the courtesy of the Library Trustees and Director Milton E. Lord, facilities of the Wiggin Gallery have been made available to us for our coffee breaks. Here there will be an exhibit on display of Original Prints of Boston dating from 1910 through 1960 which should add to your pleasure and knowledge of the arts during the recess periods.

It is expected that all conferees will appear at the Library at 9 A.M. sharp on Thursday, November 21, and 9.30 A.M. sharp on Friday, November 22, in order that proceedings may get under way promptly and efficiently according to schedule and that each attendant will remain for the entire program. The Boylston Street entrance will be open for your convenience and, as usual, checking will be handled by the Library staff.

In view of the fact that Mayor Collins, several prominent city and state officials, leaders from private industry, and the Executive Director of the United States Conference of Mayors, who is journeying here from Washington, are to be with us and will endeavor to expand our knowledge in the various subjects involved, it is hoped that we will have 100 per cent attendance.

Margaret E. McCarthy

Mrs. Margaret E. (Flemming) McCarthy, 75, of 401 Old Colony avenue, South Boston, a life-long resident of South Boston, died unexpectedly Saturday, November 9.

She was the wife of Timothy F. McCarthy. She had long been active in charitable works and the affairs of St. Monica's parish. Besides her husband she leaves two sons, James T., of the Milk Street Division of the Boston Police Department, and Joseph F., of Brighton; three daughters, Mrs. Dorothy E. Connolly, Superintendent's Office, Boston City Hospital; Mrs. Marguerite Connaughton of the City Auditor's Department, and Mrs. Lillian F. O'Donnell of South Boston. Fifteen grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were held at 9 A.M., on Tuesday, November 12, with a Solemn Requiem Mass at St. Monica's Church, South Boston.

U. S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy has reappointed James A. Travers, Director, Boston Youth Activities Bureau, to his third consecutive term as a Special Advisor to President Kennedy's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime.

The Attorney General stated, "It is a pleasure to reappoint you and we hope you will keep us informed about programs in your area aimed at combating delinquency and improving the welfare of our nation's youth."

A number of suggestions made during the past year were called to his attention, Mr. Kennedy said and added, "we appreciate these very much."

Check Those Plates With Your Certificate

All persons receiving 1964 motor vehicle registration plates in the mail are asked to check the contents of the envelope against the registration number on the certificate so as to make sure that they are the same.

Each year numbers on some of the envelopes do not coincide with the numbers on the plates enclosed.

Persons who examine their plates and certificates and find discrepancies in plate numbers or registration certificate should immediately contact the correspondence section of the Registry of Motor Vehicles. In case of discrepancies, all persons are asked to act promptly, for otherwise their motor vehicle could be improperly on the highways as of January 1.

The notice contained in this announcement is also printed on the bottom left-hand corner of each registration envelope.

State Savings Deposits Hit Record $7 Billion

An unprecedented increase in savings deposits of the 181 mutual savings banks in Massachusetts has helped to improve the already generally favorable conditions for Bay State residents wanting to buy, build, or remodel homes, according to Norman F. Barrett, president, Massachusetts Savings Bank Association, at its recent annual meeting.

Total mutual savings bank deposits increased by $500 million over the past year to a record high of $7 billion.

"With this increase in savings deposits seeking investment," Barrett said, "competition for the limited supply of available mortgages in Massachusetts has intensified and has kept mortgage rates lower in this area than any other part of the country."

Terrenzi Pledges to Keep BFD Among Greatest Departments in the Country

Mayor John F. Collins on November 12, appointed William A. Terrenzi, 62, of 26 Brookvale street, Dorchester, as Chief of the Boston Fire Department. Terrenzi has been Acting Chief of the department since the death of Chief John A. Martin last July.

In announcing Terrenzi's appointment, Mayor Collins said he was "delighted to appoint a fire fighter whose record is outstanding to head the Uniform Force of the Fire Department."

"Chief Terrenzi," Collins said, "rose through the ranks during a 33-year career which is underlined by achievement and courage in his chosen field. I am confident that the Boston Fire Department will continue to be one of the finest in the world under Chief Terrenzi."

Chief Terrenzi was born in Boston and attended Boston public schools. He left English High School in the senior year during World War I to join the United States Navy where he served with distinction upon land and sea. After his honorable discharge from the Navy he became a journeyman printer but left that position on May 11, 1931, to become a private in the Boston Fire Department.

The new chief rose through the ranks to become an Assistant Chief in Charge of Training. As a district chief he was in charge of the South End district, one of the busiest in the city. At one point in their careers, the late Chief Martin and Terrenzi served together for many years at the Broadway House, Martin was captain of Rescue I and Terrenzi was captain of Engine 26.

Terrenzi is married to the former Louise Frigoletto of Fitchburg. They are the parents of a daughter, Rita, who is married to District Fire Chief George Paul of 152 Lasell street, West Roxbury. The Terrenzi's three grandchildren are Donna Paul, 16, Susan, 13, and Diane, 3.

Terrenzi has an older brother, Edward E., who is headmaster at the Boston Trade School. A younger sister, Mrs. Emma Zitso, a photographer, lives in Arlington. Another brother, Thomas A., died several years ago.

During his long career, Terrenzi directed fire-fighting operations in some of the most spectacular blazes in the city's history, but perhaps the busiest and hardest was last month on October 12, when a 13-alarm fire raged through the South End, followed several hours later by a three-alarm fire in Dorchester.

In accepting the chief's badge, Chief Terrenzi told Mayor Collins he considered "the Boston Fire Department one of the greatest departments in the country, if not in the world. We will constantly be on the alert testing and evaluating new equipment, new apparatus, and new ideas. I realize the importance of being associated with the New Boston and the Boston Fire Department intends to go forward with the New Boston."

Terrenzi concluded, "I accept this post with heartfelt gratitude and pride because Mayor Collins and Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Griffin have entrusted me with this highly important position. I assure them I will do everything in my power to justify their faith in me."

William A. Terrenzi, acting chief since the late Fire Chief John A. Martin was stricken last May, on November 12 was named Chief of the Boston Fire Department by Mayor Collins.

Terrenzi is a veteran of more than 30 years of service in the department and became the first Boston fireman of Italian descent to achieve the grade of deputy chief back in 1950.

Terrenzi lives at 26 Brookvale street, Dorchester. He joined the department in 1931 and topped the examination for lieutenant in 1940. He was named a captain in 1943 and district chief in 1947, promoted to deputy chief in 1950 and assistant chief in 1955.

Hero Officer Given No Chance by Fleeing Bandit's Blazing Gun

Around noon on Wednesday, November 6, in the very heart of the city's downtown shopping area, Boston Police Detective George J. Holmes was shot and killed as he sought to apprehend two armed bandits seeking to flee the scene of an abortive holdup.

Three bullets fired in quick succession entered his body. Because he realized that use of his own gun would have endangered the lives of innocent people in the crowded area he had not drawn his service revolver.

In a continuous chase, fellow officers arrested one of the bandits a short distance away. The second bandit escaped. His body was found five days later, on Armistice Day, under a warehouse platform near the rails of a freight spur off Lechmere square, Cambridge. He was a suicide.

Detective Holmes was married. He was the father of four children.

He made his home at 560 Park street, Dorchester. He had joined the Police Department in 1949 and had established a sterling record of service. In recognition of his work in the solution of the murder of Danielle Saunders last January, he was advanced to the grade of detective, third class.

Throughout his police career he served at the Dudley Street Division. On the day he met death he was in plain-clothes. He was a witness in court trial at Suffolk County Courthouse and had taken advantage of a recess to go to the shopping area on routine errands.

He was a veteran of World War II. He served with a combat infantry unit in Europe, was wounded and had earned three Battle Stars. His death left four children fatherless.

The bandit, who, police say, fired the shots which cost his life, had been granted parole from State Prison at Walpole, October 4, a bare month before he killed Detective Holmes. He had been under sentence for armed robbery. The sentence meted out to him in the courts was for six to ten years. He served less than two and a half years when he was adjudged worthy of parole.

The bandit, who was captured shortly after the murder, was found to have had two guns in his possession. He, too, was a parolee of Walpole State Prison. He was granted parole from a six- to 10-year sentence, for the same holdup as his partner on September 16.

The pair's crime partnership was of long standing.

They were arrested in February, 1960, aboard a plane at Logan International Airport, just as it was about to take off for Florida.

They were arrested for a series of liquor store holdups in the downtown area and the South End. They were convicted. They were given indeterminate sentences at Concord Reformatory. They were released in time to stage the holdup of a hotel in Cambridge less than three years after the liquor store convictions.

BCH Announces New Parking Regulations

Deputy Superintendent James G. Walsh, head of general services at Boston City Hospital, this week announced a revamping of parking rules at Boston City Hospital. The new system, which will be strictly enforced, calls for the issuance of new stickers.

Here is Deputy Walsh's directive on the new rules:

AUTHORIZED PERSONNEL—The following categories of Hospital personnel will be granted parking permits:

(a) Administrative employees to include Division Heads and above.

(b) Visiting Staff.

(c) House Staff — on space availability basis.

(d) Nursing Staff — on space availability basis.

(e) Physically handicapped.

(f) Individuals other than above whose services are essential to operation of the Boston City Hospital.

PARKING AREAS—The following parking areas are assigned as noted:

MAIN YARD—Categories (a), (b), (d), (e), and (f) above. (Green sticker.)

DROWN YARD—Overflow from main yard. (Orange sticker.)

SOUTH DEPARTMENT YARD—Members of categories (a), (b), (d), (e), and (f) who normally work in the South Department. (Black sticker.)

ALBANY STREET YARD—Category (c) above. (Red sticker.)

NOTE—All female employees reporting for work after 3 P.M. will be allowed to park in the main yard.

APPLICATIONS—Applications are available from the Security Office, ground floor, Dowling Building. Blanks should be filled in and forwarded to the Security Office except as noted below. Parking permits will be forwarded to the individual. EXCEPTIONS: House Staff will not submit applications. Parking permits will be allotted by the House Officers' Committee.

PARKING REGULATIONS—Stickers will be color coded as noted above to designate parking areas. Vehicles must park in assigned areas. Unauthorized cars will not be permitted in the yards. The Hospital Security Force is directed to enforce these regulations.

FBI's Hoover Blasts Release of Killer Risks

"It is difficult to convince a policeman who has faced the blazing gun of a hardened criminal that he is dealing with a sick or deprived person," said FBI Commissioner J. Edgar Hoover recently.

"If such persons are adjudged insane and their incarceration is properly effected, we who enforce the law would certainly have no kick. But when such people are released time and again to prey on the public and jeopardize police lives, we are not only appalled but exceedingly resentful."

Government Center Scale Models Win Enthusiastic Public Attention

Scale models of the three remaining buildings to be constructed in the government complex at the old Scollay square were unveiled November 6 by the State Government Center Commission.

One of the buildings will house the departments of Health, Welfare, and Education, will stand 23 stories and will cost an estimated $12,200,000. It was designed by the M. A. Dyer Company of Boston.

Another structure will serve the Department of Employment Security and will stand five stories. Construction cost is estimated to be $9,700,000 and the building was designed by Shepley, Bulfinch, Richardson and Abbott, also of Boston.

The third structure will stand five stories, cost an estimated $7,100,000, and serve as a mental health center, one of two proposed for Boston among a series of centers planned throughout the state. It was designed by Desmond and Lord, Inc., of Boston, and will be closely affiliated in staff, services, and research with the Massachusetts General Hospital, five blocks away.

These structures are in addition to the $26,000,000 State Office Building now under construction at the Government Center site. Together the four structures constitute the new government center and construction on the remaining three is scheduled to begin late in April and to be finished late in 1966.

The three buildings discussed will all form a coordinated design as the structures will be connected with one another in one unbroken but curved line of buildings. In the center, dominating the complex, will be the 23-story tower for health, education, and welfare.

The complex is an irregularly shaped block bounded by Cambridge street on the south, Staniford street on the west, Merrimac street on the north, and New Chardon street on the east.

Cambridge street bordering the complex will lead to Boston's new city hall, which is part of the general concentration of government buildings but which is being built by the city and not by the State Government Center Commission.

Scenic plazas of plants, grass, and walkways will lie between the buildings and underneath will be an underground garage accommodating 100 cars.

The building for education, health, and welfare, totaling 300,000 square feet, will house 14 agencies of the department of education and all agencies of health and welfare. It will include a large cafeteria for employees and a 500-seat auditorium for seminars and lectures.

Arthur Snyder Named 1963 Festival Aid

Chairman Richard F. Chapman of Boston's Christmas Festival Finance Committee this week announced appointment of Arthur F. F. Snyder, assistant vice-president of the New England Merchants National Bank, as the committee's vice-chairman.

At the same time Chairman Chapman also announced that 50 prominent Boston business men at a formal meeting had agreed to contribute $25,000 toward this year's financing of the festival. Already more than $1,000 in small donations has been received by Vice-President Ralph M. Binney of the First National Bank of Boston, festival treasurer.

Director Paul Hines, pointing out the expansion of the festival this year, said that a larger number of contributions than those previously received would be needed. "We are encouraging donations, large or small," said Hines.

Contributions may be sent to Mayor Collins at City Hall; Finance Chairman Chapman at the New England Merchants National Bank, 28 State street, Boston, or to Treasurer Ralph M. Binney, First National Bank, 67 Milk street, Boston. All checks should be made payable to "The Festival."

Mayor Collins is most proud of the annual success of the festival, financially and otherwise. In the 14 years of its history it has always met its budget requirements.

As a result of its policy of buying equipment, adding a little more each year, the festival now has assets of over $50,000 in the form of religious figures and electrical equipment.

Cardinal Cushing in Warm Tribute to Boston's Police Department

Cardinal Cushing paid a stirring tribute to the Boston Police Department and its Commissioner Edmund L. McNamara as a guest of honor at the recent annual dinner of the BPD's traffic section in Whiton Hall, Dorchester.

Turning his attention to "do-gooders and civil rights people," who were attacking the department, even at a time when it had lost three brave officers in line of duty, His Eminence declared such people are making it difficult for "a policeman to perform his duties."

Of the department in general, the Cardinal said, "On radio, TV, and by word of mouth, you hear very little in the way of praise and commendation for the Police Department of the City of Boston.

"What hurts me," he said, is "that in recent years very little praise or commendation has been given to the Boston Police Force.

"My heart goes out to the wives and children who see the men off on their assignment, never knowing if the officer is coming back," he said.

"This thought came to me at the funeral of Detective Holmes this morning. He did not have to die. He was technically off duty.

"He could have walked away because he was in plain clothes.

"But he was a policeman 24 hours a day, that day and every day.

"When I greeted the wife and children this morning, my heart went out to them."

1916 Was Toughest Election Night Boston Newspapers Ever Knew

By ED DROHAN

On Election Night the first precinct return was tumbled into the maw of the elaborate counting machinery set up by the news media at 8.04 P.M. By 8.57 P.M. the old pro political writers, making like computing machines, named John F. Collins the winner. At 9.25 P.M. their judgment was just about confirmed.

Ten minutes later, headline writers were at work on the morning 8-column line across Page One. All they needed was the final total.

Shades of yesterday!

Oh, for those nights when there was no split-second means of communication! Oh, for those days when pathetic, static-throated radio sets didn't know there was an election on! Oh, for the days before they invented the Idiot Box!

Three o'clock in the morning after election! You'd still be waiting for those last returns. The warden in Precinct Something of Ward Something wouldn't give the cop the returns. He insisted on counting the whole ticket—not just the top, in which the newspapers were primarily interested.

Sometimes it took that warden's workers until 4 A.M. to complete the job. All the editors went a little crazy. They made mental notes to have the warden fired first thing after sunup.

The warden never got fired. He'd be back again for the next election—doing it his way once again.

The Cop Went Home

Then there was the cop who dutifully picked up the returns slip. He thought it was interesting. It was past roll call hour—so he went along home with the slip in his pocket. Then reporters were sent screaming out of the office to run down the slip and get the poor officer out of a sound sleep.

In those days they had drama in the news shops. It wasn't until after midnight that the winners came in shaking hands and smiling all over. Sometimes the losers showed up—weeping.

But the drama wasn't confined to the city rooms. That was actually smalltime stuff.

Thanksgiving

(Written for the Boston Post by the late Henry Gillen, brilliant poet and author):

Behind the viands richly spread,
Their weary arms had harvested,
Was more than simple gratitude
For health and home, and farm and food
The trust in God, so sorely tried,
Was answered now and justified.

Our heritage is something more
Than courage and the shining shore
That they bestowed; we still must make
Our land a haven or forsake
The dream of men who dared that we,
With faith, forever might be free

While being grateful we now should pray
For the others bowed by the whips today,
Who, leaving their ancient homes behind,
Long for a Plymouth and peace of mind.

The real drama of Election Night would be down in Newspaper Row. That's where you got the news hot off the griddle. From the Globe and the old Post.

Each paper would string up a rickety-looking platform from which returns were announced. Telegraph instruments clackety-clacked. Leather-lunged announcers like the late Ed Morris of Quincy and the late Dan Barry, top collegiate baseball umpire of all time.

Ed Morris would be working for the Globe. He's the same guy who made the announcements at Harvard Stadium. He needed no mike; no loud-speaker setup. You could hear him not only in every section of the Stadium, but as far away as Harvard square to the North and Barry corner to the South.

Dan Barry was a member of the typographical staff of the Post. He didn't have the lung-power of Morris but he had style. No Harvard-Yale baseball game was official unless he was the umpire-in-chief. Later on he became an American League Umpire. He quit that job to come back to the Post and his linotype machine. Easier on the nerves, he said.

It Was the Mob

Those announcers were the actors. But it was the crowds that supplied the real color. They were packed into Newspaper Row from down near the Old South Meeting House to in front of the Old State House. Just jammed. They cheered all favorable Democrat announcement. They booed all Republican gains.

The Globe and Post vied to beat each other with the most minor announcement. Next morning their printed words told their readers how they had won the duke hands down. Actually neither one ever got as much as a minute ahead of the other in the reporting of the returns.

Row Cleared for "Post"

And despite the intense rivalry they had a sort of gentleman's agreement. By 12.10

N.E. T. & T. Plans New $10 Million Structure

Simultaneously with the announcement of the election of Allen G. Barry as its new president, the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company announced plans for the construction of an 18-story, $10 million telephone building in the proposed downtown-waterfront-Faneuil Hall area.

The building will provide approximately 300,000 gross square feet. It would be located at State street and Atlantic avenue, across from one of the company's present buildings.

With approval of all government agencies involved, construction could start early in 1965 for occupancy the latter part of 1966. Expansion is necessary to meet current and future growth in telephone operations and to consolidate in one location the many units of company personnel now widely scattered. Such an arrangement will expedite interdepartmental coordination and permit greater efficiency throughout the organization.

they had to be conclusive about the result—even if the returns had been slow coming in. And they would be conclusive. The idea was to get the mob out of the Row. That was to clear the way for the "Post" trucks. They needed a bit of elbow space for their delivery trucks and the first edition hit the streets around 12.40 a.m.

Left-Handed Scoop

One year the crowd in front of the Globe went home mad. That was 1916. The Post had announced the election of Charles Evans Hughes as the President of the United States. The Globe said 'twasn't so—at least, not for sure. They said they'd have to wait.

"Great paper" howled the Post supporters. "Too pussyfooted," complained the unhappy Globites.

Long after sunup next morning, returns from California came in. Charles Evans Hughes hadn't been elected President. Woodrow Wilson had been awarded a second term for keeping us out of war.

Actually, it was probably the biggest political scoop this town has ever known—even if it was a bit on the negative side.

Night of Nights

That night was a night of all nights in Boston newspaper city rooms. Not only did Wilson and Hughes slug it out right down to the wire, a la Kennedy and Nixon years later, but there was another complication.

During the evening an old Boston El streetcar loaded with passengers ran through the draw of the Fort Point Channel on Summer street, near the South Station, to settle in the mud with all hands on board. Most of them perished.

It was no night for a nervous guy to be running a Boston city desk.

A Yale Law School graduate who got a job with one of the biggest law firms in the world was staggered by the number of lawyers it employed. Finally, he approached one of the younger ones. "How on earth do you ever get noticed around here?" he asked. "Well," said the young man, "one way is to go to our annual outing and hit a home run in the softball game."
